Our thanks are due the Harrison Nurseries of Berlin, Maryland, for a luscious apple. It is known as the Nero species and is very grateful to the taste. It is just as fine outside as any apples that ever came accross the Rocky mountains, while inside it has western apples beat "three thousand miles" in taste and color and texture. We wish some of those fellows who have farms around here with good apple locations would eat one like it. It would show them what is required to command the dimes and quarters of the city folks along after Christmas, and we believe it would arouse new ambitions for making the old farm a wonderful money-making machine While Nero is adapted particularly to sections south of New York, other varieties suitable to our conditions will grow just as fine here. Several small booklets accompanied the fruit describing the country of Berlin, also several illustrations.

Never pleased. Growl at cold snape and growl at soft snaps.

A lady who was not posted on geography said to the captain, "Please show me the equator." "Certainly," answered the captain who was a red-headed Scotchman. He took a spy glass, adjusted it carefully and then handed it to the lady and told her where to look. Meanwhile he pulled a hair out of his head and held it in front of the glass "Oh, yes" cried the lady, "I can see the equator plainly, and isn't it queer there's a camel walking on it.

The old fashioned "comic" valentines which showed signs of passing a year ago will be almost completely missing on February 14 this year. The post card valentine, a comparatively modern conception, leads the fashion this year with burnt wood and leather novelties, ornate in construction and costly, are also in high favor. With the passing of the old comic, dealers notice also a decline in the fervent type of valentine which breathes of romantic love in every line. Love in every line. Love in these later days shows a tendency, they say, to express itself symbolically, or in a sort of sign language which would probably have been rejected as inadequate by lovers of an older generation.

Another Business Change

Another business change has taken place in town Edward Jones having disposed of his general store business to one of Jarvis' most popular young men in the person of J. F. Smith, son of R. W. Smith lately Reeve of Jarvis. Since Mr. Jones' business career here he has won the esteem of the entire neighborhood by his courteous manner and straightforward business tact. Mr. Smith needs no recommendation as he is well-known to the public, and we predict for this young man a successful and liberal patronage in his new adventure. He has engaged the services of L. MacFarlane, late of the firm, Miller, MacFarlane Co. The store will be known as The White Front. Watch for the ad next week.

CHURCH NOTES.

METHODIST CHURCH

J. W. Chapman occupied the pulpit morning and evening, last Sunday. The congregations both at Jarvis and Garnet were pleased to hear him speak and delighted to hear him sing.

Topic for to-night "Self-sacrifice and Missions." Mrs. George Irwin will lead the discussion. The monthly offering for missions will be received. Service at 7.30.

Mission Band will meet on Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m.

The Fellowship Meeting and Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be held at the close of the preaching service next Sunday morning. A meeting of the Trustee Board of the church will be held at 2 o'clock on Monday Feb. 5th and the usual meeting of the Quarterly Board at 3 o'clock the same afternoon.

Literary Meeting

Those who had the pleasure of attending the Literary Society meeting Friday evening at the Sunday School room of the Methodist church, enjoyed a treat. It was truly an "Ireland" evening, everything said or sung pretaining to Ireland. Speeches were delivered by Dr. Jaques, Rev. Arthur Clare Eddy, Dr. Howell, J. C. Campbell and Clifford Rodgers which were not only witty and interesting but instructive. Delightful Irish solos by Misses Ethel Snyder, Shirley Rodgers and Maud Parkinson, Dr. Howell and C. H. Nelson were rendered in a pleasing and appreciative manner. The reading of Misses Porter, Lizzie Cade and Marion Davidson were thoroughly enjoyed. The chair was occupied by C. H. Nelson, who filled it to the satisfaction of all. The next meeting will be held in the School room of the Presbyterian church on Friday evening, Feb. 9th. Subject under discussion "Resolved that man has greater influence than woman." Everybody welcome.

Communication

We wish it distinctly understood that articles under this head are "communicated" and the writer only is responsible for them. A newspaper is open to communications from its readers, but the editor does in no wise father these articles.—Editor.

Ricks' Forecasts for February.

The last regular storm period in January extends to 1st and 2nd of February. On these dates storms will have passed into the eastern sections, with cold and clearing weather in western parts. A seismic period is central on Feb. 2nd, covering 3 to 4 days before and after that date. Watch for general earthquake reports, not only at this, but every seismic period throughout the year. A reactionary storm period is central on the 4th, 5th and 6th. This period is at the center of the Mars equinoctial,, which falls on the 6th. The moon is on the celestial equator the same day. Low barometer, thunder, wind and rain will visit many sections, especially in the southern states, on and about the 6th, all to be followed by snow, rising barometer and change to much colder, the cold wave to penetrate far into the south and dominate the weather up to about the 9th and 10th.

Oyster Supper

The members of Court Jarvis No. 138 I.O.F., on the occasion of their regular meeting on Jan. 27th, enjoyed a rare treat, an invitation to an oyster supper, from their worthy brother Bryce Allen, at his comfortable home here. After freely partaking of the many good things provided the members repaired to the parlor where in a few well-chosen words Bro. Dr. Jaques expressed the great appreciation of the members of the Court and of the many good things provided by the host and and hostess, after which he presented Bro. Allen with a valuable Meerschaum pipe, together with some ammunition, from the members of the Court, as a slight token of their esteem. After a suitable reply from Bro. Allen the members returned to their Room, where the following officers were installed by Bro. J. B. Wilson: Bro. Guiler, C. R.; Bro. Rodgers, V.C.R.; Bro. Pond, R. S.; Bro. Johnson, F.S.; Bro. McMurchy, Orator; Bro. Mitchell, S. W.; Bro. Jones, S. B.; Bro. Awde, J. B.

Called Home

Jarvis mourns the death of three of her popular and highly esteemed residents. From day to day, even hour to hour we are reminded of the uncertainty and shortness of life and the nearness of the infinite beyond. It is with genuine sorrow that we chronicle the death of Mrs. James B. McMicken, her spirit winging its flight on Monday afternoon, as the clock tolled the hour of five. It seems almost incredible that she has passed from our vision as she was so bright and lively all last week. Mrs. McMickin has always enjoyed the best of health, scarcely knowing what it was to be ill, until a few days previous to her demise. On Saturday she never felt better and was down town both in the afternoon and evening. On Sunday she appeared to be in her usual health and did her household duties. About 8.30 o'clock she was reclining on a couch reading when she was seized with a stroke. Her husband rushed to her side and did everything possible. A physician was immediately summoned and she was removed to her bed. Although her left side was paralyzed she retained consciousness until Monday afternoon when she suffered another stroke at 3.30 and lapsed into unconsciousness from which she never rallied, finally passing in a sweet, peaceful sleep from which she never awakened, consequently her death ensued without a struggle. Her maiden name was Jane Ann Watson, being a daughter of the late Thomas Watson. She first saw the light of day in 1848 at Paris, Ont., and in the year 1874 she joined heart and hand with her now bereft husband. They moved to Jarvis and have resided here since. Before her marriage she was a member of the Presbyterian church, but since her marriage she united with the English church. She was a true friend and a loving wife, the happiness of whose home and the high esteem of whose friends reflect the influence of her many admirable traits of character. Besides her husband she leaves two brothers, T. G. Watson of Toronto and C. H. Watson of California. To the surviving friends, particularly the heart-broken husband, we offer our heartfelt sympathy in this dark hour of heavy sorrow and trust that God may give them strength to bear with patience the last and most severe affliction. The funeral takes place to-morrow at 2:00 to St. Pauls church for service and interment.

Veteran News Agent, Dead

The death occurred Wednesday evening of Edward Walter Hyde, for several decades a news agent on the Grand Trunk Railway. His face was a familiar one to travellers, and one and all had a kind word for him, for his unfailing courtesy. He was in his 76th year, but had been active in his duties until two years ago, when he retired from the road. A son of the late Thomas Hyde, and born in Barton Township in 1836, he had lived in Barton township or Hamilton all his life. As the popular and almost universally known news agent, Mr. Hyde has seen many changes on the Grand Trunk Railway His first run was from Goderich to Buffalo, on the old W. G. & B. line. For many years he had the run from Hamilton to Port Dover. Previous to his retirement he had been running from St. Thomas to Hamilton. Deceased was a member of Huron Lodge, I.O.O.F., of Goderich; A.O.U.W., of Hagersville, and the Canadian Order of Home Circle. He leaves a widow, one son and five daughters. Mr. Hyde was a familiar figure in Jarvis and highly respected by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance.

Death of Miss Higgins

"In the midst of life we are in death" The blow is too sudden and the shock yet too fresh to write with calmness of the event which last Wednesday saddened many hearts here. We refer to the sudden passing away of Miss Catharine Higgins. Miss Higgins, with her sister, had driven to Hagersville and on their return had stopped to called on Mrs. Columbus, who was staying with Mrs. Fitzgerald. She was in her usual health and while chatting was overcome with the heat. She revived a trifle but her heart refused to act and she died without a struggle. A physician was summoned but when he arrived she was beyond earthly aid. For the past few years Miss Higgins has not enjoyed robust health, she being afflicted with an affection of the heart, and at times her life hung in a balance. The best care and attention possible was bestowed upon her by loving hands and she was always attended when she did any shopping or visiting. Of a gentle and most amiable disposition, she endeared herself to all who knew her, consequently she was a most agreeable and entertaining companion, and withal, kind to all who were deserving of her consideration. She will be much missed and long and affectionately remembered in the community where she had spent most of her life. She was about 63 years of age. She is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Murphy, Cayuga; Mrs. John Hyland of Woodhouse; Ellen and Lizzie and brother John. The funeral took place from the residence of her brother on Saturday, Jan. 27th, at 9.30 a.m. to St. Ann's church for service and interment, the same being attended by a large number of sorrowing friends. We join with the many friends in extending our sympathy to the bereaved family.

Death of Ven. Archdeacon Belt, of Jarvis

This community was stirred on Monday when the distressing news was flashed over the wires from Hamilton that Ven. Archdeacon Alfred James Belt, had passed away at the city hospital. It came to his friends in Jarvis as a terrible shock. He had not enjoyed very good health for some months past and his physician advised an operation and just a week ago he went to the hospital and on Thursday submitted to the operation in the hope of receiving relief from the ailment from which he suffered but his system failed to withstand the shock and on Monday the curtain was run down on a useful and brilliant life. Archdeacon Belt was a native of York and was 55 years of age. He received his education at Trinity college from which he graduated with the degree of B.A. in 1879, carrying off the mathematical prize, and in 1884 he received his degree of M.A. He was made a deacon of the Anglican church by the late Bishop Fuller on May 23, 1880, and in April of the year following was made a priest. He was appointed missionary of Erin and the adjacent charge in 1880 and remained there for two years, when he was moved to Harrison where he served another four years and in 1890 went to St. James church, Guelph, where he remained for ten years. The next nine years he served at Milton, whence he removed to Jarvis of which church he was rector at the time of his death. He was rural dean of Wellington from 1887 to 1893, and again held the office in 1897. He was also rural dean of Halton in 1901 and was appointed Archdeacon of Wentworth and Haldimand on Sept 26, 1911. He was the author of ecclestastical historical chart showing the relative positions of the churches of Rome and England and a work entitled From Jerusalem to Jerusalem, as well as lectures on the church of England. We are thinking to day of the admirable moral qualities of him who not rests from his earthly labor. To say all in one word, Archdeacon Belt was a good man in the truest sense. By his genial manner, amiable disposition, business tact and consecration to his work, soon won the confidence and shared the affection of his people. Every charge on which he has labored bears testimony to his zealous and successful efforts and God blessed his labors. The proof that Mr. Belt was actuated by high motives and was an upright and good man is supplied not by this or that particular act, but by the whole course of his life. That life is now completed and the voice that had so often been raised in the promotion of Christ's kingdom is stilled by death. His life was clear and beautiful, for it was holy.

His sorrowing wife was a sister of T. D. J. Farmer, who with six sons, George of British Columbia; Percival of Toronto; James of Winnipeg, and Thomas, Donald and McKenzie at home, and one daughter Miss Laura at home, are the surviving members.

The Record with sadness desires to bear through these words the respectful sympathy to the widow, daughter and sons of our old friend.

The funeral takes place to-morrow (Thursday,) service to be held at the residence of Canon Bull, Hamilton, and interment will be made at Ancaster.
