CHEESE PUDDING.

Butter a baking dish and lay thin slices of bread on the bottom and sides. Over the bread lay slices of American cheese. Season with salt and cayenne pepper, and add a pinch of baking soda. Repeat till the dish is full, and then pour on milk enough to just cover, and grate cheese over th top. Bake it in a hot oven for about half an hour, and serve at once.

CREAMED CODFISH AND EGGS.

Soak one cupful of flaked codfish in two cupfuls of hot water; drain, and add one cupful of hot milk; set over the fire and cook until the milk is creamy and reduced to one-fourth its quantity. Beat four eggs until light; add a speck of salt and one-half cupful of cream or rich milk; turn into the double boiler and cook just long enough to coagulate the albumen of the eggs, stirring constantly. Remove the eggs from the hot water, and blend lightly with the fish. Serve on slices of buttered toast.

Make a custard from the yokes of five eggs, one cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, the yolks of five eggs and three cupfuls of milk. Strain, add one pound of figs finely chopped, cool and add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of vanilla. Add the whites of five eggs beaten until stiff, and one and one-half cupfuls of heavy cream beaten until stiff. Freeze (using three parts of finely-crushed ice to one part of rock salt) and then carefully mold.

DATE PIE.

Cook one-third of a pound of sugar dates with two cupfuls of milk for 20 minutes in the top of a double boiler. Strain and rub through a sieve, then add two eggs and one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt and a few gratings of nutmeg. Bake in a quick oven at first to set rim, decrease the heat afterward, as the egg and milk in combination need to be cooked at a low temeprature.

CORNMEAL GRIDDLE AND CAKES.

Beat two eggs light, and stir into them a teaspoonful, each, of salt and baking soda—the latter dissolved in a tablespoonful of boiling water—two tablespoonfuls of molasses, and one tablespoonful of melted butter or lard. Now beat in alternately a quart of buttermilk and a half-cupful of flour. When smooth and free from lumps beat in enough cornmeal to make a good batter. Try a spoonful on the griddle, and if too thin add more cornmeal.

RICE AND CHEESE FRITTERS.

Heat over boiling water one cupful of cold boiled rice and add to it two tablespoonfuls of milk or cream. When it is soft, add one beaten egg and one-half cupful of grated cheese. Beat it thoroughly, and then add add one tablespoonful of baking powder. Drop small portions into hot butter and fry quickly until it is a light brown on both sides. Serve very hot.

FRUITS IN BLANC-MANGE BORDER.

Put two ounces of gelatine into three pints of water and let it boil for half an hour; then strain it into one and a half pints of cream and sweeten it. Flavor in accordance with the fruit to be used, boil up once, let it settle, and turn it into a border mould wet with cold water. When firm, turn the blanc mange out on a flat dish and heap preserved fruit in the space in the centre. Almost any preserver fruit can be used in this way.

STUFFED EGGS.

Boil six eggs for twenty minutes. After taking off the shells, cut a little piece from one end of each egg, so that it will stand upright. Then cut each egg across the middle, with a little melted butter, anchovy paste and a dash of pepper. Stuff the eggs with this and put the two halves of each together again. Put them in a baking dish and set in the oven for a few minutes. When they are hot pour a brown sauce over them and serve.

THE FLOWER OF THE MONTH.

We have native hawthorns.
But we prefer the English sort.
We love the offsprings of old hedgerows.
We venerate the hawthorn's namesake Mayflower.
The hawthorn is a member of the great apple family.
Its dainty double little blossoms are exquisitely pinky.
And its foliage is ovate, sharply cut and picturesque.
Strangely enough its odor doesn't kcompare with its beauty.
In fairly lore it has played a delightfully conspicuous part.
And it has figured in the annals of beauty:
"The fair maid who, the first of May,
Goes to the fields at break of day
And washes in dew from the hawthorn tree,
Will ever after handsome be."

THE PACE.

(Puck.)

The rhinoceros surveyed the world complacently. "After all, I set the pace, in a manner of speaking," quoth he.

Whereat the other beasts burst out laughing.

"Well, it's a fact," the rhinoceros insisted. "Tell me, please, where would civilization be if it were not for men with hides like mine?

AEROPLANE PROPELLERS.

On the face of it it would not seem that the making of an aeroplane propeller would call for much expert workmanship, but a great deal of attention is given to the manufacture of this part. The blades consist of several boards of well-seasoned oak. These are secured together face to face, and after the cement has been given time to set thoroughly the blades are carved therefrom, the angles to be followed and the weight of the blades to be in accordance with the special demands. Each board forms a part of each of the blades and a hole is bored through them all to receive the hub. After this has been done the ends are pared away carefully until a point of perfect balance is reached. This work proceeds very carefully, for the accidental removal of too much material from any part of the blades means the ruination of the whole work.

TEACHING MORALITY BY MACHINERY.

If the plans of a group of public-spirited educators are carried out, there is soon to be a nation-wide organization for teaching morality by machinery. The device used is none other than the familiar stereopticon—with slides that point a moral as well as adorn a tale. The idea has long been in practise in the schools of Baltimore, and, according to Superintendent Van Sickle, has been extended during four years to the entire United States. 150,000 boys and girls in schools and churches have seen these illustrated lessons in morals. The five sets of slides that have been used thus far are entitled, "Gentlemen," "Personal and National Thrift," "The True Sportsman," "What I Am Going to Do When I Am Grown Up," and "What Men Think About Boys' Fights." It would appear that the men and women back of this movement have hit upon an excellent idea, for visual instruction always has a peculiarly telling effect upon boys and girls.—From Success Magazine.

RID TOWN OF NIGHT PROWLERS.

Jasper Pike and Harry Stevenson, of Camden, made $200 recently by practically ridding Camden of night howling cats, but they landed in jail through their ingenuity and each had to pay a $5 fine. The young men rigged up a cat trap and baited it with a piece of shad. As the felines essayed to reach the fish the floor of the trap would give way and they were precipitated into a hogshead of water. The young men caught sixty-five cats in one night, but one of the cats was a pet and its mistress caused the arrest of the young men. But Camden sleeps at night now.—Fairport Herald.

SMOKE WAR 600 YEARS AGO.

We are accustomed to think of the smoke nuisance as a modern phenomenon, but Prof. V. B. Lewes shows that it raised so much indignation in England 600 years ago that a decree was made forbidding the use of bituminous coal for fuel. Such fuel was then a new thing.

In the time of Queen Enizabeth another attempt to use bituminous coal was defeated by public opposition to the smoke. The third effort attained complete success in the nineteenth century and now the quantity of smoke belched into the air is so great that Prof. Lewes likens it to a cumulative poison which sids in shortening life, killing vegetation and beginning and destroying buildings.—Youth's Companion.

Mexican Women Pray at Shrine for Peace.

To pray to the Virgin of Guadalupe that trouble may cease and the revolution come to a speedy end a large number of the leading society women of this capital went to the famous chapel on the hill just at sunrise yesterday morning.

Two special trains, leaving the city at 6 o'clock a.m., bore these ladies to the pretty suburb and brought them back after their devotions had been completed. Pilgrimages to the shrine of Guadalupe have been common in the Valley of Mexico ever since the banner of the first Roman Catholic Church floated over its fields and lakes, yet this was probably one of the most distinguished parties that ever made the trip.

Earnestly they sought the shrine of the Virgin Mary of Mexico and there poured forth their prayers and their supplications that trouble might pass out of the land and peace reign from the north to the south and between the two seas.

New Treatment for Throat and Lungs

Almost exploded is the old theory of treating Bronchitis, catarrh and nasal troubles by stomach medicines. The cause of these diseases is carried by air to their final lodgment in the throat, nose or bronchial tubes. You can't send dhy or liquid drugs to such remote places, but you can inhale the soothing balms and healing vapor of Catarrhozone and thereby at once get relief. Thousands use only Catarrh for colds, hawking, sore throat, nasal throat and bronchial catarrh. Satisfaction guaranteed, 25c, 50c and $1.00 sizes. Refuse any substitute for Catarrhozone, which is guaranteed to cure.

Guard for Children's Eyesight.

"Force the children to take back seats at the moving picture show," is the advice of an English authority, who says that no child should be allowed to sit nearer than thirty feet away from the curtain.

"Children as a rule like to crowd down to the front of the show and the parent sees no cause for objection. But parents are marking the ill effects of the flickering shadow pictures ignorant of the fact that the nearer the child is to the front the worse the effect upon the immature eye. As many parents accompany their children to these shows, let them force the children to take back seats, thirty or forty feet back, if possible. It would be even a better idea if the management of these shows would prescribe a line beyond which the child would not be allowed to sit. For a nation of defective eyes may be expected if something isn't done along this line of reform."—Chicago Tribune.

THE ONLY MEDICINE FOR THE BABY.

Such a medicine is Baby's Own Tablets — every box box is sold under such a guarantee and the mother may feel perfectly safe in giving them to even the new-born babe. Concerning them Mrs. Albert E. Wood, London, Ont., says: "I have found Baby's Own Tablets all that is claimed for them. My baby has had them from birth and will take them eagerly. I am sure there is no better medicine for little ones." The Tablets are sold by Medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE CORONATION OF GEORGE V.

Statesmen and soldiers from every part of the vast British Empire will meet in London at this time and symbolize in their presence the dazzling diversity of King George's foreign possessions. Among the colored potentates who have signified their intention to be present are the Maharajah of Jeypore, the Maharajah of Nabha, the Rajah of Sikkim, the Maharajah of Jubbulpore, the Ahkoond of Hyderabad, the Sultan of Perak, the Chief of the Solomon Islands, the King of the Yonnis and the Jam of Navanagar. These dark-skinned rulers, with their satin robes of all the colors of the rainbow, and their pearls and diamonds, will add much to the brilliancy and interest of the spectacle, which will cost the British nation some twenty-five million dollars, to say nothing of huge private expenditure.

In addition to these picturesque figures of the procession, there will be gold miners, backwoodsmen and other pioneers of the empire, aborigines from Australia, Maoris from New Zealand, Indians from Canada, and Hindus from India; members of the semi-civilized tribes from the Fiji Islands, colored warriors from the Matabele and Bechuanaland territories of British Africa, Eskimos from the frozen north, and Chinamen from the Malay Peninsula. There will be royal personages from all the courts of Europe, and the mayors of all the principal cities of the British Empire will attend. In the hundreds of thousands of spectators every nation and territory between the two poles will be represented. Thus during the last fortnight of June and the early days of July London will be the capital not only of the British Empire, but of all the world. —P. Harvey Middleton on "Coronations Past and Present," in May Columbian.

A CLOSE SHAVE.

David Warfield, the actor, was describing his European trip. The best thing I saw was the Milan Cathedral," he said. "The worst was the English barber. The English barber uses a dull razor. He lathers your nostrils and your lips. He brushes your hair with a revolving brush that runs by machinery.

"I'll never forget my first experience of a London barber shop. It was a dim, stuffy room. I sat in a straight-backed chair. The barber, though his razor was dull, cut me three times.

"'Will you have a close shave, sir?' he asked, after going over my face once.

"I wiped a few ruddy drops from my chin.

"'If I get out of this chair alive,' I said, severely, 'I shall certainly consider it such.'"—Metropolitan Magazine.

NEW GOULD STORY.

George Gould was making one of his last trips as president of the Missouri Pacific. His private car was laid out on a siding for some reason or other, and he got out to stretch his legs. An old Irishman was tapping the wheels. Gould went up to him.

"Morning. How do you like the wheels?"

"Not worth a darn," said the Irish-

"Well, how do you like the car?"

"It's good enough for the wheels."

"What do you think of the road?"

"It matches the car."

Gould looked at the old chap for a minute.

"Maybe you don't know who I am."

"Yes, I do," retorted the Irishman. "You're George Gould, and I knew your father when he was president of the road. And, by gob, he's going to be president of it again?"

"Why, my father is dead," said Mr. Gould.

"I know that," replied the Irishman, "and the road is going to where he is." —Chicago Tribune.

VEGETARIAN CHEESE EATERS.

We know of an ardent vegetarian who keeps a supply of cheese in a desk in his business office, from which he helps himself liberally and frequently during the day; thus nature replenishes the supply of protein supposed to be denied her.

Many Americans seem to think that the value of cheese has just been disclosed to the world by the Department of Agriculture, with its protein content almost twice that of meat and its un common absorbability.

For ages the Italians, the Iberians and other peoples who are largely vegetarian not from choice but from dire necessity have been scattering grated cheese over their macaroni and in their maigre soups and have thus cheaply met the craving for the highly nitrogenized foods.

The egg is another permitted indulgence to many vegetarians from sentiment; it is also largely proteid, over 11 per cent. It is whispered that sometimes dishes of the vegetarian menu are flavored with meat extract, which supplies a savory element not otherwise to be obtained. Nature may not have a sense of humor, but she is strong for her rights.—From the New York Medical Journal.

THE VERSATILE VELASQUEZ.

"There's many a true word spoken by accident." F. H. Smith, the artist, says: "I dropped in at a picture sale. The auctioneer displayed a daub and said:

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, what am I offered for this superb Velasquez, probably the bes Velasquez that ever came from the master's hand?"

"There were no bids whatever, so the auctioneer took up another picture.

"'Very well, ladies and gentlemen,' he went on, 'I now offer you a Titian by the same artist.'"—From London Opinion.

LOBSTER MAGNATES OF MAINE.

One reason for the high price of lobsters is that the fishermen did not care to expose themselves to the hardships of keeping out their traps during the winter season. Eleven per cent. of the lobstermen have been fishing during the winter season, and even thes set but 40 per cent. of their traps. Lobster fishermen are the aristocrats of the Maine sea coast; they co-operate, with headquarters at Monhegan, and one of the Monhegan fishermen, it is said, goes to California every winter with his wife. Lobsters are down to 25 cents a pound because the high price has set the fishermen a-going, and by Saturday night one may get lobsters without mortgaging his house.—From the Lewiston Journal.

DIAZ AS A TYRANT.

What is it that the Mexican revolutionists ask for, and what do trey propose to do following their inevitable triumph, which is already so close at hand? The world has long been deceived in regard to the true internal conditions in Mexico. The peace which has reigned in my country has been an artificial, a mechanical one, imposed by the force of arms and never caused by satisfaction in the hearts of the people. General Diaz had the popularity of a soldier who had defended the country from French invasion. Elected to power by means of a revolution the people flocked around him. He promised great reforms, unanimously desired throughout the country. He offered to enforce the laws. His assumption of the Presidency augured an era in which the legitimate rights and liberties of the people would be respected.

Porfirio Diaz did not fulfil his promises. The greater the docility of the people who confided in him, the greater became his arrogance, the greater his oppression. In these modern times there is no head of a state on the globe—Emperor, Czar or Sultan—who has gathered to his hands such an amount of power as has Porfirio Diaz. He has constituted himself the seignor and master of everything and everyone in Mexico. We have a fine constitution, for the establishment of which, half a century ago, the people of Mexico struggled for three years. That constitution is a dead letter, and General Daz substituted himself personally for which the constitution establishes. He is the executive, the judicial and the legislative power. While in Mexico there are so-called Deputies, so-called Senators, so-called Governors, so-called Judges and magistrates of justice, all of these, each and every one, are really appointed by the dictator and none is elected by the people. All of the public officers of the regime of Diaz consult his wishes as to what they are to do. In the fulfilment of their duties they are puppets on a stage, hanging from wires which are manipulated by the hand of the operator.—Gustavio A. Madero in Leslie's.

SWITZERLAND'S WATER-POWER.

It is estimated that Switzerland now utilities a greater proportion of its available water-power than any other country. The total estimated power available from streams in the Swiss part of the Alps is 1,200,000 horse-power. Of this 400,000 was employed at the end of 1908, and early in the presetn year the amount will, it is believed, have risen to 700,000 or nearly 60 per cent. of the whole.

MINISTERS AND BASEBALL.

(Nagara Falls, N. Y., Journal.)

The minister, of course, has just as much right to be interested in baseball as anybody else, although it is certain that the bleachers is a place where at least one of the Commandments is very generally violated when the home team begins to "go up in the air," or when the umpire gives the other team the benefit of the doubt. The Missouri minister ought to have selected, not Detroit, but Denver, where they not only have good ball, but a Sunday School Baseball League, a sweet, in which Methodists, Presbyterians and Baptists strive mightily for the ecclesiastical pennant.

THE BURGLAR'S HOURS.

Nearly all burglars get in, not through the door, which the householder is so careful to bolt and chain, but through the window. In London in one year 367 burglars got through windows, fifteen through fanlights and eleven by "breaking out." False keys were used twenty-five times. The favorite hours are 2 to 6 in the morning. The householder falls into his soundest sleep about an hour after dozing off and is least likely to hear a burglar, say, between 1 and 3 o'clock. But the policeman on duty must be growing tired by cock crow, and that seems why the burglar selects the later hours.

The housebreaker chooses either the very early morning, when the family is likely to be out, or the dinner hour, when persons are not apt to be thinking about him. Between 6 and 8 o'clock in the morning there are 383 cases of housebreaking. Then during the next five hours, from 8 to 10 o'clock, the total is only 114.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

THE SKIN AS A SHIELD.

Recent experiments by Dr. Engel at Nanheim show how perfect is the protection afforded by the normal skin against the invasion of liquids and gases and of dissolved mineral and organic elements. His results seem to render it questionable whether any elements dissolved in water can markedly penetrate the tissues beneath the unbroken skin even after prolonged baths. The absorption of gases and volatile elements is more pronounced, but Dr. Engel doubts whether the quantity of mendicaments thus imbibed is sufficient to insure any real therapeutical efficacy. But he thinks it probable that methods may be perfected for the introduction of known quantities of radio-active emanations into tumore by the process of electrolytic dissociation.

ILLINOIS PUNSTERS AT WORK.

When Axel Conrad Lemon left the Circuit of Winnebago County he believed he had heard the last of puns on his name and gibes which had caused him anguish since the slang application became popular. His hope, says the Bloomington correspondent of the St. Louis Republic, was based on the fact that Judge Frost, of Lemon's request, had just changed his name to Lemont.

"So the court handed you one, did he?" an acquaintance asked as Lemon left the court room.

"I see the court has become a Lemonaid," another chirped. "I don't see why the court, himself having become a beverage, should create another by adding 't' to his name.

"Well, don't get sour about it," a third said. "First thing you know you'll be looking seedy. No use to show the yellow and peel your eye for trouble."

WEEPING DECIDUOUS TREES.

Each lawn should have one.

They are loveliest beside a babbling brook.

The weeping willow (native of Palestine) is a delight.

A native willow is said to be a trifle more hardy.

Large leaves are a feature of the symmetrical weeping elm.

Among the rapid-growing weepers is the European weeping ash.

The weeping beech attains a height of 20 or 30 feet, and is slow in a hurry.

A white bark and delicately cut leaves distinguish the cut-leaved weeping birch.

ELECTROCUTED EGGS.

It is posible that the peculiar taste of a cold-storage egg, which is something not easy to mistake, may be removed if experiments now being made b yan electrical company are successful. Says The Inventive Age: "It is claimed that when fresh eggs are placed in cold storage the eggs are alive; that they are slowly frozen to death, and that in spite of the preservation qualities of the ice, the eggs do not taste good when cooked. It is now believed that by electrocuting the eggs the natural fresh taste may be rtained and not remove when the eggs are placed in cold storage. The eggs are "killed" by placing a metal cap on each end of the egg and then throwing on a pressure of 100 volts.
