On the Farm Front

By Haldimand Harry

"Watch That August milk can!" This could be a slogan of every dairyman for the next month. This is the month when all too frequently there is a slump in milk production and by a little care and forethought it can be avoided. It is common practice to turn the dairy herd out and then forget it, in the belief that the cows can forage for themselves for the rest of the season. Really this is a serious mistake and there are only rare cases where the pasture will provide a uniform and ample supply of luscious grass throughout the whole season.

—O—

With the hotter weather, the grasses become drier and the growth becomes stunted. The cow that ordinarily will eat 150 pounds of silage with a few weeks ago may be lucky if she can find half that amount at this season of the year. There is only one result from such a condition and that is a drop in production. Actually is pays to keep production up rather than to try to get it up after it has once gone into a slump.

—O—

Furthermore, dry, mature pastures have less protein and other nutrients than top notch, green growing pastures and all of this combined makes it all the more important to do some supplementary feeding at this season of the year. This is the time of year when some grass silage will come in rather handy. At the O.A.C. it is regular practice to put up a considerable quantity of grass silage each year for the purpose of feeding to the milking herd during the time when pasture is short. The silos are then refilled with corn early in the fall for the winter feeding period. Even the extra feeding of good hay will help to offset the pasture shortage to a considerable extent.

—O—

Mr. Elgin Senn, a native of Haldimand County and now Head of the Grading Section of the Marketing Service for Canada, recently reported on a survey that had been made of the number of "A" grade carcasses in the various weight ranges. These figures have shown conclusively that the higher percentages in all provinces were in the lower weight categories. As Mr. Senn points out, "The reason for the lower grade in the heavier carcasses is the increased amount of fat in relation to the lean content." It pays to get your hogs to market at the proper weight.

—O—

Creamery butter production in Haldimand showed a slight improvement in June by being up some 35,000 pounds as compared with the previous month of May and showing an increase of over 36,000 pounds as compared with the month of June in 1956. Total production in Haldimand for June of this year was 250,170 pounds as compared with 250,134,495 pounds a year ago. The total production for the first half of 1957 was 960,078 pounds and down by 334,495 pounds from the same period of 1956. On a provincial basis production for the month was down 4.4 per cent and for the half year it was down 13.4 per cent.

—O—

A total of 379 cows completed records in the Haldimand D.H.I.A. in 1956 with 64 per cent qualifying for certificates. The average milk production in the association was 6,710 pounds per cow with 316 pounds of fat. Some other interesting information is revealed by the report which has only recently been published. For instance it has shown that 42 per cent of the dairy production costs go into the feed, 24 per cent for labor and 34 per cent overhead. This merely emphasizes the importance of careful feeding and getting the most out of the feed that is being fed.

Attend the Indian Pageant

Anyone wishing to attend the Indian Pageant by chartered bus on the evening of Friday, August 16th, please make reservations through Mrs. R. A. Miller, phone Jarvis 41M. This is the Ninth Annual Pageant to be held on the Six Nations Reserve, in the Great Pine Forest Theatre. The subject to be enacted this year will be "Captain Joseph Brant." This should be of interest to all who live in this section of Ontario, and as especially recommended to students.

While the Jarvis W.I. is sponsoring the trip it will not be restricted to members of the organization. It will be necessary to apply as soon as possible, so that it will be known whether or not there is enough interest to warrant the chartering of a bus.

Strikes and More Strikes

There were 43 work stoppages arising from industrial disputes in Canada during June, but five alone accounted for 87 per cent of the total time lost. These five disputes were responsible for a time loss of 192,215 man-working days and involved a total of 14,891 workers. Preliminary figures for June showed the 43 stoppages in existence involved 18,377 workers and a total time loss of 220,720 man-working days. In May there were 40 stoppages involving 15,393 workers and a time loss of 144,700 days. In June 1956 there were 16,860 workers involved in 39 disputes with a time loss of 78,160 days. For the first half of 1957 there were 403 stoppages involved 138 strikes and a time loss of 590,480 man-working days. During the same period in 1956 there were 108 work stoppages with 52,159 workers involved and a time loss of 815,285 days.

Fire Destroys Brennan Home

The ten-room brick house of Geo. Brennan, Hagersville, was completely burned with all its contents early Sunday morning.

The fire, of undetermined origin, started in the living room about 3.45 a.m. At home were Mr. Brennan, a son, Frank, a daughter, Pat, and two boarders. Several other boarders were away for the week-end. Mrs. Brennan was in St. Catharines visiting a sick daughter.

A boarder, Lyle Sloat, jumped out an upstairs window and was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, Hamilton, with injuries of an undetermined nature.

Hagersville firemen were assisted by the Caledonia Fire Department in confining the flames to the Brennan residence which adjoins the Beaver Lumber Co. office and yards.

A SOCIALIST REPLIES

Whether we like it or not social economic planning is here to stay. We will of course resist the use of the term socialism to describe government intervention in the economic field but resistance will not stem the tide of public funds to influence the direction of Canadian economic development.

Economists like S. H. Slichter, of Harvard, believe that creative spending by governments can speed economic development, encourage enterprise that could not be undertaken otherwise, conserve natural resources and generally raise living standards. The U.S. government, devoted to free-enterprise in theory, now stands third (after the Soviet Union and the U.K.) in spending the taxpayers' money in attempts to maintain equilibrium within the U.S. economy.

In Canada only the C.C.F. party talks much about social economic planning. But for nearly 40 years Canadian governments have been establishing crown companies to provide for public ownership of a wide variety of enterprises.

Beginning in 1919, with the organization of the Canadian National Railways, Canadian governments have been quietly getting into business—in the fields of communications, mining, defence, transport, agriculture, insurance, central banking and finance, housing, and so forth.

The above are not my words. I quote without deletion from an editorial in the Rural Co-operator dated July 30th, 1957.

I humbly suggest that Ambrose Hills read "The History of Canadian Wealth." Here the American historian Gustavus Myers has laid bare the exploitation of the Canadian people for nearly 300 years. There was not much morality in the process.

Men get into the habit of taking for granted the morality of existing institutions without troubling to question or understand them; just as many good men for many generations took for granted the morality of slavery or of religious persecution.

The farmers and other workers need no advice from you Ambrose on the morality of getting back a fairer share of the wealth they have produced.

Carroll Lindsay.

ARRIVED IN ENGLAND

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Lysch received word that their son Keith, had arrived safely in England and reports a wonderful plane trip. We expect to hear more from him later.

Jaguar XK-SS Rare Will be Seen at Harewood in Sept.

According to Dave Grenier, in the Toronto Telegram, the sports car enthusiasts will see a rare piece of automotive machinery in action at the Harewod track when the British Empire Motor Club held their Indian Summer races at Harewood in September.

The new Jaguar XK-SS is rated the hottest piece of machinery in the production sports car field today. It is owned by Stan McRoberts of Montreal. Stan is the only person in Canada so far fortunate enough to own an XK-SS.

First view of the XK-SS in Canada was at the Canada Day Races at St. Eugene Airport. The 150-M.P.H. machine had little difficulty in cleaning up the rest of the field.

The lines of this new Jaguar are familiar enough despite the disguise of a full windshield top, luggage rack and other trimmings that help it qualify as a road car as well.

Essentially it's a production version of the D-type Jaguar which made history at Le Mans again this year.

The XK-SS is powered by the famous Jaguar 6-cylinder double overhead cam engine rating 3,442 C.C. and developing 260 h.p. It's fantastic acceleration through the gears is illustrated by the fact that shift point from 3rd into top, with the engine peaking at 6,000 r.p.m., is around the 110 m.p.h. mark.

Win League Championship

Hagersville Pee-Wees won their league championship on Tuesday evening after taking two of their three games from Langton. The Hagersville roster is bolstered by four Jarvis players including Larry Cassidy, pitcher; Kenny Graham, first base; Laird More, second base, and Gary Mitchell, short stop. Cassidy performed excellently on the mound for the winners and his effort was supported by two three-base hits by Graham and a three-base hit by Mitchell. The team is expected to meet Chippawa in the first round of the provincial play-offs.

Jarvis and Mt. Hope Compete for Honours

Jarvis and Mount Hope ended the regular schedule of the Haldimand-Norfolk Floodlight league in first and second place respectively and will start the first game of the best two out of three for the league championship was played at the local park last night (after press time). The second game will be played at Mt. Hope on Saturday night and the third game, if necessary, will be played the following Monday. The diamond for the third game will be decided by the toss of a coin.

Mount Hope worked hard for the second place position in order to meet their old rivals for this league championship. Waterford was breathing a sigh of relief. There's no doubt but that rained out games was to their advantage. Comstock had two rained out games with Mount Hope and the same number with Waterford. Mount Hope got their necessary win when Comstock defaulted on an ordered game by the league last week.

Both Mount Hope and Jarvis will continue in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association play-offs which have already been announced. Jarvis meets Virgil on Thursday night, Aug. 15th, at Virgil and the second game will be played here on Saturday night, Aug. 17th. Mount Hope start their O.A.S.A. playoffs with Stoney Creek, who gave Jarvis such a tough go last year. It is quite possible Jarvis and Mount Hope will meet up again in the Ontario playoffs.

The League Championship games with the Hopers give the fans a pretty good indication which team is going to advance toward an Ontario Championship. The team that is good ran support last night and there is no doubt a large following will be at Mount Hope on Saturday night for the second game.

Marketing Farm Products

The farmer is an important cog in our existence. Some seem to have a rough time getting what would seem to be, a fair share of the National income. His work keeps him in overalls and many seem to like to be so identified, even on Sunday afternoons. The general impression seems to be that the average farmer is hard done by and most of them content to let that impression be perpetuated.

Certain saviors of the farmer's position have arisen in recent years with plans designed to improve the his position so that he may arrive at his rightful place in society. Society, on the other hand, being sympathetic to the farmer sits content in the knowledge that whatever is in vogue will be, in fact, beneficial to him. No one outside of the farm industry can, we suspect, altogether too few within the farm industry, are taking a sufficiently analytic look at the trend to hog tie a class of our citizenry that in the past has prided themselves on their freedom.

Farm marketing legislation within the Province of Ontario is designed to give the farmer the might of organization. The idea being that in strength there is might, and that with might the farmers can demand from society a measure of the gains acquired by labor through unions. On the face of it no one can blame the farmer for any effort to protect his position in Society. But can he through organization that tells him what to grow and when to grow it —what to market and when to market it and at prices over which he has no direct control, obtain any greater measure of prosperity—any greater measure of happiness, than has been his lot in the past.

These thoughts are promulgated from a belief that farmers in this area, at least, have enjoyed a standard of living comparable with any other citizen. In fact farmers in this area have created estates that should satisfy the instincts of any average man.

This effort to save the farmer stems from one erroneous thought, namely, that the agencies through which he has marketed in the past are out to get his last pair of worn overalls. Tell a farmer that the middle man is getting too much from the products of his labor and he will agree—emphatically. Show him that working on one per cent margin and he will tell you the top man in the organization draws $25,000 a year, far more than he considers worth to him. The reasoning, therefore, is not well founded and he goes along with the shyster who would try to convince him that all that needs to be done to give him a parity price on hogs is to fire the $25,000 a year executive.

On the basis of this thinking Farm Marketing legislation has been granted farm groups. So far as we can see this trend has not induced the consumer one iota to spontaneously increase his consumption of any farm product nor to willingly pay any more for it. In some cases the handling of farm products has been taken out of the hands of men well qualified and inspired by the initiative of sound business practices and have been taken over by a class—often unable to manage things for themselves let alone looking after the best interests of an entire industry.

In order to meet the demands of farm organizations the Ontario legislature has ordained that under the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Act a man should be presumed guilty of contravening the Act and Regulations unless he can prove otherwise. The Ontario Legislature followed this up by asking the Government of Canada to revise Magna Carta by a similar amendment to the Federal Agricultural Products Marketing Act.

We're not too well versed in the law but what is happening behind the cloak of improving the position of the farmer seems to us to be establishing certain dangerous precedents. None of which we would have any objection to if we were convinced the position of the farmer would be enhanced by what is taking place. But on this score we are not convinced—but certainly more than a little perplexed.

Willard Butler Critically Injured

Willard Butler, salesman with the S. J. Church Garage, Jarvis, was critically hurt on Tuesday afternoon when the tractor he was driving on No. 3 Highway, west of Renton, was struck by a Quebec car. Mr. Butler suffered two broken legs, scalp lacerations and multiple bruises when he was thrown from the tractor.

The car was apparently travelling in the same direction and struck the tractor with a mower attached from the rear.

Mr. Butler was rushed to the Norfolk General Hospital where he was treated for his injuries. The latest report is that his condition is serious.

Construction Progressing On Hagersville Arena

The regular monthly meeting of the Hagersville A.A.A. was held on Thursday, July 25th, with Dr. Hyde in the chair. Two hundred dollars was donated to assist the minor baseball teams. The remainder of the meeting was devoted to the memorial arena project.

The chairman of the building committee reported that good progress was being made with the main trusses erected in place and the majority of the cross bracing completed. All the piers and main footings had been poured except for one internal supporting wall. The sheeting for the roof and the steel has been ordered, also the men are laying cement blocks at the rate of a truck load a day. A check on finance showed we were rapidly running out of money.

The chairman of the finance committee reports that a canvass of all the people who had pledged money would be conducted this week. Posters were placed in the stores to remind everyone that this was "Arena Week." The response has been good from a few people but it takes everybody to make it a success.

The directors want to thank the dozen or so men who come out to work day after day to help build the arena. It would not be fair to mention names as someone might be missed. A predominance of miners can be noted anytime there are men working in their spare time.

We are hopeful that the building can be closed in for skating this winter. Every cent that has been pledged and more is needed to make this a reality.
