BANK OF HAMILTON

Capital Paid Up	$ 2,750,000
Reserve and Undivided Profits	3,250,000
Total Assets	40,000,000

In an age of extravagance, the thrifty forge surely ahead—while their less provident neighbors accumulate debts.

Many a thrifty man or woman can point to the first decided step in life as having been taken the day a bank account was opened.

A Savings Account in the Bank of Hamilton will prove a sure incentive toward thrift.

Why "Mister"?

"Master" was once a title of respect. "Mister" has no more of this significance than long established custom gives it. Those with whom statics are a passion might profitably make an estimate of the number of acres of pulpwood which have been consumed in the manufacture of paper on which to print M and r and a period, denoting—what?

"Misters" scattered profusely through our newspapers each take up a couple of ems' space, and columns in the aggregate. In a day when advertising managers sell for hard cash the space on each side of a newspaper title, this unnecessary word is still written, set up, corrected, revised, and given its space along with really useful stuff.

On the whole, the term appears to be a survival of days when written and printed language, as well as the spoken word, was more stately than it is now. Even yet overdone politeness is a curse to the country weekly, in whose constituency everybody knows everbody else, and the editor is kept on the alert—unsuccessfully of course—to avoid offending persons whose names are on his meagre circulation list. In this class of journal, even the criminal, paupet and half grown male are faithfully "mister-ed," though city dailies seem to draw the line at so honoring police courts drunks.

"Mr. John Smith, Esq.," or even "Mr. John Smith, M. P.," will pass no careful copy reader, being regarded as superflous language. If an editor should walk into his news room and remark, "I just saw Mr. Bill Nicholson on the street," the foreman would wonder, "Why the mister?" If however, the observation is: "just saw Mr. Nicholson on the street," the "Mr.,, is explainable, being used for the purpose of distinguishing said Nicholson from Mrs. Nicholson, Miss Nicholson or the young Nicholsons. Therefore, by the 'steenth proposition of Eculid, if the "Bill" be not eliminated, the "Mister" ought to be.

The case of "Mrs." is on a different basis, because the prefix here indicate a married woman or widow, whereas "Mr." has no significance of this kind.

No one will grudge a man "Mister" in an account of his wedding, especially if there are no other "handles," but that is a ceremonial occasion. Outside of that—well, our own newspaper, not long ago, it was decided at an informal conference that "Mr." was taboo When it creeps in now it is by accident.

It may come with a shock to some editors to pass "Charles M. Hays," or some name of that kind without decoration, but there is always the alternative of "President Hays" or whatever the office may be.

How often, in careless written pencil copy, it is impossible to tell whether Mr. or Mrs. is intended in the prefix to a name? If the rule were to omit Mr. the trouble would be eliminated.

Almost any reporter who is in the habit of using the word will faithfully telegraph it wherever an opportunity occurs, thoroughout a despatch. Yet it is of no more value than the two ciphers which a reporter placed after every item of prize money in his telegraphed story from Long Branch rifle ranges last summer.

An Exceptional
BARGAIN

This paper from now to

JANUARY 1ST 1913, for $1.00

Western Notes

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 6, 1911—Winnipeg bank clearings for the week ending October 28, made a new record of gain over the corresponding week of 1910. For this week of 1911, the figures were $32,015,207 as against $24,680,374 in 1910—an increase of $7,334,933. The total gain, to the same date, over 1910 is $146,032,297, and there is little doubt that the remainer of 1911 will be sufficient to put Winnipeg bank clearings for this year into the billion-dollars class. This strong indication that busines is good is borne out by other facts. Building is being pushed forward with all possible speed in Winnipeg, so that all that it is possible to do may be done before winter sets in, and trade is very brisk. Western weather has not been at all up to its usual standard of excellence since spring, notwithstandidg which, business and trade have been excellent—as the bank clearing figures indicate.

Winnipeg is to be represented at the New York and Chigaco land shows. The city will have large pictures of the principal streets and buildings at both shows, and will have descriptive literature on hand there for distribution. These matters have been arranged by the Winnipeg Development and Industrial Bureau, The New York show takes place from November 3 to 12 and the Chigaco event follows on November 18 to December 9.

Two Hudson Bay roads are in hand from Winnipeg to the Northern outlet to European ports. One of these lines is to be built by the Canadian Northern, and may be a continuance of the Oak Point branch of that system—now running about 65 miles northwest from Winnipeg—or it may go by a new route along the east side of Lake Winnipeg. The C. N. R. can connect its system with the Government line by building 175 miles of track. Another road that is chartered to build direct from Winnipeg to the Hudson Bay is the Hudson Bay, Peace River and Pacific Railway, and one or both of these lines will undoubtedly be constructed shortly.

The power and light department of Winnipeg is making a big campaign for street illumination since power was turned on from the big civic power plant at Point du Bois. When plans that are being carried out are finished, Winnipeg will be one of the best lighted cities in the world. Tall standard posts are being set for the lights on the main streets and residental thoroughfares will have the shorter poles with lights set close enough together to keep the streets thoroughly well lighted at all times. This work is well under way and will be far advanced when winter sets in.

It is welcome news for the West that the big coal strike in Alberta has been settled, after being on since last spring. Previous efforts to settle the strike failed and it remained for the Honorable Robert Rogers, new Minister of the Interior at Ottawa, to be the successful mediator between the men and the mine owners. As a result of the strike, many parts of the West were threatened with a coal famine, a very serious matter in a country of low temperatures in winter. This happily has been averted by settlement of the strike, but it will require prompt work to rush coal to the prairie country, in sufficient quantity before winter comes on in earnest.

On his return from Lethbridge, Mr. Rogers was tendered a public reception in Winnipeg. The demonstration was in nature of a welcome to a native son of Manitoba although Mr. Rogers, like most of the successful business men of the West, was born elsewhere and adopted the West as his home. Winnipeg looks upon Mr. Rogers as her own, however, and the citizens turned out in thousands to greet the Minister of the Interior on his arrival from Lethbridge, this being the first opportunity for a public demonstration of goodwill since Mr. Rogers was elevated to his new position in Mr. Borden's cabinet. A procession fully half a mile long was the feature of the occasion, and the streets were lined with people who turned out in honor of the first cabinet minister Winnipeg has ever had.

Matters pertaining to the 1912 trip of Winnipeg business men to Great Britain are making good progress. The idea of going to the Old Country has taken sharp hold upon the business men throughout the West and applications for reservations have been received from all the larger places from Winnipeg to Victoria. Without a doubt the 1912 excursion is to be the most successtul trip made under the auspices of the Winnipeg Business Men's Excursion. an annual event instituted two years ago by the Development and Industrial Bureau of this city.

Itching Scalp

Got Rid of, in a Few Hours

There is nothing made that will so quickly rid the scalp of distressing itchiness as Parisian Sage the hair dresser and beautifier.

T. E. Morrow guarantees Parisian Sage to cure dandruff, stop itching scalp and falling hair or money back, and sells it for only 50 cents a large bottle. It puts vitality into the hair and gives it a radiant luster.

It is the favorite hair dressing of refined women because it so quickly refreshes the scalp and not being sticky or greasy is delightful to use.

The new Seed act.

During the recent session of Parliament, important changes were made in the Seed Act respecting the sale of clover and timothy seed. Under the old Act the Inspector sometimes found it difficult to prove violations, though misrepresentations were being made. A dealer might offer red clover seed containing as many as 92 noxious weed seeds per ounce, and an unlimited number of other weeds such as foxtail, represent it as his best grades and charge nearly as much as his competitor asked for No. 1. He would not mark it No. 1, but he might state verballp that it was No. 1, or just as good. This has often been done with the result that farmers, as well as retail meachants who really wanted to buy pure seed have got badly contaminated seed and paid top prices for it. Under the new Act, such representation will be impossible and both farmers and retail merchants will be able to buy their seed more intelligently. Four grades are fixed by the Act for red clover, alsike, alfaalfa, and timothy seed, and all seed sold for seeding purposes by seedsman must be plainly labelled with the grade. Any seed not grading No. 3, which is a higher standard than the old prohibitive line of five noxious weed seeds per 1000 of good seed, is prohibited for sale.

Forestry Notes

WOOD USED FOR SHINGLES—1910

Ten species of wood are used in the manufacture of shingles in Canada, of which cedar is the most important. Reports received by the Forestry Branch at Ottawa show that over nine-tenths of the two billion shingles produced in Canada during 1910 were of this species and that over one-half of these were western cedar cut in British Columbia. The consumption of spruce and white pine has decreased suddenly in 1910, 82% less of the former being made than in 1909, and scarcely one-fifth the usual amount of white pine being produced. Novia Scotia and Quebec cut most of the spruce shingles. The white pine shingles are mostly of the species Pinus monticola and are cut in British Columbia. Nearly 3,000,000 more of hemlock shingles were produced in 1910 than during the year previous and the total of 15,000,000 pieces, over nine-tenths was produced in Ontario and Quebec. The above four species furnished over 98% of the wood used in shingles. Balsam, douglas fir and jack pine, although of less importance were used during 1910 in increasing quantities and for the first time, tamarack and red pine were reported as shingle wood- There are less fluctuation in the value of the species than formerly. Balsam shingles were the cheapest at $1.48 per thousand and tamarack the most expensive at $2.49.

The age we Live in

What a marvellous age is this in which we live? What astonishing changes have taken place within the memory of living men? Men there are whose eyes are not yet dim who can remember when our grain crops were cut with the cradle and bound by hand; when hay was cut with a scythe and put together with a hand rake; when horses went around for hour after hour in a weary circle, to furnish power for the threshing; when wagons sank to the hub on every road in hauling grain to market; when over a large part of Ontario the whistle of the locomotive was still unheard; when buggies were a greater curiosity than aeroplanes are now; when the cost of carrying a letter to Quebec was almost equal to the cost of a telegram to day; when the fruit supply of the farm was confined to wild berries; when on the farm fresh meat was an unknown luxury in Summer; when the ordinary necessities of to-day were undreamed of luxuries. At that time every bushel of wheat produced represented over three hours of human labor and the labor cost in all other lines were in proportion.

And now. The farm house that is not embowered in orchard is the exception, The telephoue keeps whole neighborhoods in constant touch; the mail comes in daily; buggies roll luxuriously over gravelled highways; music floats through the open windows along every concession line; in a short time the number of rural homes light by electricity will be greater than the number of city homes lighted by gas forty years ago; the country is gird-ironed with railways; the binder and seed drill have reduced the time necessary to the production of a bushel of wheat to one-eighteenth the time formerly necessary, and the beef ring places fresh meat on the farm table daily during the heated months. It is only in the work of plowing that conditions have remained comparatively unchanged, and the gasoline tractor promises an early revolution here.

In other respects an even greater change has been wrought. In other particulars the evidence of an advancing civilization is still more clearly marked. Asylums harbor mentally diseased such as formerly darkened innumerable homes. Well equipped hospitals rob physicial disease of half of its suffering. Reforming agencies are taking the place of the stocks, the prison, the gallows. All life has been mellowed and human sympathy has been immeasurably broadened. It is well to have seen the fight of this twentieth century. The promise is for still better things for those who will be here to see its close.—The Weekly Sun.
