THE EDITOR'S COLUMN

It was reported in the National newspapers on the weekend that as of November 30, 1967 the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce was Canada's largest bank with assets of 7.6 billions of dollars. Since Jarvis has a branch of this bank it is comforting to know that all deposits are adequately secured with such an abundance of assets. The town is fortunate to have a branch of Canada's largest bank as it can provide many services which might not be available if it were not the case.

Since Prime Minister Pearson announced his retirement as leader of the Liberal Party of Canada the wheels of electing a new leader have slowly begun to turn. Each day we hear of a new candidate and each day the hopeful successors announce their intentions. Members of the old guard and members of the new are beginning to oil their campaign machinery for an election that should prove very interesting. The Liberal Party has many capable men ready to take full control of the Party and their backgrounds are varied. The names most prominent at the present time are Robichaud, Hellyer, Winters, MacEachen, Sharp, Turner, Greene, Marchand, Kierans, Trudeau and Martin.

Some are relatively new to the political scene while others have been in political dog fights and in the thrust of parliamentary debate for 20 to 30 years. Several of the men listed have revolutionary political thoughts while others are of the old political party. Turner is in his late thirties, Hellyer in his early forties and Sharp in his early sixties. The age difference among the candidates is striking and it will be interesting to see what effect this will have on the voting delegates come April when the first balloting takes place.

It is much too early to make any reasonable guess as to who might win the Liberal Leadership Convention. It will obviously be a very exciting race based on the age differences, the political backgrounds, and the experience of each of the candidates. We will undoubtedly have more to say on this topic as the week of the Convention approaches.

CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOC. REQUEST RECONSIDERATION OF INSURANCE PROGRAM

Following is a copy of the letter sent to the Prime Minister of Canada by the President of the Canadian Medical Association, Mr. Normand J. Beliveau, M.D.

January 17, 1968

The Right Hon. Lester B. Pearson
Prime Minister of Canada
Parliament Buildings,
Ottawa, Ontario

Dear Sir:

In view of your recent statement that your Government will reconsider the question of implementing a universal medical insurance program on July 1, 1968, and the announced inability of some provinces to implement such a program as of that date; may we, once again, urge you to consider the views of the Canadian Medical Association on this most important subject.

We believe that Government's first responsibility in this area is to provide financial assistance to those Canadians unable to afford medical services insurance. This Association has consistently opposed the principle of universality, even before the Government announced its four basic principles that have been inherent in the Medical Care Act. The reasons for our recommendations in this area have been well documented and communicated to your Government. However, may we repeat one of those reasons as outlined in our correspondence of September 9, 1966, when we wrote to you on this subject:

"We are greatly concerned that the insistence on universality, which your Government has put forward, may well delay improvements in medical coverage for the people who need it most".

It now seems obvious that our concern was well founded. Recent public statements by government leaders suggest that the federal medicare plan may again be delayed and many needy Canadians will be further denied medical care insurance due to the insistence of universality in federal government legislation.

While we recognize the many political, legislative and administrative problems involved in government decisions; we ask that you give further consideration to the implementation of a medical insurance program for the low and marginal income groups in this country; and to provide the needed financial assistance to enable the provinces to implement medical insurance programs which will assist these groups and bring medical insurance within the financial reach of every Canadian.

To implement such an approach, of course, will not only ensure that those people who need financial help will receive it, but will also greatly reduce the amount of money, which will be required for the program through federal and provincial taxes. In addition, this modification would not disrupt the large amount of money supplied by employers and the majority of self sufficient Canadians, who are now contributing to private insurance programs.

As indicated by the federal and provincial Ministers of Finance, the cost of a universal, comprehensive program will be extremely high and will continue to increase over the years with the increased cost of living, the increased number of doctors graduating from Canadian medical schools and immigrating to our country, and the unlimited demand for services. We respectfully point out that anticipated costs have been grossly underestimated in every jurisdiction in which a government medicare program has been launched.

The reasons for the medical profession's opposition to a universal government program has been outlined to you on several occasions. However, we wish to reiterate that, contrary to the suggestions of a few, the protection of the earning power of the profession has not been a major reason for this opposition. The experience with the government sponsored program in Saskatchewan shows that the introduction of a universal program results in substantially increased earnings for physicians.

The Governments of Ontario, British Columbia and Alberta have demonstrated a realistic workable approach to the provision of medical care insurance. They have recognized that there are many who require some financial help and others who need total assistance, but that the majority of the population are capable of providing for their own needs. These programs have resulted in close to 100 per cent of the population having adequate medical care insurance on a voluntary basis. We submit that the most productive role for the Federal Government to play in this field, is to develop a method of financial assistance for such people and to permit provincial governments to establish their priorities in the health field.

(Signed) Norman J. Belliveau
President

Now there are new ways to trap the monsters who make obscene telephone calls

Bell Canada is cooperating with law enforcement agencies, so that more and more of these monsters are now being apprehended.
Our engineers have developed sophisticated new equipment to track them down. And 2000 Bell people are specially trained to deal with the problem.
If you receive such a call, follow these rules. 1. Don't talk. (The caller wants an audience—don't be that audience.) 2. Hang up at the first obscene word; or if the caller doesn't say anything, or doesn't give satisfactory identification. 3. Call our business office if the calls continue —so our new equipment and trained people can help you.

ON THE FARM FRONT

Brief Notes For The Busy Farmer

Over 50 area milk producers attended the Mastitis Workshop held at Kohler on January 16th. The local milk committee and their counterparts in other counties are to be congratulated for their excellent support of this worthy program. In spite of all that has been said and done, Mastitis is a continuing problem with dairymen. It is gratifying to members of the Veterinary Services Branch that in spite of the several years this program has been underway, the attendance increases. Further, we were pleased to note that even some of the local dairymen who have taken advantage of the Mastitis Control Policy and who have therefore made a concentrated effort for a year or more to eradicate their problem continue to support the Mastitis Workshop. One of these dairymen reported that in the first fifteen minutes he attended the program, he had picked up one additional idea that was worth his attendance.

The new president of the Haldimand 4-H Club Leaders' Association is Fred Topp, R. R. 3, Canfield. At their recent annual meeting, club leaders gave some thought to the 1968 4-H Program. While it is not ready for announcement yet, it is expected that organization of clubs will be held during the week of the middle of March.

-oOo-

On June 1, 1967, the state of Iowa was reported to have 15,332,000 hogs and pigs. Total Canadian hog population on that date was 6,012,000 head.

The above reminds us to mention the annual meeting of the Haldimand Hog Producers to be held on the evening of Wednesday, February 7th, at Kohler. Other events of interest to hog producers will be a special program on Feeding and Management of hogs and Disease Control on February 21st, again at Kohler. The best two authorities on these subjects will be on hand. And then there is the 1968 Swine Conference to be held at the O.A.C. Guelph on February 2. All producers are invited.

-oOo-

Authorities at the Ontario Veterinary College have recently mentioned that the present tendency to larger specialized livestock enterprises has created a number of new problems in animal health. This has increased the need for an expansion of research programs.

The Haldimand Milk Committee has been anxious to make sure that all milk producers of the county are aware of the annual meeting to be held Monday January 29th at the Cayuga Technical and Commercial High School starting at 8 o'clock. The committee has set as its goal the continuation of last year's policy, that is to set a new high standard for farm meetings. As mentioned last year, farm business is big business and the annual meeting should reflect this just as the annual meeting of a large corporation would. In case it wasn't noticed in the announcement of the meeting, ladies have been especially invited.

PROVINCES MUST HELP SAVE WATER

Water resources are a provincial responsibility and it is up to the province to take the initiative in finding a solution to the water problems of the Pembina Triangle. Unless this is done quickly, existing industries may be forced to close, many agricultural crops will no longer be grown and the whole economy of the area will suffer immeasurably. —Altona (Man.) CAYUGA DETACHMENT

O.P.P. WEEKLY REPORT

The Cayuga Detachment reports 13 property damage accident in which 2 hit and run accidents are included and 2 personal injury accidents with injury to 4 persons during the week of January 14-20, 1968.

Officers investigated 2 thefts, 1 breakin, 6 minor complaints and rendered 2 requests for assistance.

During a patrol of 3,640 miles, our officers issued 16 warnings and 12 Highway Traffic Act charges.

In Magistrate's Court, Cayuga on Thursday, January 18, 1968, 32 convictions were registered for this detachment.

The majority of accidents investigated recently by our officers indicate that the major cause was speed too fast for road or weather conditions. A maximum posted speed of 50 or 60 mph certainly would not apply when road conditions were bad. If motorists would slow down and keep a safe distance when roads are hazardous then the accidents would decrease.

Officers of this Detachment are reporting that farm tractors have been operating at night with a white light showing to the rear. Section 33, subsection 25 of the Highway Traffic Act requires a farm tractor operating on a highway at night shall display two white lighted lamps at the front and at least one lighted red lamp on the rear. This also applies under unfavourable atmospheric conditions.

O.P.P. DESIGNS NEW SERVICE BADGE

O.P.P. Commissioner E. H. Silk, Q. C., announces the development of a new "Service Badge" that will be awarded for recognition of service within the Ontario Provincial Police Force.

This new symbol of service takes the form of the province's floral emblem "The Trillium", and will replace the stereo type "Service Bar" that has been used by the Force since 1941.

"It is important for a Force steeped in the history and traditions of this province, to have as a recognition of the service that helps create these traditions, a meaningful symbol of that service. For this reason the Trillium' which was adopted as the province's official floral emblem in 1937, has been selected by our Force, Commissioner Silk stated".

The service badge will be a replica of the 'Trillium', embroidered in gold thread on a one inch square, navy blue background.

The "Trillium Service Badge" will be applied to two areas of service awards that are granted to O.P.P. personnel—

The first being recognition for the completion of every five years of service. One service badge for each five years served is worn on the lower left sleeve of the members tunic. It is possible for a member to receive 8 service badges, which would represent 40 years of service with the Force.

The second area applies to the Force's 20 year "Long Service and Good Conduct Medal". This medal was first awarded by the Force in 1949, and its purpose is indicated by its title. Having received the Long Service and Good Conduct Medal, and upon completion of a further 5 years service, a Bar will be added to the "Service Medal Riband." Attached to this Bar will be a miniature Trillium in metal, denoting various years of service as follows:

25 years—silver bar and one trillium
30 years—silver bar and two trilliums
35 years—gold bar and one trillium
40 years—gold bar and two trilliums

For regular service wear the member awarded the Bar will display a miniature silver or gold trillium, directly on the Long Service ribbon in accordance with his years of service.

HOMEMADE BETTER

COURTENAY, B. C. (CP)—Homemade candles are better because they last longer, won't drip and allow for originality, says Lily Perrin who conducts pre-Christmas night school classes in candle-making at this Vancouver Island community. In addition to using their candles for decorations, some members of her classes sold them to earn extra Christmas money.

ON TRIAL

Russell D. Horsburgh, 48, former United Church of Canada Minister on trial in Chatham for a second time, was found not guilty on two charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency.

Three similar charges were also dismissed by Judge J. H. R. Kirkpatrick of Kitchener. Horsburgh was originally convicted of five charges for allegedly encouraging boys and girls under 16 to have sexual intercourse in Park Street United Church, Chatham, where he operated a youth club.

He was sentenced to one year in jai in the summer of 1964 but was released after three months when the Supreme Court of Canada squashed the conviction in a 4-to-3 decision.

RETURNED TO JOBS

About 150 Don Jail guards and 25 matrons on strike since December 30 returned to work after agreeing to a settlement with the Ontario government.

The guards and court employees, mtmbers of Locals 878 and 79 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, voted unanimously to accept the settlement which recognizes CUPE as representatives of the guards in magistrates' courts but denies the union bargaining rights.

The guards struck when the provincial government ruled they would be represented by the Civil Service Association when the province took over the administration of justice January 1st.

Federation Facts - - -

January is the month to begin your bookkeeping for 1968. Many farmers claim to keep books but all this amounts to is saving bills and receipts for income tax filing purposes.

An up to date system of record keeping not only simplifies filing of income tax but provides valuable information for the profitable management of the farm.

Attempts at organizing farm management clubs in this county have not met with much success. This seems odd because we are always hearing of the economic problems in agriculture.

The record of those farm operators who have set up a farm management program based on a good bookkeeping system is excellent. They have increased their income through changes in their farm program indicated by an analysis of their business.

One of the major problems facing agricultural organizations when making presentations to government is a lack of records. Virtually no cost of production records are available for most major farm commodities. There just aren't enough farmers keeping books to provide an accurate average cost of production figure. This of course could be remedied if farmers were interested enough in their own business to join an organized bookkeeping service.

The Ontario Federation of Agriculture has initiated such a service which will eventually be tied into a national bookkeeping service and the use of a computer. It will be organized on a county or district basis and for a fee members will avail themselves of a service including income tax filing deductions for Workmen's compensation, Canada Pension Plan Unemployment Insurance, and T-4 slips.

Directors of the Haldimand County Federation of Agriculture have decided not to try to promote this bookkeeping service at least for this year. However, the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food Branch in Cayuga is sponsoring a two year farm management course. It is designed to set a farmer up in an acceptable bookkeeping system and to provide some management assistance as well. It should be particularly attractive to those who have just started farming but is open to all. The success of this venture will no doubt have some bearing on how soon the Ontario Federation of Agriculture bookkeeping service may be started in the county. At their directors meeting last week directors agreed to support the Department of Agriculture and Food Farm Management project, and to encourage all farmers to take advantage of this offer.

This Week

Southern Ontario was paralysed for most of the week as the worst storm in 20 years disrupted power and telephone service to thousands of homes, felled trees and isolated many communities. Hundreds of schools were closed and business affected as freezing rain Sunday was followed by nearly a foot of snow.

Hardest hit were London and Toronto. Power to some homes in the London area was knocked out for more than three days and city officials asked that the Ontario government declare it a disaster area.
