SHELLEY IS ARRAIGNED ON MURDER CHARGE

Simcoe, Ont., June 6.—Emerson Shelley, a prisoner from Kingston penitentiary, where he is serving two years for committing an assault on a 13-year-old girl, was yesterday arraigned before Magistrate J. Abell, of Silver Hill, on a charge of murdering Christian Shoup, a Walsingham farmer, on or about May 9, in a field near the latter's home. Mrs. Shoup found the body of her husband on May 11, with a bullet wound in his body. The charge of murder against Shelley is based on evidence obtained by the Provincial Police.

When the case opened yesterday, several witnesses were called, including Miss Phoebe Underhill, Rush Laforce, John Carr, and James Alexander, who all testified to having seen Shelley in the neighborhood of Walsingham previous to the finding of Shoup's body.

At the conclusion of the preliminary cross-examination, Crown Attorney T. R. Slaght asked for an adjournment until next Saturday, as he had received further evidence, which he wished to look into before going on with the prosecution. Magistrate Abell agreed to this. Mr. Hugh O. Innes, K. C., is looking after the interests of the accused.

Shelley's sentence on the assault case followed the murder of Shoup, with which he is now charged.

SEDITION.

Here is what the Criminal Code says of sedition.—

"Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to two years imprisonment who speaks any seditious words or publishes any seditious libel or is a party to any seditious conspiracy."

Sedition, whether by words spoken or written, or by conduct was a misdemeanor at common law. It embraces all those practices whether by word, deed or writing, which fall short of treason, but directly tend or have for their object, to excite ill-will between different classes of the King's subjects, to create public disturbance or to lead to civil war, to bring into hatred or contempt the Sovereign of the Empire or government of the country, the laws or constitution of the realm, and generally all endeavors to promote public disorder, or to incite people to unlawful associations or assemblies, insurrections, breaches of the peace, or forcible obstruction of the execution of the law.

A GOOD MEETING.

A veryp pleasant afternoon was spent at the home of Mrs. Wm. Robinson, on Friday, June 4th, when about sixty members of the Jarvis and Varcoy Women's Institutes met to enjoy a social time. The Jarvis Branch furnished a most excellent program, consisting of singing by Miss Snyder, of Jarvis, and Mrs. Bates of Hamilton, which everybody enjoyed. Papers and readings by Mrs. Meehan, Mrs. Guiler, Mrs. Histed and Mrs. J. Butcher. A letter was read by Mrs. Wm. Jaques from a nurse at the front in France. It was followed by an instrumental selection by Miss L. Robinson. Mrs. Walters and Miss Jaques gave recitations. The meeting was closed by singing the National Anthem.

A lunch and social half hour followed.

UNSOLICITED.

The following item appeared in The Simcoe Reformer of last week.—"The Welland Telegraph of last Friday copied in full as an item of News the advertisement printed the week previous in The Reformer of the H. S. Falls Co, Simcoe, and in introducing it, spoke of that Company as 'One of the best mercantile firms in the small towns of Western Ontario.'

Had the Telegraph said any town and all Canada, it would have been indulging in no extravagance.

Overheard—"I've travelled from coast to coast, but this store has them all beaten."

William Andrew, of Merritton, electrician at the Canada Carbide Company's plant, was instantly killed.

Bishop Sweeney, addressing the Synod, said the Church would benefit by the war and urged total abstinence from liquor.

Life in a Casualty Clearing Hospital

Nurse Ivey Writes Interestingly From France to her Canadian Friends —Proud of her Work.

The following letter written from France, by Miss Pauline Ivey, nurse, and a daughter of Mr. Charles Ivey, of London, will be of much interest to many of our readers, as the writer is well and most favorably known to a number in this district. Nurse Ivey has written several letters home, and each one speaks of the good work being accomplished by our Canadian soldiers and nurses at the battle front in France. Her many friends in this locality will wish for her a successful termination of her chosen duty, and trust she may return safely at the conclusion of an early peace.

The letter follows,—

Somewhere in France.
Monday.

Dearest Mother and Father,—

Just a week ago to-day I received the call to relieve up at the front. It all came so sudden that we can hardly realize what happened. I was sitting in my tent making dressings last Monday when word came I was to get ready to leave at once for fourty-eight hours relief. Miss Domville and Miss Robertson and I were all ready in twenty minutes. The party consisted of two officers, three sisters one N. C. O. and five orderlies, two ambulances and their drivers. We started at five o'clock from LeToquet with two days' rations and very high spirits. We had a most glorious ride up. The country is beautiful, the roads wonderful, every twist and turn is a picture. The orchards are in bloom, the fields are so green, the lilacs so purple, the little French hamlets so quaint and picturesque—it was hard to believe we were on a warlike mission. We went over the roads built by Napoleon for his troops over 100 years ago. We stopped once for petrol and the French children ran out with boquets for us. At ——— we met a large convoy of German prisoners being sent down to be interned. From there on you never forgot that you were in the war zone. Convoy after convoy passed, ambulances, army service lorries, ammunition wagons, the supply column, sentries, barricades and as we drew nearer we could hear the boom of the guns. About ten o'clock we arrived at our destination, No. 1 Casualty Clearing Station, British Expeditionary Force. They are located in a French chateau of an unique design—no conveniences like they have at the base hospitals, everything is extremely sketchy. They needed somebody to go on night duty that night so I volunteered. I can tell you it was some experience. I was taken up to the garret, where there are two large lofts and several other nooks and crannies. I couldn't see much at first as the lantern lights were very dim, but when I got used to the light I could see that the floors were covered with field stretchers on which the men were lying. Every particle of floor space was occupied, the only place for you to walk was between the handles of the stretchers. The men were in their khaki, blood-stained and wet, torn, bedraggled and dirty. I was turned loose and told to dress their wounds and do what I could for them. I had about sixty patients, one orderly and another we brought with us. I didn't know when anything was or where to begin.—However, I just turned right in and seemed to be making some progress when a bat flew in one of the few windows that the garret boasted. Of course, this seemed about the last straw, but by this time I had arrived at a very philosophical frame of mind after crawling around on my knees and tripping over men and the stretchers, and I don't believe the advent of the Germans themselves would have disturbed my unnatural calm. There was one window that was low enough to look out of, and we could see the rockets and the flash of the guns, and hear the burr of the aeroplanes. I would have given a great deal to have had some of you look in on me that night. I'll never forget it. The men are horribly wounded, some were dying, some paralyzed, others insane—strapped to the stretchers, all suffering horribly. War is certainly hell, and I came off duty in the morning pretty well fagged, unrolled my wolsey kit, took my little corner of the floor and slept more or less soundly. The patients change in a casualty clearing Hospital three or four times a day, sometimes, and as often at night. It all depends on the activities at the front. This hospital was shelled a couple of months ago and had to move back a couple of miles. We still might expect a German souvenir at any time. They are so fond of hospitals.

The succeeding nights have been much the same, only I am growing more used to everything. One morning we walked into the town of ——— The soldiers are all billeted around here, and the place is full of them. Nearly all women and children have left this part. One thing is certain the Sisters are the only English speaking women around here. There are only five English sisters and we are Canadians. I can't tell you all we saw there—it would not pass censor. We are such a curiosity in town that every man and officer turned to stare at us. Some ventured to speak because they had spoken to an English woman for six months. We saw regiments marching out, ready for the fray. When they saw us they would grin and sing Tipperary. Could anything be more thrilling than the swing of the kilt of the pipes marching out to war.

That night, or at least, 3 a.m. in the morning, word came via motor that this same town was being shelled, 2 houses destroyed, 2 women killed, and several places damaged. We went in again the following day and went all through the ruins. As we are on night duty, an English sister and I we like to keep abreast of the times. We certainly get the latest tidings. We know up here not only when an attack is on, but when it is going to take place. The patients are brought to us by ambulance from the field ambulance. Sometimes they are down inside an hour and a half. We have been here a week tonight and I really don't know when we shall leave—not until things quiet down a little anyway. The news has been awfully good the last couple of days; surely we shall get them on the run soon. I had nine Germans last night and two German officers—Prussian Guards. You may depend they didn't get much attention from me until every Tommy had been dressed. We are too good to them at that.

Well, I must close now. I shall write you again when I get half a chance. There are so many letters I should write but haven't time for at present. I received a box of candy from Emma; the socks from Dr. Cochrane through Aunt Minnie Lord; and stockings from the girls of Cobourg. I sent to uncle Reg. for a new sweater and just got in time to bring with me. The Colonel brought me a message from Buster Reid this week. Saw him in Bologne on his way up to the front. I do hope he has the best of luck. I miss Mildred awfully. I wish she could have come with me, but I dare say I shall return in a few days at the latest.

Best love to you all and Grandmother.

Lovingly,
PAULINE.
