We think ourselves, as a matter be worn at weddings and the theatre. of observation, that English men and women have profited by the cheaper are single breasted sacks of beaver cloth decidedly bigger than when we were lads, limited class, the well-to-do section of the middle class, has become decidedly bigger, healthier, and, as regards its younger women, apparently taller than was the case forty years ago. We cannot understand how there can be any doubt upon the subject, and would appeal with the utmost confidence to any jury of mothers accustomed to mix in general society. They would say, thereby correcting an omission in the popular view, that in seven out of ten families they knew, the sons were larger than the fathers, unless the latter were specially big men; and that the daughters not only were larger than the mothers, but that they at all events seemed to be taller statement. The first cause of bulk and stature is probably racedo not mean superior race, for the Negroes of many districts are bigger than are the English, and the "barbarians" were all bigger than the Roman soldiers who ance alike of pedigree and conditions of life usually involved in that word; but the second cause is diet in infancy; and the third training in childhood and early youth. Much milk, for example, makes good hones ; and soldiers caught young visibly lengthen out under their food and drill. In both these latter conditions, the change within the last generation—we are speaking only they have galoches of patent leather with of the well-to-do-has been very great kid tops. indeed. The world has grown unconsciously much wiser as to the management of chilish tan shades, and are worn in English good milk—that, and not porridge, is the cause of the tall Highlanders, Irishmen and Sikhs—and the little children of our day fastened by two buttons are nourished on cream-and-water, or milk procured from the great dairies, which is bell-shaped than that worn last season, and from the milk of thirty years ago as men measuring six and three-fourth inches, very cows are of a different breed, not to inch less. mention the improvement in their food and lodging. Then a prejudice of an extraordinarily injurious character-we write these sentences on first-class medical evidence-has silently, no one knows why, entirely disappeared. Nothing nourishes entirely disappeared. Nothing nourishes like good sugar, possessing as it does just that of the "old school" idea that Conthe requisite heat-giving quality, but the the requisite heat-giving quality; but the mothers of 1830-50 dreaded sugar. They had an idea that it sickened babies, who always crave for it like horses for salt; that it spoilt the teeth of growing children; and that it swelled the tongues of children a little more advanced in years—the last a fancy based on the effect of sucking taffy. They therefore withheld sugar, thus leaving the children half nourished, and permanently sensitive to a climate which for seven months in the year is always chilly. Nowadays, everybody among the culti vated knows that sugar is beneficial, and the children are left to their instincts, with the result that they make flesh, and are almost always warm. Then the matrons of 1830-50 had a fixed idea, incurable by the men, who never quite gave in to it, that children, if left alone, would invariably over-eat themselves, a theory true of about 5 per cent. The nurseries were dieted like prisons, with the result—all nurses exaggerating the popular ideas-that the children who longed for food were never fed enough, and the children who disliked much food-a peculiarity of many good constitutions-were gorged to indigestion. And finally, children are kept warm enough. The horrible old idea of those two decades, that children should be "hardened" by exposure, has died away the nurseries, besides being properly ventilated, are kept warm, and the whole principle of children's clothing has been radically, and we hope finally, modified in the sense that the "body," as distinguished from the limbs, is thoroughly and warmly clad. The result is, that the child with a tendency to grow does grow, and that a greatly increased percentage of boys run towards 5 feet 11 inches, and of girls towards 5 feet 8 inches and 5 feet 9 inches, than has ever been the case before. Moreover, as the boys and girls grow naturally. they keep their good looks, and, except for a year or two of life, it has become a positive rarity to see "gawky" lads and lasses, as great a rarity as to see the latter with the shining red elbows which forty years ago were at once the most dreaded and the most frequent of the minor deformities. The improvement always, mind, in a strictly limited class which hardly considers the cost of food, is manifest at every turn, and is reported not only by every artist, but every caricaturist in the country. The undersized lads and skinny girls have disappeared from pictures of the middle class, even when drawn with distinctly hostile

Soft fabrics with slightly rough finish, says Harper's Bazar, are worn by welldressed men at all hours of the day and evening. Their business and travelling suits are of dark lamb's wool or of vicuna cloth, or else of lighter plaids and checks. The principal colors are blue and black mixed and very dark brown. The coat is a single-breasted sack fastened by three or four buttons, with vest to match.

Frock-coats are made very long, extremnows towards tall girls, about which so many essays have already been written, and that girls are made and the solution of the that girls are manifestly taller than they faced lapels, and a cord finish on the edges were, is, we think, true; but it requires instead of braid. # A Great Explosion :

In these days of gunpowder, dynamite, giant powder, and the like, tremendous explosions are no rarity, but the greatest exsumption is incurable. Thousands of lives have been sacrificed to this mistaken notion. Modern research has established the fact that Consumption is a scrofulous disease of the lungs, and that there is one remedy which will positively eradicate it from the system-Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Of course, there were in the olden times many who would have pronounced modern explosives instruments of witchcraft: but there are, fortunately, few to-day who do not acknowledge that the "Golden Medi cal Discovery" is the one sovereign remedy for all scrofulous diseases, and Consumption is one of them.

"I don't like the breath of that stove!" exclaimed little Ethel one day when the gas was escaping from the sitting-room stove. Coal-gas is like the "perfumes of India," compared with the breath of a person afflicted with catarrh, but among many other symptoms the sense of smell is often deadened, so the sufferer is unconscious of the offensiveness of his presence. Why any one will endure such a painful, dangerous and offensive disease, when Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy-costing only 50 centswill cure the most stubborn case, is one of the many mysteries. The proprietors are so confident of the success of this Catarrh Remedy, that they offer to forfeit $500 for any case of Catarrh they cannot cure. It would be suicide for their remedy, for them to make this offer, unless they understood its exact powers.

TARRING AND PRATHERING. How it Feels to Undergo That Humiliating

People who read of tarring and feathering by white caps and others know that the because the dislike to long engagements and peaked lapels are equally popular. The increases—and three years is now a long engagement—and because the poorest and peaked lapels are faced only to the button was won by a pair of Canadians, and that globe-Democrat. In Wyoming I once saw a man who had been tarred and feathered. for the best lady's saddle horse went to the a man who had been tarred and feathered and, although he fully deserved the discipline I could not help pitying him. Hardened tar is very hard to remove from the skin, and when feathers are added it forms a kind of cement that sticks closer than a brother. As soon as the tar sets the victim's suffering begins. It contracts as it cools, and every one of the little hairs on the body is pulled, causing the most exquisite agony. The perspiration is entirely stopped, and unless the tar is removed death is certain to ensue. But the removal is no easy task and requires several days. The tar cannot be softened by the application of heat and must be peeled off bit by bit, sweet oil being used to make the process less painful. The irritation to the skin is very great, as the hairs cannot be disengaged but must be pulled out or cut off. No man can be cleaned of tar in a single day, as the operation would be too excruciating for endurance, and unless this is done he has to suffer from a pain like that of 100,000 pin pricks. Numbers of men have died under the torture, and none who have gone through it regard tarring and feathering as anything but a most fearful infliction.

> "Four years ago," writes Col. David Wylie, Brockville, Ont., May, 1888, "I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and could not stand on my feet. The pain was excruciating. I was blistered and purged in true orthodox style, but all to no purpose. I was advised to try St. Jacobs Oil which I did. I had my ankles well rubbed and then wrapped with flannel saturated with the remedy. In the morning I could walk without pain."

Her face was clear and smooth, her cheeks, fresh and rosy, her eyes bright with perfect health and the enjoyment of She had passed the critical "change of life" without falling into "the sere and vellow leaf," as most American women do. How had she succeeded in doing this? Simply by using Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription at a time when nature stood in need of some assistance. She had taken it at the right time. In doing this she was wise. Wiser than most women who "trust to luck " in getting through the critical and trying period safely. This standard remedy is just what is needed at such a time. It is, from girlhood to old age, woman's best friend. In all diseases peculiar to the sex, it accomplishes what no other remedy does -a cure. Take it, woman, when life's autumn begins, and "grow old gracefully." Your money back if it don't help you.
