EX-WARDEN DEAD

St. Catharines, April 6—Lewis H. Collard, former warden of Lincoln county, and for several years reeve of Niagara Township, died this afternoon at his home in Niagara township, after a lengthy illness. Mr. Collard, who was in his fifty-ninth year was a leading Liberal. He was prominent in Masonic circles and deputy monarch of Hindoo Koosh Grotto. He is survived by his widow, Mary Alice Collard; three daughters and three sons; Mrs. Roy Arbuthnot, of Grantham; Mrs. Cecil Read, of St. Catharines; Alice at home; Burton, of Niagara township Fred, of St. Catharines and Arthur, of Toronto.

HORSE-SHOE AND GOOD LUCK

The origin of the popular belief that a horse-shoe brings good luck is so ancient that it is literally lost in the mists of time, but probably no superstition is more universal. Ever since horse-shoes were first used they have been associated with good luck by every known race, nation and people throughout the world. Often the basic reasons have been very fundamentally different, but they always have one thing in common — the crescent shape of the shoe is typical of some sacred and protective emblem. The Chinese, for instance, nail them up over their doors as a charm against evil spirits because the curved shape so closely resembles the arched body of the sacred snake, Nagandra, which is one of their chief deities. Among the Jews, its arched shape symbolized the outline which was used that at Passover night when the blood was sprinkled upon the lintel and the two doorposts. The illiterate and highly superstitious Russians give rather a different reason, referring to the substance of the horse-shoe rather than to its shape, namely, that its virtue lies in the metal of which it is composed, iron always being regarded as a charm against the evil designs of spirits and goblins, with which the dark forests and dismal marshes of Russia are believed to be peopled.

REDUCING DISEASES OF POTATOES

(Experimental Farms Note)

During recent years, experimental results secured by the Division of Botany of the Federal Department of Agriculture, have suggested important limitations of tuber treatment in controlling such prevalent diseases as common scab, black scurf and stem canker, and black leg. This is because the organisms, causing these diseases, are normal inhabitants of the soil. Therefore, the amount of disease which occurs must depend very largely on the tuber condition of the soil and environment conditions, and not on the amount of the organism which may be added by the seed piece. Old soils are apt to carry a greater infestation of these parasites than virgin soil does Therefore, it would be safer to disinfect tubers when using virgin soils Of course, seed treatment will effectively dispose of the fungi which are on the surface of the tuber in the case of common scab and black scurf but it cannot hope to kill the bacteria which cause black leg, because these are within the tuber. With regard to the virus diseases, tuber treatment cannot be effective because the causal agent persits in the juice of the plant and the tuber. Present evidence suggests that, in the absence of a suitable resistant variety, crop rotation is a desirable method to reduce common scab, black scurf and, to some extent, black leg. Probably the best method for reducing black leg, is to plant tubrs that are free from this disease. The only method now available to reduce and control the highly important virus diseases (which cause the stock to "run out," is to use seed free from these diseases. The Federal Department of Agriculture, through its inspection system, makes available seed potatoes, certified with regard to disease content.

GOOD REASON

One day Edison was walking in the street with his young son. The great inventor never neglected an opportunity to instill into the boy's head the rudiments of science and he frequently used familiar sights to illustrate some principle of mechanics. Spying a pedler pushing a hand cart, he said, "Can you tell me why he pushes the cart instead of pulling it?" The boy could not. "I suppose the man himself could answer," Edison went on.

"My good man," he said, "why do you push the cart rather than pull it?"

"Cause I ainta de hoss, you damna fool!" was the disconcerting answer.

Some men are worth more than others and some are worth-less.

The boys say when the four day a week depression lifts, they are going to start smoking tailor mades on Sunday, that is the reason no doubt why so many tobacconists have been going into conference with the manager lately.

Pepper's recent departure to become a member of the nursing staff of the Niagara Falls General Hospital, leaves Muriel in a rather precarious position, as she is now without a defender in her arguments and what a tough break that is for her, and what a good break it is for one other member of the staff in her department, he says he can say what he likes to her now and get away with it.

CULLING THE FLOCK OF SHEEP

With the lambing season on, or coming on, and with shearing not very far away, the farmer comes in more or less contact with the individual members of his flock, and a little close attention at these times in tagging individuals for culling is well worth while.

Udder troubles are fairly common and show up most prominently following lambing. Udders that give trouble one season in all probability will give more trouble the next, and in most cases these ewes should be tagged for disposal.

Ewes that fail to conceive should also be marked for early disposal unless due to the large number of failures, the ram is indicated as being at fault.

Certain ewes make much better mothers than others and if notes or records are kept of this it will also assist in selecting individuals for culling. Some ewes are wild and flighty and a continua source of nuisance. The disposal of these may add greatly to the peace of the flock.

At shearing time a close observer will be able to make good selection of various individuals as to breed type and to quality of the wool. While wool prices are low it is all the more important to try and improve the quality and quantity, and a great deal of information in this respect can be gathere.' at shearing time.

In the shearling flock of Hampshires at the Dominion Experimental Station at Windmere the range in weight of fleeces ran from 8.5 pounds to 15 pounds with the average weight being 10.8 pounds. At prices received in 1932 for the wool, there was a difference of approximately 45 cents in value between the high and the low fleece. While feding has an influence on the quality of the wool, breeding and selection are undoubtedly the biggest factors, and a great deal may be done by culling ewes with poor fleeces and by using rams with outstanding qualities in this regard.

At shearing time the quality of the fleece can be most readily observed and selections made according ly. Black hair and wool are some of the most undesirable features, while length, density, quality and lustre are important considerations.

In times of adversity it is all the more important that farmers by breeding and selection should improve the quality of their product, and this selection is possibly most easily made at lambing and at shearing time.
