Shot Dead by a Policeman.

POLICEMAN HAWKINS KILLS AN UN-KNOWN MAN IN HAMILTON.

HAMILTON, Sept. 26.—An unknown man was shot at 6 o'clock this morning by Policeman Hawkins, and died a few minutes thereafter.

The dead man came to the city on Saturday last, and engaged lodgings at Mrs. Nellie Spencer's house, 74 Youngie street. He never went out his room except at night, and then he always seemed anxious to avoid being looked at. He had exhibited a roll of bills, and seemed to have a considerable amount of money with him. On one of her visits to the room Mrs. Spencer saw a large revolver in one of the drawers in the dresser.

The stranger was never out of the house at meal hours, whatever he ate was always brought into his room and stowed away in the dresser. His fare consisted of bread and cheese and raw tomatoes; at least this was all he ever brought into his room, and he was never out long enough to get anything to eat elsewhere.

These peculiar actions aroused Mrs.
Spencer's suspicions, and made her extremely nervous. A lady who was boarding in the house, and whose room adjoined that of the stranger, was also very much alarmed, and would not remain in her room, but came downstairs and stayed with Mrs. Spencer.

THE POLICE NOTIFIED.
Mrs. Spencer at last could contain herself no longer. She notified the police, and yesterday Sergeant Mc-Mahon, Detective Reid and Constables Coulter and Campaign went up to the house. Mrs. Spencer went upstairs to the room and receiving no answer, she called out that a gentleman wished to see him downstairs. Still no answer, although the man was in the room.

After a whispered consultation between the officers they went up in a body to the door of the room and told the man who they were and asked him to come out. There was still no response, and no efforts on the part of the officers could bring any sound from the occupant of the room. Detective Reid and Sergt. McMahon went down to the station and consulted Chief Mc-Kimmon. The Chief instructed them to watch the place closely and not to make any attempt to break in till daylight.
When Detective Reid and Sergeant McMahon returned to the house they were accompanied by Constable Hawkins.

Just about 6 o'clock this morning a buzzer was placed against the side of the house, and Constable Hawkins mounted to look in at the window. As soon as Hawkins reached the window bill he flashed his bullseye into the room. There he saw crouched in the corner opposite the window, the form of a man, and heard the click of a revolver, quickly followed by a "snap." Hawkins descended, and then the party, leaving a man to guard the window, went through the house and upstairs. This time, too, they heard no noise, and after a moment's halt Detective Reid forced open the door.

THE FATAL SHOT FIRED.
The door had opened up but two or three inches, and was being held on the other side, when a shot from a revolver in the hands of the occupant of the room, crashed through the door and passed just between the heads of Constables Hawkins and Gibbs, the latter having also joined the posse. Then Constable Hawkins quickly drew his revolver and fired through the crack at the back of the now partly open door.
The door suddenly slammed tight and there was silence for a moment. But for just a moment, for soon the police and officers outside could hear a distinct moaning or groaning, as of some one in great pain. They again opened the door and entered. The occupant of the room was found lying on the bed, with his head towards the foot, and he was bathed in his blood.

A 32-calibre "Defender" revolver, with one empty and still smoking chamber, lay beside him on the bed.
He was asked who he was and why he had not opened his room door when asked to, but did not reply. The only word he uttered was "water," "water." Blood was streaming from a bullet hole in his breast as he lay on his side. He lay still for a moment, and then, with a last moan, he was dead. Coroner Wol-verton was at once notified of the occurrence and had the body removed to the morgue, where it is now lying.

THE DEAD MAN.

The body is that of a middle-aged man, of medium height and sandy complexion. His hair is fine and somewhat darker than his beard, which is quite reddish in appearance. The features are strong and well-formed, but his teeth are dark and somewhat worn. His half open eyes are a dark bluish gray. His hands are white and bear no mark of toil or work, but his feet, one of which was bare, are horny and hard looking, though clean, as though he had walked a great deal.

As he lay on the dissecting table in the morgue, the dead stranger was dressed in a coarse, striped woolen undershirt, a pair of old, dark tweed trousers, and a pair of drawers the same as his shirt. On the left foot there was a soiled merino sock. On the floor of the chamber house, at the dead man's feet, there was a tweed coat and vest, a collar and tie, one sock, and a pair of coarse boots. The boots were not very much worn, but the soles were quite thin on the outside edges.

WHAT WAS FOUND ON HIM.

When searched in the room in which he died the police found on the stranger the following: Four dollars in American bills, a $5 American gold piece, an American silver dollar, some small change and a ticket from St. Thomas to Hamilton, dated Sept. 19, 1889. There were no papers by which the man might be identified, nor any mark by which it could be learned where he came from.

Constable Hawkins, who lives at 81 Emerald street, joined the force in 1883.
His age is about 35. He is a large man, weighing over 200 pounds and measuring about 6 feet. Before coming to this country Hawkins was on the Manchester police force. He has always enjoyed a good reputation on the force here. He is regarded by the chief as a conscientious, moral officer. In the chief's opinion, he is one of the best men on the force. He has never had a bad entry against his name in the defaulters' book.

One thing that is freely discussed in connection with the matter is the fact that the officers who barricaded the stranger's bedroom were there without a warrant. Proceedings such as the officers undertook are said to be illegal and unjustifiable. Another point discussed is the random firing of Constable Hawkins. The stranger being molested without reason had undoubtedly some excuse for firing a random shot.
What justification had the constable?
This is a case which it seems should be taken out of the hands of the local police and put in charge of the Ontario Government's special officers.

THE INQUEST.

Coroner Wolverton opened an inquest on the body this afternoon. Mrs. Spencer was the only witness examined. The evidence adduced showed conclusively that when deceased arrived at her house last Saturday he had a large sum of money in his possession. He asked for thread and needle and evidently sewed it up in some of his clothing, but although search was made it has not as yet been found. The coroner asked all this; but the jury to retire and addressed the latter body for half an hour. The jury will visit the scene of the tragedy to-morrow. The inquest was adjourned until to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock.

The Wilson Scales.

We would call attention to the advertisement of the Wilson scales. We seldom say anything in favor of articles advertised in this paper; but we cannot refrain from saying something in favor of the improved Wilson scales, because any person having anything to do with scales will acknowledge them as a true standard of correctness, and the largest concerns in the country are using them in preference to any other make. We would like every farmer to have one of them in his barn, and not take the word of the buyer every time he comes to town to sell his grain.

Madrid papers report that the bargue seized on the coast of Morocco was a notorious smuggler, conveying arms and powder to a rival tribe.

The Afghan Ameer's method of vengeance on his rebel prisoners is pretty highly devoted. One batch, numbering 300, were put to death three days.
One of the trio was always hanged dressed in yellow and green, another was dressed in black and blown from a gun, and the third was dressed in red and cut up with a sword.

The Old Reliable.

In these days of humbug it is a relief to hear of something that can be depended upon. Wilson's Wild Cherry has been tested as a remedy for the cure of all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, for nearly twenty years, with such success as to earn for itself the title of The Old Reliable cure for Coughs, Cold, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis and other affections of the respiratory system.
See that you get the genuine, in white wrappers. Sold by all druggists.

Wm. Luckett, a brakeman on the Au-Sable and North-western railroad, was aged 25.
