3 Ways to Cook CHICKEN

CHICKEN PIE.—Cut up chicken; place in hot water enough to cover, as it boils away add more, so as to have enough for the pie and for plenty of gravy to serve with it, and boil until tender. Line the sides of a pan with a rich biscuit dough a quarter of an inch thick, then fill with the chicken and a thick gravy well seasoned with salt, pepper and butter. Lay a few pieces of bacon in. Cover with a crust and bake in a moderate oven one hour.

CHICKEN EN CASSEROLE.—Wipe a four-and-one-half tender fowl and cut in pieces for serving. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, spread generously with butter and place en casserole. Add one cupful of boiling water, place on cover and bake until chicken is tender; then add one cupful of cream, two cupfulls of fresh mushrooms cut in pieces and one-half cupfull of cooked pieces. Again cover, and cook fifteen minutes. Chicken sauce with one tablespoonful of flour diluted with cold water to pour easily.

CHICKEN MOUSSE.—The day before the mousse is to be served, cook one cupful of rich chicken stock with the beaten yolks og two eggs one minute; season to taste with salt and pepper, and if the flavor is liked, a little celery-salt; all one cupful of the pounded white meat of cold boiled chicken, one tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in a littye cold water. Stir all together well, then press through a sieve. Add a cupful of whipped cream and the dry whipped whites of three eggs. Beat well with an egg-beater until nearly cold and then turn into a wetted mold and stand on ice until firm.

TREMENDOUS VALUE OF PRICE BROS' ASSETS.

Have Four Million Acres of Timber and Pulp Lands.

A prominent Montreal brokerage firm in a recent review of Price Bros. & Company, the large paper and lumber merchants, established in the Province of Quebec over one hundred years ago, give some interesting information with regard to their tremendous properties. The company owns or controls over 4,000,000 acres (or 6,000 square miles) of timber and pulpwood lands, excellently watered, and estimated to contain over 2,000,000,000 feet of merchantable timber and 20,000,000 cords of pulpwood. The three companies comprising Price Bros. show the following earnings during the years mentioned: 1908, $283,523; 1909, $398,766; 1910, $448,462.

These are net earnings after providing for depreciation and all charges, excepting bond interest. The actual earnings for 1910 were almost $50,000 more than the estimate made at the time the first mortgage bonds were issued by the Royal Securities Corporation. It is stated that the new paper and pulp mills now being constructed will increase this earning power $1,000,000 a year, or more than double what it is at present.

The securities of the company have been very active in Montreal lately, where they are very closely held. The control of the company is in very strong hands, and they do not seem to be willing to part with their holdings at anything like present market prices.

REJOICE, YE LANDSMEN!

Of curses and preventatives for seasickness there have been no end. Many attempts have also been made to diminish the rolling of ships, the most successful of which, perhaps, has been the application of the gyroscope. A German engineer named Frahm claims to have solved the ridle by placing a tank on each side of the vessel. The two tanks are connected by a pipe provided with any suitable device by varying its effective cross-section and the frictional resistance opposed to the flow of water. In this way the oscillation of the mass of water from side to side can be regulated in period and phase so that it counteracts the rolling tendency of the ship. The Frahm apparatus has given more successful results during a trial of two of the Hamburg-American Company steamers — the Ypiranga and the Concordia—and is to be installed on their colossal new liner, the Europa. The idea in not a new one, though apparently Frahm has improved upon the methods of regulating the water flow. A similar device was tried on H. M. S. Inflexible as far back as 1882.

CHANGES ITS NAME

The Grand Trunk Pacific Station, formerly known as Fiddle Creek, mile 997.8 west of Winnipeg, has been changed to Miette Hot Springs. It will be in this locality that the first of the Grand Trunk Pacific Mountain Hotels will be erected, and is within seven or eight miles of the Miette Hot Springs that are situated just beyond the famous Roche Miette Mountain, which looms up to the west of this station.

The whole of the territory in the vicinity of the Miette Hot Springs Station will, without doubt, become one of the greatest Meccas in America for the ever increasing tourist traffic with the mountains as an objective point, as everything that goes to make up an attractive mountain resort is found in this locality.

The Miette Hot Springs will become famous the world over as the efficacy of the waters of these springs for medicinal purposes has been proved, and for bathing purposes are without comparison.

There are four springs with temperatures as follows: 111 degrees, 116 degrees, 122 degrees, 127 degrees.

HOW TO PRONOUNCE IT.

(Vancouver Province)

The name "Connaught," according to an authority, is accented on the first syllable, and is pronounced as if spelled Con-naw't. This is the Anglicized pronunciation. In Irish, the "gh" is not silent, and is pronounced like "ch" in the Scottish "loch," and "nicht," or in the the German "nicht" (meaning not.)

THE KING GOES TO INDIA

(Detroit Free Press.)

Regardless of the bad monsoon, of the plague, of the famine, of the social dissensions and frequent assassinations in India, King George of England, who is incidentally Emperor of India, set sail for the latter country on Saturday last, to be crowned at a great durbar in Delhi. All the native princes are to be present—the semi-independent and the wholly dependent, who have English Residents at their elbows to tell them what to do. A whole new city has grown up outside the ancient Indian capital of the Great Moguls to accommodate the hundreds of thousands who are expected to be present to pay their homage to their new Emperor. Many prudent people in England ventured to think that the journey of the King was not entirely wise at a time when the affairs of his home country are not in so harmonious a state, and when political assassination is so rife in India, but His Majesty could not be dissuaded. It is not mere curiosity that brings king to India either, for he has been there before and has seen all there is to be seen and done all there is to be done.

WOMAN AVIATORS.

While there are nineteen lady avocats—known as "avocates"—at the Paris bar, there are only a dozen aviatrices, or in plain English, lady aviators. Formerly there were thirteen, a Paris contemporary informs us, but they were reduced to a dozen by the death of Mme. Denise Moore. The present "dames oiselles" are Mme. de Laroche, who was the first to attempt to fly; Mlle. Helene Dutrieu, Mlle. Jane Herveux, holder of the Femina cup; Mlle. Marvingt, Mlle. Marthe Niel, Mme. Moisant., Mme. Driancourt, Mme Franck, Mme. Hervartson, Miss Maurice Harriett Quimby, Miss Blanche Stuart Scott and Mlle. Beese.

The foregoing gives us six French women, four English, one American, and one German. Mme. de Laroche and Mme Franck have met with serious accidents. The others have been more successful. Mme. Driancourt is said to be the most intrepid of this famous band. She is the mother of three children, and while her exploits are credited with terrifying her husband they are the wonder and admiration of aviators. We may add that our contemporary ignores Mrs. Maurice Hewlett, who is not only an accomplished flier, but also has a practical knowledge of aeroplanes such as not all aviators possess.—From the London Globe.

CHRISTIANS' CENTURIES.

(Rev. Dr. McGillivray, of China.)

The Present—Perhaps you may be prepared to admit that the futrue may hold something in store for Christians which may be well worth striving for. But Paul says: "Things present belong to us." He also sings his "Carpe diem," but in a sense undreamed of by Flaccus. Do you say the Christians are otherworldly, and that secularism is the only practical view of life. Thomas Binney (and Paul) thought otherwise. He preached a famous sermon on making the best of both worlds. That does not mean, then, that we can serve God and mammon. It means that if you are a temple of the Holy Ghost things present belong to you. They all work together for your good. Yes, even sorrows and trials of the present do not prevent your glorying, as Paul in First Corinthians, fourth chapter, eleventh and following verses, says: "Even unto this present hour we both hunger and thirst and are naked and are buffeted and have no certain dwelling place and labor, working with our own hands; being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we suffer it; being defamed, we intreat; we are made as the filth of the world and are the offscouring of all things unto this day." And yet, he says, things present belong to him and to all God's children.

But we cannot enjoy the present if the future is insecure. So Paul says "Things to come are yours." The future belongs to the sons of God. A distinguished statesman said, the twentieth century belonged to Canada. Paul makes a greater statement. He says the centuries that are to come down to the crack of doom are the Christian's. It is true, the meek shall inherit the earth, and here, too, earth's sorrows cannot overthrow the fact of our possessing the future. With Paul we are persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things rpesent, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us fram the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. But more, our individual souls will not die. There is no death. What seems so is transition.

TRAWLING FOR COD.

Method by Which Millions of Pounds Are Taken Yearly.

Trawling is the most common way of taking codfish, says the Ellson Monthly. Two men put out in a dory and anchor a pair of buoys a short distance apart. A little further o they set a second pair.

A line or trawl is stretched between each pair; hooks are attached at distances of about a foot and each hook is baited with a herring.

There is no bigger fool than a herring, is a common saying among the fishermen. They ar the prey for every fish, particularly the cod, and for this reason as well as for the ease with which they are caught, herrings are user as bait.

A ring of slender saplings, known as a herring weir, is built in one of the numberless little bays along the coast of Maine. The saplings are set about six inches apart with a funnel shaped entrance at one side. A straight line of saplings running through the mouth of the funel turns the fish into the weir, where they swim round and round in circles, until the tide falls.

Then fishermen go out after them in boats and take them up by the netful. No net encircles the weir and nothing but the herring's stupidity prevents it turning to one side and swimmnig to liberty. Instead of turning, though, it goes around in a circle.

From three to five million pounds of cod are shipped annually to New York, to be shredded and packed in boxes and sent to every part of the country.

SOMETHING DOING IN MEMPHIS.

Memphis's advertising campaign was a wonder. The whole reading public of the United States was made to sit up and take notice. No one was allowed to remain in ignorance of the fact that Memphis was very much on the map.

But while the rest of the country saw tangible evidence of the $20,000 Memphis spent in presenting its claims to the world, few aside from those who have visited there, know what it accomplished. It is estimated that as a result of that advertising campaign no less than sixty-five manufacturing concerns have moved to Memphis. Careful investigation has revealed that these plants employ, on an average, eighty men apiece.

This would give a total of 5,200 new citizens within a year. Statisticians have figured that for every man there is at least one other dependent on him to be counted, and this would mean a a total of 10,400.

ALUM AN UNSEEN DANGER IN FOOD.

Noted food scientists have decided that alum is an unseen danger in food, and as a result of their investigations, rigorous laws have been enacted and are now being vigorously enforced in England, France and Germany, prohibiting the use of alum in foods.

Until suitable laws are passed in Canada prohibiting the use of alum baking-powders, every housewife should be careful to buy only a baking powder that has the ingredients printed plainly on the label.

INABILITY.

I cannot see the old plays
 I saw long years ago,
For nerve, alas, would fail me
 And tears would surely flow;
Two dollars for a front seat
 I paid without a whine
To hear some miscast miner
 Exclaim: "The world is mine!"

I cannot read the old books
 I read in days of yore:
Somehow each ancient idol
 Is now taught by a bore,
I used to tackle pages
Six hundred in a bunch,
But now I'm always looking
 For stories with a punch.

I cannot spend the old dough
 I spent in days gone by;
I cannot eat the old food
 Ere prices were sky-high;
I cannot drink the old drinks
 That used to be extant;
I cannot sleep the old sleeps—
 I cannot because I can't.

THE STRATHCONA FORTUNE.

(St. Thomas Journal)

Lord Strathcona is known to have a great fortune, but hitherto no concrete estimates of its size have appeared. It will come as a surprise to Canadians to know that one authority at any rate, the Strand magazine, places Sthrathcona in a class with Carnegie, Rothschild, Rockfeller and Pierpont Morgan. The Strathcona fortune, according to the Strand, amounts to over five hundred million dollars. As at the lowest computation this would bring an income of $20,000 daily, Strathcona can probably have the wolf from his door during the remainder of his life.

THE GOOD GREAT MAN.

How seldon, friend, a great good man inherits
 Honr or wealth with all his worth and pains!
It sounds like stories from the sounds of spirits,
 If any man obtain that which he merits,
 Or any man merit that which he obtains.

For shame, dear friend; renounce this canting strain,
What wouldst thou have a great man obtain?
 Place, titles, salary, a gilded chain—
 Or throne of courses which his sword hath slain?
 Greatness and goodness are not means, but ends
 Hath he not always treasures, always friends,
 The good great man? three treasures—love and light,
 And calm thoughts, regular as infants' breath;
 And three firm friends, more sure than day and night—
 Himself, his Maker, and the angel Death.

—Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

TO PROLONG LIFE OF NEEDLES.

The girl in a small apartment need no longer crowd her rooms with an ungainly sewing machine or else run up long seams by hand. There are fascinating handpower machines that fit into small boxes that can be put out of sight in a bureau drawer when not in use.

Keep on hand a supply of needles in all numbers, as it is most annoying when a needle breaks to have to send to the store before a seam can be finished. Needles can have their life prolonged by rubbing on a whetstone to a new point when blunted.

The finest needle can be easily threaded by holding a white paper on opposite side of the eye to make the hole more prominent.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

THE UNDER DOG.

(New York Press)

Colonel E. H. R. Green, discussing with a New York reporter his 6,000 proposals of marriage, said:

"My female wooers appear to be of a mild, shrinking nature. They are not at all like the wife of a friend of mine down Texas way. This man belongs to the Tarpon Club and I once heard two clubmen talking about him.

"Poor George tells his wife everything he does' said the first clubman.

"Yes", said the second, "and he does everything she tells him."

COOPERAGE PRODUCTION.

(Forestry Press, Bulletin No. 32.)

The amount of cooperage produced in Canada during 1910 has been compiled by the Dominion forestry branch at Ottawa. Reports were received from one hundred and thirty-three firms, of which ninety-four were in Ontario, showing that the slack and tight cooperage was produced in Canada to the value of one million seven hundred and forty thousand dollars. As the hardwood forests of Canada are already greatly depleted, and as the Canadian products transported in barrels are chiefly flour and apples, requiring only slack cooperage, the tight cooperage stock manufactured in 1910 amounts to only one-fifth of the total value. Barrels made from tight stock are used as containers of oils, alcoholic liquors and other liquids, and as Canada has practically no wood of sufficiently clear quality for such stock, the most of it has to be imported as staves or stave bolts from the United States. Of the total, slack cooperage made up one million three hundred and ninety-five thousand dollars, which is two hundred thousand dollars less than the 1909 value. Notwithstanding the decrease in value of slack cooperage for 1910, the number of pieces produced was five hundred thousand more than in 1909. Practically no cooperage is manufactured in Canada for export, and whatever quantity is shipped out is the cooperage left on the manufacturers' hands after the domestic market has been satisfied. In the middle of the last decade the export trade was quite an important branch of the cooperage industry, but in 1910, export of staves, heading and barrels amounted to only one hundred and fifteen thousand dollars.

A HOLE FOR A HOLE.

Little Donald had a penny given him to buy whatever he pleased. His three years of dignity thus had a new impulse thrust upon him. He decided to visit a bakeshop, and a doughnut was his choice. In a lusty voice he called for one and immediately passed the penny to the shopkeeper.

"See here, my boy," said the man, "this penny has a hole in it. I don't know as I can take that penny."

"But the doughnut has a hole in it," Donald responded, and he got the doughnut.—National Magazine.

FOR THE CHILDREN.

(New York Sun.)

The latest feature of the German city school system is the introduction of soap, towels and water basins into children's day schools. The purpose is not only to diminish the danger that may arise from dirt but also to wake in the children the sense of cleanliness, mental as well as physical.

The city authorities, besides laying down times and occasions for hand washing, go on to explain how it is done. The great majority of mankind regard the process of washing one's hands as a comparatively simple matter. That is not the view of the German authorities. They recognize a perfunctory and a thorough way of doing things, and with this view they have included a nail brush in the equipment about to be issued to the schools.

Lord Kitchener's French Service.

Lord Kitchener is to receive the war medal for having served with the French army in 1870; but though the fact of this service has often been asserted by the French, "K. of K." himself has never either "admitted or denied." During the war he was a Woolwich cadet, and in the long vacation he joined his family at Dinan, at Brittany, to rub up his French. Nearest the truth, perhaps, is the writer who says: "Lord Kitchener's first experience of war was under the French flag. In 1870 he enlisted as a private in a mobile battalion under Gen. Chanzy. He saw no fighting, but assisted in some balloon ascents that ended in a chil and an attack of pneumonia."—London Chronicle.

OIL CLOTH AS A CURE.

Pretty soon after the new arrival had been assigned to his room he telephoned down to the office for two strips of oilcloth.

"Another one," said the clerk, after assuring the guest that the oilcloth would be sent up immediately. "He is a somnambulist, I suppose. We keep strips of oilcloth in reserve for fellows like him. They spread it on the floor on either side of the bed. Stepping on oilcloth when he gets out of bed is pretty likely to awaken the most confirmed sleep-walker, and prevent nocturnal wandering.—New York Sun.

GERMANY BEATEN.

(Rochester Herald.)

The truth is that Germany is beaten. Her naval expenditures have gone for naught, her large army has ben useless for forty years, and now she finds herself hopelessly outclassed in diplomacy. Nearly half of the electorate has gone over to Socialism. The Kaiser has lost the respect of the people. His ministers are unpopular. What the upshot of it all will be may be difficult to predict at the present hour, but Germany seems destined to undergo during the next few years a large measure of social reform.

OLD ENGLISH COIN FOUND.

Mervin Acker, of Beavertown, while picking apples found imbedded in the stump of an old apple tree an English coin with the likeness of King George III. on one side and the emblem of Great Britain on the other. The coin is 136 years old. It is supposed the coin was placed in the tree for safe keeping and covered by the wood, only to be discovered after many years by the decaying elenments of time.—Johnstown Democrat.
