Young People Report On Their Trip

The Jarvis United Church Young Peoples and their chaperones Mr. and Mrs. George Wardell, left Brantford on Monday March 17 for their 14 hour train ride to South Porcupine They were hosted by the Porcupine Interdenominational Hi-C Group under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. George Leck. They enjoyed tours through the MacIntyre Gold and Copper mine, Texas Gulf concentrator, a pulp and paper mill, a lumber mill and the town of Timmins. Northern hospitality was excellent. The young people made many friends and hope to entertain the Porcupine Group during the summer holidays.

The trip was financed mainly by the members themselves. Funds to provide tickets for the chaperones and a small contribution to each member were raised by a slave day, a car wash and a bake sale. The balance of the fund will be used for a welfare project.

The group wish to acknowledge with gratitude the assistance of their chaperones and the support of the community in their fund raising effort.

Who Is Liable

The Unemployment Insurance Commission has passed on answers to some of the questions that have puzzled contributors. Your question too can be referred to this feature for reply.

Q. A farm labourer I employed on my farm told me he was not liable for Unemployment Insurance contributions. I believed him and now after he left me at the end of the harvest, I have been told he was liable and that I must pay both his and the employer contributions for all the months he was with me. Please help me put this matter right. How do I go about it?

A. If he is a member of your family he was not insurable, but if he was not he was insurable. You must then pay your share of contributions and that of your employee.

Q. I will soon be moving to another province. Am I required to obtain another insurance book, or can I continue using the one I have now?

A. You will not be required to obtain another insurance book. Your present one is valid in every province. The Umeployment Insurance Act and Regulations are the same throughout Canada.

Q. I recently received a retroactive increase in my wages, but my employer did not adjust the stamps which had already been placed in my book for the back period. Is this correct?

A. Contributions are not adjusted on retroactive increases. At the time the stamps were affixed, they were based on the actual salary received, Your employer, however, should have added the retroactive pay to the current pay period at the time the monies were paid, and the Unemployment Insurance deduction should be based on the total amount.
