Just imagine your wife not being able to speak for ten days. What a change there would be in the house! What an unnatural silence! A case of this kind occurred in Hamilton some time ago, and one bottle of Wilson's Wild Cherry cured the afflicted lady in four days. This medicine has no equal for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough or Croup. Sold by all druggists.

I have used your MINARD'S LINIMENT for a broken breast; it reduced the inflammation and cured me in 10 days.

The three-year-old daughter of Mr. Ed. Davis, of Avimer, met with a somewhat bad accident on Tuesday. She was playing in the kitchen, and becoming interested in the operations of her mother, who was in the act of baking, the little one attempted to climb on the table, when it upset, the edge striking her just above the nose, cutting a bad gash. Dr. Marlett found it necessary to take three stitches.

Big Interest.

The biggest interest on any investment is that obtained by buying a bottle of B. B. B. The dividends of strength, health and vigor are always realized, and there are no assessments. Burdock Blood Bitters, the great blood purifier, costs one dollar a bottle—about one cent a dose.

Health in Herbs.

Health-giving herbs, barks, roots and berries are carefully combined in Burdock Blood Bitters, which regulate the secretions, purify the blood and renovate and strengthen the entire system. Price $1 a bottle, six for $5. Less than 1 cent a dose.

Selection of Dairy Cows.

To those engaged in dairying the selection of the cows is one of the most important items of the business. Even where the aim is to rear beef, the dairyman it is important that he should know the other indications which point in the direction of superior milk development, as where these are largely wanting the young animal may be disposed of for some other use.

The tokens indicating a good dairy cow are not always infallible, but they are sufficiently clear to serve as general guides in their selection. When we meet a cow of beefy build and sluggish disposition we may take it for granted that she at least will not fill the bill as a dairy cow. A good dairy cow must possess a feminine look which is at once the opposite of masculinity. Her head and horns should not be strong, her neck should not be thick, her shoulders should not be broad nor her brisket beefy, nor should her limbs be coarse and heavy. If these masculine characteristics are present in combination she should certainly be rejected for the dairy, and if any one of them is present she is so far less desirable as a dairy cow. She must possess a good strong healthy constitution without which good wholesome milk will not be produced at a profit. The indications of this are a full bright eye, and movement which is the opposite of sluggishness.

We usually find associated with these indications a good chest, indicating large breathing capacity, a vigorous circulation of the blood and active digestion of the food consumed, all of which favor the production of a large return in the milk or butter product. The development of the udder should be large. It should neither hang the body, nor be over pendulous. The teats should be squarely placed on the ribs, and be neither too large or too small for comfort in milking. The udder should be elastic and yielding to the touch, and the skin and hair which cover it should be fine and pliable. There should be large development of the hind-quarters of the cow as compared with the fore-quarters. They should be broad at the hocks and tail head. The hips, however, should be somewhat thin and the twist should be open. The skin of the cow generally should be mellow and movable, especially on the ribs, and should not be thick, although the opposite extreme of what is termed piperity is to be avoided. The hair covering it should be plentiful, and soft and silky. The barrel should be large, relatively large, which gives plenty of room for the storage of large quantities of food. The tucked up pinched body is especially to be avoided, although an undue lowering of the underline is not desirable. A shoulder line on the top and a neck fine and tapering from the shoulder forward are good points. A small long face, a broad forehead, and a wide muzzle.

It is very important that the dairy cow should possess a nervous temperament, otherwise she will convert her food into beef rather than into milk. She cannot then be a sleepy-head, but is active and sprightly in her observations and movements.

The size of the milk veins and the nature of the escutcheon are looked upon as of some value by most dairy-men, but others do not lay much stress upon these points. The larger and more tortuous the vein the more desirable it is considered, and the more space occupied by the escutcheon and the more curly the hair the better is the indication considered. Where a preponderance of the indications are found in one cow she is certain to render good service in the dairy.—The Canadian Live Stock and Farm Journal for November.

A Source of Joy.

DEAR SIRS.—My young sisters were attacked by croup so badly that we almost despaired and had little hope of curing them. At last we applied Haggard's Yellow Ointment and to our great joy it cured them perfectly, and they now enjoy the blessing of perfect health.
