

That Tired Feeling

Is a dangerous condition directly due to depleted or impure blood. It should not be allowed to continue, as in its debility the system is especially liable to serious attacks of illness. It is remarkable how beneficial Hood's Sarsaparilla is in this enervating state. Possessing just those elements which the system needs and readily seizes, this medicine purifies the blood, and imparts a feeling of strength and self-confidence. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best remedy for that weakness which prevails at change of season, climate or life.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"I believe it is to the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla that I owe my present health. In the spring, I got so completely run down I could not eat or sleep, and all the dreaded diseases of life seemed to have a mortgage on my system. I was obliged to abandon my work, and after seeking medical treatment and spending over $50 for different preparations, I found myself no better. Then my wife persuaded me to try a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before the first bottle was gone I began to amend. I have now used two bottles and have gained 22 pounds. Can eat anything without it hurting me; my dyspepsia and biliousness have gone. I never felt better in my life." W. V. EULOWS, Lincoln, Ill.

Makes the Weak Strong

"Early last spring I was very much run down, had nervous headache, felt miserable and all that. I was very much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla and recommend it." Mrs. J. M. TAYLOR, 1119 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, O.

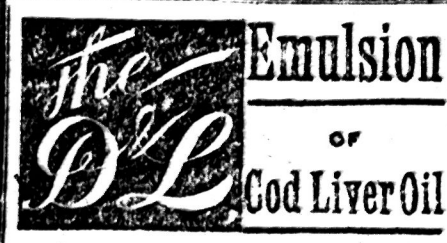

"I was very much run down in health, had no strength and no inclination to do anything. I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla and that tired feeling has left me, my appetite has returned, I am like a new man." CHAUNCEY, LATHAM, North Columbus, Ohio.

The Drug Swindle.

Some of our Western contemporaries are waging meritorious warfare on what they aptly describe as "the substitute drug swindle"—that is, the sale by some retail dealers of an article prepared in close imitation of some well known proprietary medicine in place of the genuine article. The extent to which this fraud is carried on is undoubtedly very great, quite as great in the East as in the West. There ought to be a way of reaching it by law. Perhaps there is, but the law may be so easily evaded that probably no force can be practically applied in restraint of the fraud so potent as public opinion. Whatever is to be said against the practice, all too general in America, of "padding" one's system with drugs whose qualities and functions are not known and for complaints not understood, and however much patent medicines have tended to increase this admitted evil, the fact remains that there are many such medicines with reputations established by long and extensive use, and the character of their manufacturers is to some degree a guarantee that they possess certain virtues. Extensive advertising has rendered the public in every country well familiar with their nature, with the ingredients of which they are claimed to be composed, with the diseases they are intended to subdue, with the results their use is alleged to have produced, and with the appearance of packages in which they are placed upon the market. It is a common trick, after such medicines have become known and after a demand for them has been created, for unscrupulous persons to devise inferior substitutes, meanly disguised in name and appearance, and by profitable arrangements with some retail druggists to reap the advantage of the genuine article's reputation. The druggist of whom a particular sarsaparilla or liver pill is asked doesn't happen to have that potion in stock, but instead has another, claimed, perhaps, to be his "own make," or, at least to be well known to him, which he is always prepared to recommend as cheaper than the article demanded and fully as good.

In this way a vast number of dangerous drugs are foisted upon the public in place of those which, however undesirable for use without a physician's prescription, are at least reputable and in real demand. So far has this substitution gone that the market for certain of the most favored proprietary medicines, a market created by large expenditure and tested service, is occupied now by spurious preparations that no reputable druggist ought to have upon his shelves. The chief sinner in this business, we regret to say, is to be found among the retail druggists. Not infrequently he makes himself a knowing partner in the fraud, permitting his name to be printed on the bottles in which the substitute is supplied, or even engaging directly in its manufacture. This is altogether dishonest. Those who buy patent medicines need to be warned against allowing themselves to be cheated. They take great risks whenever they permit a salesman to persuade them to buy any drug except the one they know and want. It is little enough that science in its highest exemplification understands about the human system and the treatment of diseases, and people who undertake to do their own doctoring should at least be sure that they are obtaining what they intend to obtain, and that they are not taking a cheap toadstool for a mushroom.

Why the Young Man Leaves the Farm.

(Benton World.)

While the editor was away on his vacation he saw some interesting sights not the least amusing of which was a practical demonstration of the reason "why the young man leaves the farm." The incident happened in a large dry goods house in a western city. A farmer and his son entered a store for the purpose of purchasing a ready made suit of clothes for the boy who was a lad of about sixteen years of age and just beginning to take some interest in his personal appearance. After ransacking over everything at all suitable in the store, the old man selected a seven dollar suit of clothes, which, after something less than an hour's haggling he got for $6.50. The boy not satisfied with this lavish expenditure on his person endeavored to persuade the old man to purchase him a celluloid collar and a necktie, but this the old fellow would not consent to, and after considerable talk the storekeeper, taking pity on the lad, made him a present of a tie, and the boy himself then purchased the collar from his stock of dimes, which by some unaccountable means he had saved up, having three in all. After the party had gone out, the store keeper remarked,—"Is it any wonder boys leave the farm when they have such fathers as that?" and we rather thought it was not.

"Just as Good."

Say some dealers who try to sell a substitute preparation when a customer calls for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Do not allow any such false statements as this induce you to buy what you do not want. Remember that the only reason for making it is that a few cents more profit will be made on the substitute. Insist upon having the best medicine—Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is Peculiar to itself.

In a good many respects the crop of grain in the Dominion this year is unprecedented, and the effect of it all must very soon tell upon trade generally. A farmer writing from Grenfell, Assiniboia, the other day to a grain firm in Toronto said his crop there was taking in some instances six pounds of twine to the acre, and that the binder could not go over more than two and a half acres per day. In Ontario, farmers use from two to four pounds per acre, and the grain that requires four pounds per acre is considered very heavy. The 1st budget of crop reports gathered by the C. P. R. Telegraph Superintendent at Winnipeg contains some interesting points, which may be summarized as follows:—Moose Jaw—Wheat is much the best crop raised in this district, and is expected to yield on different farms of wheat 30 to 45 bushels per acre, of barley about 60, and oats 70 to 90 bushels per acre. Regina—Barley has thrashed 60 bushels per acre. Oats very heavy. Straw five or six feet long is common. Root crops phenomenal. Delmar—Farmers unanimously expect famous yields. Some claim 50 bushels of wheat and 100 bushels of oats per acre. Manitou—It is impossible to cut to the full capacity of a binder. In many fields six foot binders will only cut three feet or less. Portage la Prairie—It is expected that 75 per cent. of total wheat crop in this district will grade No. 1 hard, and the balance will be good milling quality. Not the slightest damage by frost. The August crop bulletin of the Ontario Agricultural Department gives the average yield per acre this year of fall wheat 24.4 bush.; spring wheat, 18.8 bush.; barley 27 bush., and oats, 37.1 bush.
