Nasal Discharge Proves Catarrh is Active

THE PURE BALSAMIC ESSENCES OF CATARRHOZONE AFFORD SUREST AND QUICKEST CURE.

Catarrhozone is certain to cure because its healing vapor is carried with the breath direct to the seat of the chest, nose or throat trouble. Being composed of the purest balsams and pine essences, it immediately allays irritations, facilitates the ejection of mucus, soothes and stimulates the lungs and bronchial tubes. The marvel of the age in curing winter ills—that's what thousands say about Catarrhozone. There is nothing so sure to cure, and to those in fear of changeable weather—those who easily catch cold—those who work among lung-chilling surroundings, or where dust, impure air, fog or damp can affect them—let them get Catarrhozone and use it several times daily—it will cure every time.

BAD CASE CURED IN TWO DAYS.

"I was unfortunate enough to catch a bad cold from sitting in a draught in my bare head," writes Miss Nora E. Jemieson, well known in Sangre Grande, Td. "An acute condition of catarrh developed in my nostrils, and for three days my eyes and nose ran most copiously. The usual remedies entirely failed to relieve. I read in The Mirror newspaper about Catarrhozone, and sent to Smith Bros.' drug store for a dollar outfit. In two days Catarrhozone cleared out my nostrils, cured the sneezing, coughing, and all traces of catarrh."

Large size Catarrhozone, sufficient for two months' use, guaranteed, price $1.00; smaller sizes, 25c and 50c. Beware of imitations, and substitutors, and insist on getting "Catarrhozone" only. By mail from the Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

THE DOGS OF FLANDERS.

Dogs to the French peasant are what horses are to the American farmer. They assist in many ways on the farm, pull the produce to market and deliver the milk from the dairy. Fortunately for them, their lives are controlled by constitutional laws, which prohibit the whip and the carrying of human cargo. Although this law does not always prevent the lazy messenger boy from imposing on his dumb companion, it will be seen that the Government endeavors to supress any attempt at cruelty. In appearance they are a cross between a mastiff and a Newfoundland dog, sturdy and intelligent. To an English eye there is no more picturesque sight than a couple of these handsome dogs harnessed to a miniature cart laden with milk cans, whilst its master—a Flemish boy, with crude wooden sabots—waiks lazily alongside.— Wide World Magazine.

A SHOWING UP.

P. F. Willis, of Dallas, the leader of the Texas delegates to the Associated Advertising Clubs' convention in Boston, was condemning dishonest advertising.

"The dishonest advertiser," he said, "gets shown up in the long run. He fares the same as Gus Blake.

"Gus Blake was a trolley conductor. One day when the car was crowded a gentleman halted Gus in the aisle and said, extending a nickel:

"'Here you are, my man.'

"'But, sir,' said Gus, in an astonished tone, 'you paid before.'

"The gentleman then frowned and said in a very loud, stern voice:

"'Yes, I know, but this is fo rthe company.'"

THE MYSTERIES.

We are embosomed in dearful mysteries. We stand related to that which is highest and greatest in the universe; and though we may be frivolous, we become conscious that life is not frivolous, but most serious and earnest. And, then, too, trailing in its dread shadow across the skies, comes over us the idea of death. One companion after another is taken away, till we almost look into the open gates of eternity. In a few years we must pass the dread boundary. What is there beyond? The eye sees not, the mind falls back appalled from before the clouded mystery.

We can hear the beating of the surf, the faint murmur of the sea on whose dark waters we must soon embark. But what doom is beyond, who shall declare? We feel that our hope in that untrodden eternity must depend on having wills and inclinations submitted to the will of Him who is over all. Whatever is best in the human heart, and grandest in human relations, and most awful in human destiny, declares the necessity of the Christian heart and life. —Ephraim Peabody.

AN AVERAGE.

A Western Representative in Congress was talking one day of his record while in that body. "I'm not ashamed of it," said he. "I think I've done very well, on the whole. When I reflect upon it I am reminded of an epitaph that I saw once in an old burying-ground in a country town of my State.

"This epitaph devoted a verse of four lines to the virtues of the good man who lay beneath the stone, and concluded with this line in prose:

"'He averaged well for this vicinity.'" —Lippincott's.

FIXING UP FURNITURE.

Revarnishing and Renovating in Order at This Season.

To remove old varnish use alcohol, and in stubborn places fine sharp emery or sand paper.

To remove ink from furniture wipe the spots with oxalic acid; let it stand a few minutes and then rub well with a cloth wet in warm water.

To remove whitish marks resulting from placing hot dishes on the table, pour kerosene on the spot and rub it hard with a soft cloth. Then pour a little spirits of wine or cologne water on it and rub dry with another cloth.

When stain is desired on an article always apply it before the first coat of varnish. Never attempt to mix the stain with the varnish itself.

To get best results apply three coats of varnish to plain surfaces, wearing the first two coats down smoothly (this means very lightly) with the finest sandpaper, the third coat being allowed to set in its lustre.

To take out bruises wet the parts with warm water; double a piece of brown paper several times and lay it over the bruise, and on this apply a warm but not hot flatiron till the moisture is evaporated. Sometimes it is necessary to repeat the process before the rent is raised to the surface.

TELLING A STORY.

(Montreal Herald.)

In comment upon a recent marriage between a Protestant and a Catholic, performed in this city by a Protestant minister, a paragraph has been going the rounds of the Ontario and Maritime press declaring that "under the laws of Quebec, as interpreted by the judges of the courts of that Province, this marriage is invalid."

This is a common misunderstanding of the situation. There is no judicial decision on record in this Province regarding the legal validity of a "mixed" marriage. The Hebert case, where the marriage was annulled, concerned two Catholics who were married by a Protestant minister and involved a different point of law. It is true that the Catholic Church regards a marriage of any Catholic invalid unless performed by a Catholic clergyman, but the law of Quebec has not given this decree legal status. In fact, a case of that kind has not yet come before the courts for decision.

UMBRELLAS DRIVE OUT CANES.

Unless it was raining, the umbrella used to be the badge of middle age, the indication of a serious mind; the token, one might almost say, of the Sabbath. But in the last ten years the umbrella habit has surreptitiously stolen on the majority of the inhabitants of these islands, and has become so much of a custom that no one notices it. The holiday maker carries a stick on his country walks, but the young man about town no longer wields a cane by day and a crutch to go with his opera hat by night. He carries instead the modern umbrella, a slender, elegant implement, less sturdy than a cane. Early in the present year the stick, encouraged by the summer and the sun, setemed on the verge of a revival. Gay young whangees, brilliant penangoes, steady old malaccas came out from hiding and, disporting themselves in the best circles, challenged the long supremacy of the umbrella. But with the autumn rains they are going back to their shelter, and a wet winter, we fear, will establish the umbrella habitt on a firmer base than ever.—From the London Graphic.

A FINE SIGHT

A prominent New York gentleman, who has made a sojourn in Canada at the Laurentian Club, Lac-La-Peche, P. Q., in a letter addressed to Grand Trunk headquarters, says

"I have been over the new Transcontinental Line as far as Parent, five miles from the end of steel, and thoroughly enjoyed the opportunity of seeing this portion of your line. It is the same high standard of construction through a difficult country, most of the time, affording the expected comfort of travel even now. The whole territory is studded with fine lakes and rivers, and will surely open up like this at the Laurentian Club."

Locomotive for Panama Canal.

The Isthmian Canal Commission will shortly advertise for bids for an experimental towing locomotive for towing steamers through the locks of the Panama Canal. Should this machine be successful, says the Scientific American, bids will be asked for thirty-nine more. Four locomotives will be used for each vessel, one on each bow and one on each quarter. The locomotives will run on rack railways, and they will be sufficiently powerful to hold the largest vessel in absolute control.

BEWARE OF BLOOD-POISON

Zam-Buk Is A Sure Cure.

Mr. Jas. Davey, of 786 Elgin avenue, Winnipeg, says: "A few months since I was cured of a poisoned finger through the timely use of Zam-Buk.

"I cut a deep gash across the knuckle on the first finger of my right hand in opening a lobster can. I suffered at the time with the soreness and pain, but had no idea it would become a serious wound. However, in about two days I was greatly alarmed, as my whole hand and arm to the elbow became suddenly inflamed, and the finger was much discolored, showing signs of blood-poisoning. The pain was dreadful and I was forced to leave off my work and go home.

"The wound on the knuckle had been poisoned by dust and dirt getting into it. I then decided to start the Zam-Buk treatment, and having first bathed the cut, I applied the healing balm. It soothed the pain almost instantly, and by next day there was a great improvement.

"In a week's time, through perseverance with this wonderful preparation, a complete cure was brought about."

Zam-Buk is just as good for eczema, ulcers, scalp sores, abscesses, piles, ringworm, boils, varicose ulcers, running sores, cold sores, chapped hands, etc. It draws all poisonous foulness from a wound or sore and then heals. Use it too, for cuts, burns, bruises and all skin injuries. Zam-Buk Soap should be used in conjunction with the balm for washing wounds and sore places. Excellent, too, for baby's bath.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c box and Zam-Buk Soap at 25c tablet. Post free upon receipt of price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

"NOTHING BUT LEAVES."

As if that weren't enough!
And what could be more beautiful?
Forests groan with their lovely foliae.
Gorgeous leaves flutter on the radiant trees.
Dried leaves rustle crisply as one walks through them.
Fluttering leaves fill the air as they sift gently earthward.
Some of the oaks show red leaves of tremendous magnificence.
Is there a more exquisite red than that which is shown on the maples?
The chestnuts halt between their original greens and yellow and russet hues.
Bewitching red shades are to be admired among the leaves on the dainty dogwoods.
Seen in the distance these leaves of the forest are also exquisite, hazy purpling shades of brown, red, gold and green.

FOLLOWED THE FASHION.

(New York Sun.)

The wearied searcher for apartments in Manhattan had ended his hunt. When he anounced the result to a friend he delivered himself in this epigram:

"There are just two kinds of apartments in New York, those you can't afford to live in, and those you wouldn't live in anyhow."

"What did you do?" asked the friend.

"Or," said the searcher's wife, "we followed New York fashion and took one we couldn't afford to live in."

PROVINCES PRODUCING SHINGLES.

(Forestry Press Bulletin, No. 35.)

The production of shingles increases steadily in Canada, and in a bulletin to be published by the Forestry branch of the Department of the Interior this is shown, together with the relative importance of the provinces for 1910. Compared with the Canadian lumber cut, the entire shingle industry amounted to less than the value of each of the five most important species—spruce, white pine, Douglas fir, hemlock and cedar—during 1910. Considered separately, the shingle production assumes considerable importance, especially in British Columbia. This province is far in advance of the eastern provinces as a shingle producer, and made up approximately half of the Canadian 1910 production of nearly two billion shingles, worth over three and a half million dollars. Over one-quarter of the shingles were manufactured in Quebec, where the five hundred and thirty-nine million pieces reported were an increase of sixty per cent. over the 1909 amount. Ontario and New Brunswick produced nearly equal amounts in 1910, one-tenth of the Canadian production being from each of these provinces. Ninety-eight per cent. of the total production was in the above four provinces, although shingles are made in every province of the Dominion. Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan, Prince Edward Island, Alberta and Manitoba together produced two per cent. of the total. The average price of shingles in 1910 was $1.80 per thousand, the values ranging from $1.51 for shingles in Nova Scotia to $2.27 in Saskatchewan.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

(New York Press.)

Politics begins at the exact spot where principles leave off.

A girl who marries a man to reform him usually has to support his children as well.

What makes a girl believe in the brains of a man she loves is for him not to have any.

A woman can rent a bungalow for six weeks for $40 and speak of it as her country estate.

A trip around the world, meeting only strangers, isn't half as much to a woman as three hours in an opera box with friends down in the dress circle to see her.

A NEW MOUNTAIN WORLD

As further particulars are received from the exploration party under Mr. A. O. Wheeler, director of the Canadian Alpine Club, regarding their recent expedition over the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway through the Canadian Rocky Mountains, it is known that the new Transcontinental Railway will be able to offer to its patrons the finest scenery of any of the Transcontinental railways in America.

In the last report received the territory in the vicinity of the head waters of the Athabasca and Whirlpool Rivers is touched upon, and are, Mr. Wheeler states, opening up a field for exploration and research, mountaineering and camping that is absolutely new, and of which practically nothing is known. This group of mountains is magnificent. It rises approximately to 12,000 feet above sea level, and shows contours of the wildest and boldest possible forms. Immense snow fields and huge glaciers are everywhere. Boldest and most inaccessible rise the awful black precipices of Mount Gaikie, the central point of the group. Again to the south are an endless array of peaks, towers, pyramids, domes, castles and ramparts in bewildering confusion.

An attempt was made to identify the much-talked-of giants, Columbia, Bryce, Lyall, Forbes, etc., but in the chaotic whole it could not be done with any certainty.

A PARDONABLE MISTAKE.

"The cold weather is coming on, and we shall soon se some very remarkable cold weather motoring suits."

"I'll be glad when cold weather motoring clothes are made more sightly. They give us such a shaggy look now, don't they." Did you ever hear about the performing bear?

"Well, a country hotel, a good deal frequented by motorists, took in a showman and his performing bear, and one morning the bear escaped from the stable.

"Everybody fled before the animal. The hotel man, however pursued it courageously. It entered the hotel, mounted the stairway, pushed open a bedroom door and vanished.

"Then the hotel man, close behind, heard from the bedroom an angry exclamation in a feminine voice and the words:

"'George, dear, how often have I forbidden you to come into my rom without knocking—and in your automobile coat, too."—Washington Star.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bedwetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

THE RED CRESCENT.

Among the nations of Europe Turkey is the only one which flies no Red Cross in time of war. Though a party to the Geneva convention, Turkey has steadfastly refused to use the emblem of that convention, the Greek Cross, to protect its sick and wounded in time of war. In place of the cross the Turkish army cent on a white ground, but this departure from the recognized international emblem has never received the sanction of the nations signatory to the Geneva convention. There is little doubt that Italy will look on the crescent as equivalent to the red cross.—Westminster Gazette.

ENCORES.

One will notice, if he watches closely, that the second recall of a performer at a concert or theatre is generally by those persons who are not conspicuous for their god sense or influence. They don't seem to think that the large majority of the audience wants the programme to proceed as it is set down, and is completely satisfied with one recall. An encore is right, but the abuse of it, which is so common, should be suppressed. A second, third, fourth encore is not necessarily a compliment. A winking danseuse in vaudeville always gets that.—Columbus Journal.

THE MONK AND HIS CAT.

Pangur, my white cat, and I,
Silent ply our special crafts;
Hunting mice his one pursuit,
Mine to shoot keen spirit shafts.

Rest I love, all Fame beyond,
In the bond of some rare book;
Yet while Pangur from his play
Casts, my way, no jealous look.

Thus alone within one cell
Safe we dwell—not dull the tale—
Since his ever favorite sport
Each to court will never fail.

Now a mouse to swell his spoils
In his toils he spears with skill;
Now a meaning deeply thought
I have caught with startled thrill.

Now his green full-shining gaze
Darts its rays against the wall;
Now my feebler glances mark
Through the dark bright knowledge fall.

Leaping up with joyful purr,
In mouse fur his sharp claw sticks;
Problems difficult and dear
With my spear I, too, transfix.

Crossing out each other's will,
Diverse stoll, yet still allied,
Following each his own lone ends,
Constant friends we here abide.

Pangur, master of his art,
Plays his part in pranksome youth;
While in age sedate I clear
Shadows from the sphere of Truth.

THE OPEN MOUTH.

(Chicago Tribune.)

Speaker Champ Clark's reiteration of his belief that the American people are strongly in favor of the annexation of Canada came up in the House of Commons The Ministerial reply was politely to the effect that Mr. Clark's remark is not taken seriously.

The only region where it ought to be taken seriously is in the camp of Mr. Clark's supporters. The American people are not at all likely to put the tremendous responsibilities of the Presidency upon a man whose tongue is swung in the middle. If Mr. Clark is silly enough to believe what he says, he at least ought not to be silly enough to say it.

In a delicate international complication, God save the republic from a Champ Clark.

BUFFALO BILL.

How He Killed Yellow Hand Cheyenne Chief.

(Toronto Saturday Night).

It was in this war, at the battle of Indian Creek, that Buffalo Bill killed the great Cheyenne chief, Yellow Hand, in single combat. And this was perhaps the most thrilling and dramatic incident in the history of this modern Sir Galahad.

Imagine if you can, a dry river bed with the land gently sloping up from it on either hand. On the top of the ridge on the one side lay the United States army; on the other the flower of the Sioux and Cheyenne nations. Between them was this level grassy plain, without a stick of timber, without even a boulder of any size. These two armies lay on their rifles, their horses tethered, each watching the other. The war whoop of the Indians could be barely distinguished in the silent, sullen, waiting camp of the whites.

Of a sudden, a horseman appeared, moving out from the lines of the waiting savages. He rode on and on in silent dignity, to the centre of the plain. He rode on until his beautiful buckskin horse had negotiated half the distance between the two armies, and his headdress of eagles' feathers and his trappings announced him as the greatest Indian warrior of his day, Yellow Hand, the Cheyenne.

Then it was that Yellow Hand rent the air with his battle cry and his challenge. And it said: "Is there a white dog who dares come forth and fight Yellow Hand single handed?"

Down the hill opposite the waiting Indian chief, rode Buffalo Bill, astride his favorite horse. Here was the answer to the challenge. Resting easily over Buffalo Bill's arm was his Winchester; in the holster his trusty Colts. The pace was a gentle canter, as if on parade, and Cody's long hair flew out over the shoulders of his buckskin coat as he moved along. He was as silent as Yellow Hand was noisy. He was as silent and as relentless as grim death itself. On they rode toward each other. The canter became a run. Yellow Hand circled and then fired. At the flash, Cody ducked. Yellow Hand had missed. A movement of Cody's knees, a word of command and his horse stood like a statue. Up went Cody's rifle, ping sped the bullet, and Yellow Hand paused. He fired again and Yellow Hand reeled from the saddle a corpse.

Nothing more dramatic than this combat between this prince of plainsmen and this Indian chief enters into the annals of nation building on this continent, and some day perhaps a writer will arise to the occasion and properly describe for our children and our children's children these events.

WHAT FATHER TOOK.

(Philadelphia Record.)

He came down the garden path, a sad, sorrowful figure. She watched him with anxious eyes.

"How did father take it?" she asked.

"He took it well," replied the young man.

"Oh, I am so glad, George," she cried, pressing her hands together.

"Are you?" replied George, flopping forlornly by her side. "Well, I can't say that I am, dear. At first your father wouldn't listen to me."

"Why didn't you tell him that you had $2,500 in the bank, as I told you to?" she exclaimed.

"I did, after all else had failed," answered George, dejectedly.

"And what did he do, then?"

"Do!" echoed the young man, passing his hand wearily through his hair. "He borrowed it!"
