They were exchanging views. "I wouldn't run away with any girl. I remember going boldly up to the old man and asking him for his daughter. He told me to go to Hades." And did you go?" "Well," he mused, hesitatingly and reflectively, "I married the girl."

Another instance of the power of the press. "When we came to this town," says a Georgia editor, "it was little more than a water tank, but now the best whiskey in the country is sold here and there are ten moonlight stills in active operation in the country. A newspaper is a power for good in any community."

"I would like you to give my son a chance in your printing office," "What can the boy do?" "Well at first he couldn't do anything more than edit your paper and take general charge of the mechanical department, but later on, when he learns sense, he'll be handy to have around to wash windows, keep lamp chimneys clean and sift ashes."

The Family Herald and Weekly Star Montreal, has its enormous circulation because it does not encroach upon the local country paper's work. People everywhere find they need the Family Herald and Weekly Star, Montreal, in addition to their own local weekly. The Family Herald and Weekly Star has an enormous staff of high-salaried editors, and spends large sums gathering general news of the world at large, besides employing money freely in adding to its literary miscellany.

Literary Note.

The New York Leader for October 4 is a mine of literary fact and fiction regarding the South, both the New South and the Old. It leads off with a brilliant character sketch of Henry W. Grady, journalist, orator and patriot, written by Oliver Dyer, in which the effect on the New South of Grady's life-work is luminously explained. A crisp editorial on "The Marvelous Revival of Prosperity in the South" tells its own tale. The Old South is pictured in the opening first limit of a Kentucky war story entitled "Reminiscences," the pen-product of a distinguished southern officer. In "For Isabel," Maurice Thompson gives a vignette of ante-bellum life in Louisiana. James Patton tells the story of Caesar Rodney of Delaware. An illustrated ballad by Thomas Dunn English and a story by Mrs. Amelia E. Barr are published in the same number.
