A Letter From China.

The following letter written by Mr.
A. S. Bourne, freight clerk on R. M. S.
"Empress of India" between Vancouver, B. C., and Hong Kong, to his mother, Mrs. C. E. Bourne of Jarvis, will no doubt prove interesting to our many readers:—

Hong Kong, Sept. 15th, 1891.

My dear Mother,—As the "Belgie" sails to-morrow with the San Francisco mails I cannot let her go without a line to you.

My health has improved so that when I get back to Vancouver the people will hardly know me, and I can tell you it makes me feel good when I look in the glass and see how plump I am. I have had better health since I left Vancouver than I ever had in my life before, and am perfectly in love with the sea and this ship, but we've had no rough weather yet and the North Pacific has worse weather than the Atlantic; I expect we shall have all the rough weather we want to see in another month or so. I've not been sea-sick at all yet and have a wager with one of the boys at Vancouver that I won't be on the round trip. This ship is a little (or at least a big) floating palace and I am one of the saloon officers, so I get the best of everything that is going.
The saloon table could not be beaten by any hotel I ever saw; we have all the best tropical and other fruits that can be found anywhere, and cigars here are as cheap as dirt—and good ones at that. I don't kill myself with work and the Purser is a very nice fellow to get along with.

We sometimes have dinner parties on board and each one of us has the privilege of asking friends to dine with us.
We have that privilege at any time but these parties are special occasions and then the tables are gotten up in grand style. After dinner we lounge about the promenade deck and smoke or have a little concert. There are two pianos in the ship. There is also a splendid library on board.

Hong Kong is a pretty place and has many beautiful spots, but it is summer and it is not so nice as the winter. We are on board in a white coat and go with nothing under them but a net singlet (undershirt) and then the per-piration is usually trickling down ones throat and body in small rivers. Some of the officers sleep out on deck in these long rattan chairs or canvas hammocks but I stick to my cabin for fear of taking cold. Have been ashore to play tennis a couple of times here and have a standing invitation from the Supt. of the Sailors' Home to go and play tennis when I feel like it. When the people go ashore here they never walk unless for the sake of exercise. You can get a Sedan chair and two coolies to carry you for 20c. an hour, Mexican money, which is equal to 15c. of our money. Last week I went out to Happy Valley cemetery and the beauty of the place opened my eyes. One would almost imagine they were dropping into fairyland to see the lovely fountains and walks and tropical plants and flowers.

I wish this ship would make a long stay in Vancouver instead of at this end.
We have been here four weeks already and don't leave until next Tuesday—a week to-day. Coming over we called last time at Yokohama and Nagasaki in Japan and at Shanghai. In Japan I bought some fine curios which you can get very cheaply. I got a thin bamboo cane which is a very unsuspicious looking thing, but you can touch a secret spring and pull out a long thin sword about two feet long in the blade. It is a handy thing to have about here too if one should have to go ashore outside of the town as the country outside is full of highwaymen, and the China coast and seas full of pirates. There is a large steamer in port now that was gone through last November by pirates.
They had a little specie on board and these Chinamen went on board as passengers, and as soon as they were out a couple of hours took charge of the ship.
They shot the Captain dead and marched the chief officer with revolvers to his head and made him show where the specie was stowed. They got it and took it off to shore in junks they had arranged with to be on hand there and the ship then turned back to Hong Kong. The Chinese authorities arrested everyone they suspected at all, and managed to capture nineteen in different parts of China, some of whom confessed to having taken part in the plunder.
These nineteen were all beheaded at Kowloon. I am getting a couple of photographs of the scene as relics or curiosities. There is no much danger of this ship being taken by pirates as she is too large and strong and all the alleyways are protected with big iron doors, then we have a full complement of Winchester rifles and revolvers on board. It is not at all probable that they will ever be required for use against pirates, as the above is the only case known about here for a long time.

There is a British gun boat in dock just near us, H. M. S. "Tweed." She sank in one of the rivers some time ago and has been raised and brought in for repairs. A big steamer ran ashore just beyond us this morning. She struck a rock outside and filled with water and they had to run her ashore to keep her from sinking. These steamers of ours are fitted with air tight compartments and in the event of a rock being struck or a collision the part where the hole was could be shut off and the ship could travel on even with a hole in her side. But they are great strong brutes—regular mountains of iron and steel, and we have a splendid commander.
These ships are subsidized by the British Government and in case of war could be called upon for service, they are supplied with guns, &c., but do not carry them on their regular trips.

I am greatly delighted with ocean life thus far, and have dozens of comforts that I never got at Vancouver or in Portland. I am enjoying life about as well as any one now-a-days, and have about as fine a lot of shipmates as one could wish to be among. They have all been in all parts of the world, some of them round and round it many times, and some speak Hindoostanee and French, &c. They all have a great lot of interesting yarns to tell.

On this ship and in China generally they have one grand custom and that is a cup of tea in the afternoon. About 4 o'clock regularly our boys bring us a cup of fine tea and a bit of cake, no matter whether we are at work or lounging about the decks. Each officer has a Chinese servant and these servants go by the name of "boy" whether their ages be six or sixty. It's a great thing to sit in your cabin and ring or call out "boy" for everything you want.
Over the saloon table there is a punkah, which is a large swinging fan worked by a rope from outside and there is a China boy to pull that. About every house or business office as well as the churches have these punkahs to keep one cool or at least to keep one from entirely melting away.

Well, mother, I will close now and write you again in a couple of weeks telling you how your loving son A. S. BOURNE.
