Wedding a Freak.

THE ARMLESS WONDER MARRIES A PRETTY WAITRESS IN CINCINNATI.

A very unique marriage was celebrated in 'Squire Hauser's office yesterday afternoon, the 'Squire officiating, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. The bride was Miss Tessie Troeger, who lives at the corner of Main street and McMicken avenue. She obtained some celebrity two years ago by leading a strike of the waitresses in Pockwell's restaurent. She is 29 years old. The groom was Chas. K. Adams, better known in the dime museum world as the Armless Wonder. He was born without those useful members of the body, and in lieu of a better and more profitable means of livlihood hired himself out to dime museums. Adams is now about 30 years of age, and barring the lack of arms, is a fine specimen of physical beauty.

The absence of arms is little felt by the Wonder, however, for he has become very expert with his toes and mouth. He can thread a needle and write a neat letter with the former, while with the latter he paints dainty little pictures, decorates chinaware, etc., holding the brush between his teeth.

When the couple entered the 'Squire's office yesterday and said they wanted to be united in wedlock that official was perplexed for a while.

"How can you join hands?" he asked blandly, pointing to Adams.

"Oh, that is easy enough," said the pretty bride, who stood fully three heads shorter than the groom, and she reached up and grasped the stump of his undeveloped left arm with her right hand.

"See," she said, as she stood smilingly on her tiptoes.

"But the ring. How can he put the marriage ring on your finger?"

"In this way," said Adams, and the astonished officials in the 'Squire's Court were thunderstruck to see the circlet of gold between the armless man's teeth. Bending his head he deftly slipped it over the girl's finger.

Satisfied that the couple understood their business, the 'Squire went ahead and performed the ceremony.

After being made man and wife Adams sat down, and slipping the shoe off his right foot, disclosing a stocking with the front of the foot cut off, he reached into his vest pocket with his toes and brought out a roll of bills. Selecting a five-dollar note he tendered it as a fee, and, putting on his shoe, went away, his little wife sticking close to him.

It will be gratifying to our readers to know that the History of British Columbia, by Hubert Howie Bancroft, until recently sold only with the complete set of this author's works in 39 volumes, can now be obtained separately, complete in one volume. It is perhaps one of the most difficult fields in literature to take what was so lately a vast wilderness, with only the crudest material to work with, and make of it a complete and finished narrative, as Mr. Bancroft has done, interweaving with the more substantial political and industrial development those pleasing incidents and romantic episodes connected with the wild and roving life here encountered. Mr. Bancroft's pictures in this volume are drawn largely from life. Visiting the country in person he came into close contact with the old retired officers of the Hudson Bay Company, most of whom have now passed away. From their experiences he not only obtained a large mass of information which otherwise would have passed out of existence, but he was enabled to fill his work with vivid life and detail which in no other way could have been possible. Besides being a masterpiece of historical investigation, it is full of that thrilling interest which attaches to the subjugation and settlement of wild countries, which here have not their parallel of history. See advertisement in another column for agents, to whom very liberal terms are offered.
