ROCKFORD

Mr. and Mrs. Terry, Mrs. Albert Somers, Mr. Howard and Miss Ethel were down to Hamilton last Tuesday week and purchased a new organ for our church. It will be brought and placed in the church on Tuesday this week and on Thursday an expert player and noted tenor singer in Canada will give an entertainment in the church, assisted by local talent. Do not miss this this as it will be the treat of the season.

Mrs. Hambly read the letters Sunday morning from our S.S. boys in khaki, who are now at the front. Our school was very much pleased to hear from them and to hear of some of the experiences they are witnessing but they are willingly doing their bit for the Empire. They appreciated so much the Xmas gifts sent them. We pray that God may uphold, protect and keep them and may it be His good will to bring them safely back again.

Mr. and Mrs. George Richards and baby visited at the former's mother, Mrs. M. Richards on Friday last.

Mr. R. A. McCarter, of Jarvis, spent Sunday at Mrs. G. Irwin's. Mrs. Irwin continues about the same.

Captain J. T. Walsh

IT takes a man with a big brain to preside over a big shipping department. To be successful in such a position he must be an amphibious individual — one equally at home on land or water. Captain J. T. Walsh, the genial Assistant Manager of the Canadian Pacific Atlantic Steamship Lines, is a keen business man, brisk and energetic, ever watchful to see that the lines proceed on their various courses safe and comfortable for the public and profitable for the Canadian Pacific Company. Captain Walsh has little to learn about the sea or about anything on land that concerns the sea, for ever since he was 16 years of age his career has been floating along on the waves. Like Lord Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Company, Captain Walsh is the son of Irish parents; he first saw the light in Chichester, England, in 1857. After receiving his education at the schools of the Christian Brothers he began his career as a seaman, and from the outset success followed his track. He had travelled on merchant ships to most parts of the world, and he had obtained a wide knowledge of his business. In 1890 he was commissioned as a Lieutenant in the Royal Naval Reserve. While at Lagos, West Africa, during the Ashanti War in 1900 the dexterity with which he managed the embarkation services gained him honourable mention in the despatches of Colonel Sir J. Wilcox. In 1902 Captain Walsh retired from the Naval Reserve with the rank of Commander. He then took up the responsible position of Superintendent of the Elder Dempster Line in England. But, in a short time afterwards, when that concern was absorbed by the Canadian Pacific Company, Captain Walsh became connected with the greatest transportation corporation in the world. Ever since embarking on the steamship business, in 1883, the Canadian Pacific marine service has had a triumphant career. From the outset there were competent men at the helm of the ships and at the head of the various governing departments, but none has filled the post of superintendent with more foresight and general ability than Captain Walsh. During his regime the Saint Lawrence route to the British Isles, thought always popular, has advanced considerably in popularity. At present many of the C. P. R. big vessels are in the service of the Empire. Captain Walsh pays a high tribute to the worth of the Mercantile Marine in the struggle that is being conducted on land and sea. Addressing the Montreal Sailors' Club a short time ago he said: "At one time it was considered that on account of the officers and men being distributed all over the globe the number procurable at short notice would be so small that their value as a naval reserve would not be very great. On this account a short service scheme was created from which men passed into the Royal Fleet service, and through this an immediate reserve was always available. It was found that directly the Royal Naval Reserve was called upon they flocked to the rendezvous in such numbers that it was difficult to place them all." On the same occasion he said: "As a sailor I am absolutely satisfied, come what may, that the Mercantile Marine may be relied upon to do its part to the bitter end. When the history of the war comes to be written the splendid services rendered by the Mercantile Marine are likely to find favourable mention, and the C. P. R. vessels are certain to have their meed of praise for the C. P. R. liners 'Metagama' and 'Missanabee' have carried more Canadian troops to the war zone than any other vessels. They also have brought back to Canada many wounded warriors."

The superintendent of these and other Atlantic C. P. R. vessels takes a wide interest in many departments of life in Montreal; he is President of the Catholic Sailors' Club of Montreal; member of the Royal Colonial Institute; Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, and Trustee and Vice-President of the Last Post Imperial Navy and Military Contingency Fund. Under the heading of "War and Meritorious Service" the major part of Captain Walsh's official Government services are embodied in Colonel McLean's Royal Naval list.

Class Mates Present Address and Gift.

A very pleasant social afternoon was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Hennings on Thursday, 24th ult., when the members of the Excelsior Young Ladies' Class of the Jarvis Methodist Church met to bid farewell to their young friend and fellow-member, Miss Leona Bousfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bousfield, who are moving to Hagersville.

The afternoon was very pleasantly spent with games and music. During the afternoon the address given below was presented to Miss Bousfield accompanied by a beautiful Ebony Manicure Set. Miss Bousfield was taken quite by surprise, but made a very feeling reply in which she most heartily thanked her young associates for their kind words, generous gift and friendly feeling toward her as a member of the Class.

THE ADDRESS.

Dear Leona,—

It is with feelings of sincere regret that we realize our pleasant associations with you are destined to cease in the near future. You have endeared yourself to us, a warm, true friend, a willing member of our Sunday School class. In parting with you we each experience a personal loss. Our sorrow was somewhat minimized when we learned that your new home is to be as near as Hagersville. But we sincerely hope that in the ensuing years you may not altogether relinquish the pleasant memories of the part of your life spent in Jarvis. We wish your acceptance of this small remembrance to assure you that you go followed by the heartiest and sincerest good wishes of your friends and fellow-members of this class.

Signed on behalf of the Excelsior Class.

A Pleasant Gathering.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Challand was the scenne of a happy event when Mrs. Challand's parents celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding. Mr. Wright was born in Lincolnshire, England, in 1832, coming to Port Dover with his parents in 1852. On February 22, 1856, he was married to Anna Cassidy, who was born in Belfast, Ireland, in 1836. Mr. and Mrs Wright first settled in a farm in South Cayuga, later moving to Norfolk County, where after nearly forty ears they retired to Port Dover, and are now among the oldest inhabitants. Of this happy union there were three children, one son William, living near Port Dover, and two daughters, Mrs. C. W. Challand and Mrs. N. R. Butler, of Renton. At noon they sat down to a sumptuous repast surrounded by their children and eight grand children. During the afternoon Mr. J. E. Butler, of Simcoe, took a picture of the group. Mr. and Mrs. Wright are enjoying excellent health and it is hoped that they may may be enabled to celebrate many more anniversaries.
