The Village Frog

Under the lily pads and things
The big old bullfrog squats;
His greenish hide is thick, b'jings,
With warts and lumps and knots,
And when he swells himself and sings
His voice is rough in spots.

His thighs are thick and big and strong,
Yet he enjoys his ease;
And when the echoes of his song
Are borne upon the breeze
His normal slope, unless I'm wrong,
Is forty-eight degrees.

Week in, week out, from morn till night,
You can hear his bellows blow;
You can hear him sound his gong all right
With measured beat and slow,
Like a bruiser spoiling for a fight
When there isn't any foe.

On Sundays come the village boys,
With fishing poles, red rags,
And sticks and stones; and then his voice
Mysteriously lags.
He hides himself—he has no choice—
Down deep amid the flags.

Squatting, hiding, bellowing,
Onward through life he goes;
He eats a little; tries to sing,
And warbles through his nose.
He doesn't have to do a thing
To earn a night's repose.

Thanks, thanks to thee, my warty friend,
For the lesson thou has taught;
Thus, in the great frogpond of life,
Our fortunes must be wrought;
There's nothing else on earth to do
But keep from getting caught!

There is many a thing that people will buy if it is only suggested to them. There is many a thing that people want to buy, and would buy if they but knew where to get it, or what it would cost. The live seller is the one who knows how to whet the appetite of the buyer. You can say it to most peowle in this district by saying it in The Record.

An esteemed contempory takes occasion to remark that if fresh air were as dear as whiskey people would break their windpipes trying to corner all there was on the market of it. But just because fresh air is free, some people don't have enough care for it to ensure a sufficent supply for health. There is a good deal of force in the saying. The surest way to make something precious in the eyes of many people is to prohibit its use or put obstacles in the way of securing it.

A lot of cleaning and tidying up has been done during the past week, but there is yet some that should be attended to at once. There are three reasons for cleaning up the back yard just as soon as it can be done. The first is aesthetic, it will help to convert the unsightly into beautiful.. The second is sanitary; some of the garbage which has accumulated during the winter is disease breeding. The third in monetary; vegetables or grass can be grown upon the ground where now rests that which is unsightly and unsanitary.

There is an unhappy time ahead for the common house fly. Ere the season is over in this locality it is hoped their number will be reduced materially, much to the comfort and health of the community. It will not be the fault of The Record if such is not the case.

This is just the right size town to settle down in and enjoy life. Everything for the comfort of life can be bought here and $10 will go as far as $25 will in the large cities. When you want to leave the farm, come to our town and build a nice comfortable home and be among the best people in the world.

Rev. J. H. Ross and wife arrived in Jarvis last week from Chippawa. The reverend gentleman occupied the pulpit in the English church on Sunday. His sermons were full of interest and were very helpful indeed. We extend the welcomeing hand and may their toil in the Master's vineyard be fruitful and abundant and may all their efforts be crowned with glorious success.

And it came to pass that after he had advertised his goods there came unto him great multitudes from all the regions round about and did buy of him. And when his competitors saw it they marveled among themselves, saying: "How be it that this man is busy while we loaf idly about our doors?" And he spake unto them: "In this fast age of push and rustle it is easier for a camel to enter the eye of a needle than for a man to flourish without advertising."

While we beautify our gardens and premises we should not forget our relatives and friends who are at peaceful rest. There are more little mounds in our cemetery than residents in our town and it is fitting that our Silent City should be kept in order. None of us are too poor to plant a rose above the resting place of a relative or friend.

Whenever the country newspapers find foreigners invading the field of home merchants with goods and merchandise and selling them to farmers, they are asked to whack the intruders and advise the farmers to buy their goods of the home merchants. And when foreign printing houses send their representatives among the merchants and business men, many of these same merchants give them orders and get inferior work for their money. That's reciprocity.

Harnwell remains at Port Colborne and Rev. J. Wass at Beamsville. Rev. James M. Wright, who has been compelled by ill health to superanuate, will reside at Waterford.

Many people are passionately fond of watercresses. Care should be taken in preparing them for table to wash them thoroughly well. The stream from which they are picked may be infected with typhoid. Vegetables taken from such streams are better boiled whenever possible, but vegetables to be eaten green should be well cleansed. The first water used might be made soapy without any disagreeable results.

Owing to the increased cost of everything necessary for the publication of a newspaper, advertising rates are being boosted in many places. It is likely that on January 1st, 1913, most of the weekly papers of the province will be compelled to make a slight raise in the price of advertising space. Newspapermen are the last of all business men to increase rates to harmonize with the high cost of living and production, and a change will have to be made to prevent many of the smaller papers from going to the wall.

There are events occuring in every community which if reported in a local paper, would create a commotion little dreamed of. What to report and what not to report often perplexes the editor. He is often justly accused of cowardice and favoritism, when all the time he is looking towards the good reputation of the town where his lot is cast. The local editor from necessity almost constantly finds himself between two fires, and whichever way he turns he is sure to be utjustly treated. This is one of the pleasures of the newspaper business.

The telephone has broken the monotony and driven away the loneliness of country life. The rural districts are now a network of wires. Hill towns remote from the railroads have their local telephone lines with an exchange which is connected with the neighboring villages, and with the cities and towns hundreds of miles away by the great trunk lines. With the telephone, the improved roads, automobile and other modern improvements, there is no longer any reason why there should be a lack of sociability in the country.

Begin now to hunt the shady side of the street.

We hear and read a great deal these days on the fly swatting problem. But we wish also to draw attention to the careless habit of people who unthinkingly throw orange and bananna peal on the sidewalks. We cannot think a grown person would do this and it would be wise to warn the children as it is dangerous to both life and limb.

Miss L. Geisner, who was called to her home in Ridgetown Wednesday evening owing to the serious illness of her mother, returned Monday, her mother having improved a little. No farmer needs to carry a monkey wrench these days to make the pockets of his overalls bulge out. His roll of tens will do that. The Government is now minting gold five, ten and twenty dollar pieces so as to reduce the size and expense of storage for the farmer's profits. The cotton mills who have been kept busy making strong pockets for overalls will be glad of a little respite.

Yesterday R. A. McCarter had his mother out for an auto ride in his new Reo in honor of her eighty-second birthday. Mrs. McCarter some sixty-four years ago settled on Lot 1, Con. 9, Walpole, when the land was yet a forest and the conveyance was the lumber wagon and oxen or walk. Doubtless, at that time there was little thought of the horseless carriage. Other than failing memory Mrs. McCarter is quite well and active. The Record joins the many friends in wishing her many happy returns of the day.

JARVIS, ONT.

An unhappy wretch who has been caught preaches an eloquent sermon for morality.

How would it do to placard the children who have to stay away from school owing to sickness in the house.

"Stay on the land" is a better cry than "back to the land." If during the next decadem, all the boys who grow on the land, we will not need to worry much about growing centres. A boy born and raised on a farm, and who acquires an all-round practical knowledge of agriculture, it is worth more to the country if he stays on the land than half a dozen city people who may venture in and make more or less a failure of farming. There is however, room in this country for every boy raised on a farm to continue in the business, and for the city man, too, who may desire to change his occupation.

Nuptials

The first June wedding to be celebrated in Jarvis took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Edwards to-day (Wednesday,) the contracting parties being Wesley Edwards and Miss Gertie Jones of Rockford. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Arthur Clare Eddy, B.A., B.D. at 2 o'clock, in the presence of a few intimate friends. The bride looked very pretty in a gown of white silk and was attended by Miss Laura Smelser of St. Thomas. The groom was supported by Geo. Jones. After the ceremony all partook of a very dainty luncheon. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards will enjoy the honeymoon at St. Thomas and other points west. We extend hearty congratulation to the happy couple and trust their future may be bright, with many blessings.

A Day in June

It seems in all-including motherly kindness that nature spreads her great, unbrageous leaves over the hot, tired earth. Her brooding shade is ever cool and inviting. There is a soothing quietness in it that lulls the most restless into placid waking sleep and day dreams. The inspiring panorama of spring has passed. June is the month of immense activity in the world of nature—grandeur and bloom song and whistle of bird vie with each other in their almost ceaseless activity. The whole world stirs and pulsates. Only toward the end of the month and in early July will come those drowsy hours when the song of the bird is still and the chirp and thrill of insect life take its place. Never has there been a more leafy June and wild flowers are quite plentiful.

Fell From Car

The Hamilton Spectator of Friday says: "What might have been a very serious accident occurred shortly after 10 o'clock Thursday night, when Mrs. Ada Cave, 342 Catharine street north, slipped and fell while alighting from car No. 415, which was proceeding east on Barton street. The unfortunate woman's head struck the pavement and she was unconscious when picked up. The ambulance was hurriedly summoned and the injured woman taken to the waiting room of Hanrahan's hotel. Dr. Rennie rendered medical assistance and Mrs. Cave was removed to the city hospital. She recovered consciousness about midnight and inquiries this morning elicited the information that while she was suffering greatly from shock, her injuries were not of a serious nature." Mrs. Cave was a former resident of this place and resided in the house now occupied by Wm. Machell. Her many friends will regret to learn of her accident.

Take Notice

Application has this day been made for to transfer the tavern license now held by Conrad Wendland, of the Village of Jarvis, County of Haldimand, to F. M.
