"Like Magic,"

The effect produced by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Colds, Coughs, Croup, and Sore Throat are, in most cases, immediately relieved by the use of this wonderful remedy. It strengthens the vocal organs, allays irritation, and prevents the inroads of Consumption; in every stage of that dread disease, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral relieves coughing and induces refreshing rest.

"I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for thirty years and have always found it the best remedy for croup, to which complaint my children have been subject."—Capt. C. Carley, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"From an experience of over thirty years in the sale of proprietary medicines, I feel justified in recommending Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. One of the best recommendations of the Pectoral is the enduring quality of its popularity, it being more salable now than it was twenty-five years ago, when its great success was considered marvellous."—E. S. Drake, M. D., Beloit, Kansas.

"My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skillful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine; saying that he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I can truly say, with the most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This has given me unbounded faith in the preparation, and I recommend it confidently to my customers."—C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1890.

Training Institute.

During the present year an addition has been made to the course of study required to qualify for Assistant High School Teachers. During the midsummer vacation art graduates of our colleges or first-class teachers, who desire to qualify as High School Assistants are required to attend a seven-weeks course in what is termed the Training Institute in Toronto, in which lectures are delivered on hygiene, esthetics and drill, penmanship, penmanship, elocution and pedagogy. On the completion of the seven weeks the students then go to one of the High Schools, to which Teaching Institutes are attached and remain three months longer learning to teach. Toronto, Hamilton Kingston, Stratford and we think, Owen Sound, are the Training High Schools.
On passing the required examinations on the theory and practice of teaching, etc., at the end of the term, the candidates are licensed to teach as High School Assistants, and after teaching two years as Assistants they are eligible (if graduates) for a headmaster of a High School. Though a first-class public School teacher may become an assistant, only University graduates are eligible for the headmastership. We quite agree with the Kingston News and other Liberal journals that this extra Training Institute at Toronto is both superfluous and unnecessary. No one would expect either elocution or penmanship to be taught in our High Schools, nor would the average parent want his son's time frittered away in learning esthetics. As for penmanship a pupil is supposed to have learned it while passing through the Public School. Since the object of High Schools is supposed to be the training of the intellect rather than making specialists while we believe in elating every profession, we do not see the need of spending time and money uselessly.
If a young man or woman desires to become an elocutionist or shorthand writer there are schools for this special purpose, and so long as they are not High School subjects it is a waste of time to compel the teachers to learn them.—Star Waterford.

What Does It Cost?

Very few farmers are able to tell what it costs them to raise to maturity a horse or cow, and when they sell an animal they do not know whether they have gained or lost in the deal. In England more attention is paid to keeping accounts of stock than in this country.
An English horse raiser can tell to a cent what a three-year old horse he has raised costs him and can put a selling price on the animal with the assurance that he is not selling without a profit.
It is said that the average cost of raising a three-year old in England is $80.
Keep an account of your stock, charging to each animal his just share of the same and duly crediting it for all returns made, and you will know which animal to keep and which to sell.

The Wilson Scales.

We would call attention to the advertisement of the Wilson scales. We seldom say anything in favor of articles advertised in this paper; but we cannot refrain from saying something in favor of the improved Wilson scales, because any person having anything to do with scales will acknowledge them as a true standard of correctness, and the largest concerns in the country are using them in preference to any other make. We would like every farmer to have one of them in his barn, and not take the word of the buyer every time he comes to town to sell his grain.

A Boy's Lesson.
A SERMON THAT WAS SEEN, BUT NOT HEARD.

"It was the shortest and most effective sermon I ever witnessed—didn't hear it."
The gentleman who gave voice to the above remark stood chatting with a number of friends last evening in the foyer of Hooley's Theatre, awaiting the close of the last act of "The Charity Ball."

"Let us have it," said one of the listeners. "Anything in the shape of a sermon which could interest you must be one of paramount importance."
"Oh, it won't take long to tell it.
There was not a word said in the sermon—just a motion that's all. Boy made the motion—was the preacher."

"Well tell us about it, why don't you?"
"While waiting for a grip-car on the corner of Ashland avenue and Madison street this evening," he began, "I noticed a number of little chaps, hopping on and off the cars whenever the conductor's back was turned. It looked like dangerous play, and I felt like catching one of them and giving him a good old-fashioned spanking. Besides myself there was a gray-haired, kindly-faced old gentleman, who looked on the antics of the boys rather sadly."

"Suddenly the old gentleman, in a shrill voice, cried out to the youngsters, 'Boys, boys, don't jump on those cars.
Some of you will surely get hurt.' But of course the rascals paid no attention to him, in fact they laughed as they continued their sport at every opportunity. I had missed several eastbound grips, so interested was I in what was going on."

"Again the old fellow called the lads:
'Boys, come here a moment and let me tell you how foolish you are and what danger you are placing yourselves in by leaping on and off those cars.' The boys seemed led up to the curbstone near the walk where the old man was standing and prepared to listen to what he might have to say."

"Did you ever hear your pupils read of the many accidents which happen to little fellows like you while playing about moving cars? Did you ever see any person who had been hurt by his carelessness on a grip train?"

"There was no answer, except that the young rogues looked at each other and a sort of grinned and wondered why the old gentleman took such an interest in them and their sports. And evidently grandfather read their thoughts, for he hastily added:—'I have a little grandson who played about these cars, though forbidden to do so by the conductors as well as his parents. He does not do so now, does he, Frankie?' asked the old man, as he turned to a flaxen-haired, blue-eyed little fellow who stood beside him."

"No, grandfather," answered the boy.
"And will you tell these foolish little fellows why he does not?"

"Now, here's the sermon," said the man in the foyer. "The boy made no answer; he just shoved out the stump of what had once been his right leg and burst into tears. That was all. The kind old grandpa kissed his pretty but crippled grandson, and with his hand on his shoulder the two slowly walked up the avenue."

"Well, sir, these little rascals stood still for a moment or so and gazed with wide eyes at the crippled boy as he moved away. Then, with very earnest faces, they quickly turned corners and went their various ways to their homes as thoughtfully as though they were going to their own funerals. Th it's the sermon, the most impressive that I ever witnessed, for there was nothing to hear about it."

"Quite so," vouchsafed one of the party, "but it's dollars to pennies that these little fellows were back again in inside of an hour making the life of the conductors a burden."

"Well, perhaps. Guess you're right Boys will be boys."—Chicago Mail.

Tanning Cows Hides in India.

What is India coming to? Her chi-valrous barbers of Bombay refuse to shave widows' heads. And a brace of Brahmins have started a tannery and leather business in Upper India. To add as it were insult to the injury thus inflicted upon the holy Brahmin caste, both these cow-gods tanners are named after Krishna—the favourite deity of the Hindus. Does the "White Brahmin" know what all this means?
He does not. The cow is the Hindu's sacred beast; the reverent kissing of her tail, the pouring of prayers into her long hairy ears, is one of the most curious sights at sacred festivals and elsewhere. To kill a cow, to skin a cow, and then to the audacity to hound her hide—will not the deities of Mount Meru toss India into the bottom of the Kali pan? What next? Here's a Hindu paper, The Mirror, written and edited by Hindus, some of them Brahmins, as well as Brahmins, praising these two Krishnas up to the skies.
Others of their race are joining in the chorus of laudation and expressing the hope that native tanneries may start up in thousands all over India.— London Daily News.

Lord Stanley visited the St. Clair tunnel Thursday, and expressed admiration at the engineering skill displayed in its construction.
