

THE PROCESSIONS AT QUEEN'S FUNERAL

A Grand Military Pageant at Both Cowes and London.

THE BIG NAVAL DISPLAY.

The Queen's Pipers Marched and Played in Front of the Coffin at Cowes and the King and Emperor William Walked Behind, Followed by the Princes and Princesses—In the London Procession the King and Emperor William Rode on Horseback—The Dead Queen Arrayed in all Her Royal Robes With Her Bridal Veil and Decorations—High Prices Paid for Seats—Tributes From Canada.

The Day in Detail.
Cowes, Feb. 1.—With grand, yet mournful, display of naval pomp and power, the body of Queen Victoria was borne this afternoon from its quiet resting place in Osborne House to Portsmouth, the heart of Britain's navy. Over the still waters, between the roll of the six-pounders came the dirge of Chopin's and Beethoven's funeral march. The most powerful fleet Britain could gather on short notice lay inert and silent, save for the mournful strains of the bands and the sound of the guns that betokened neither peace nor war, but death.

Through the Fleet.
Past these and past the Hohenzollern, the huge battleships, the Alexandra, Camperdown, the Rodney and the Benbow, on through the line of battleships, still on till Japan's Hatsuse, the biggest warship in the world, was left astern, and the German Baden was seen to beam with Vice Admiral Sir Harry Hollisworth Rawson's splendid flagship, the Maestri, of the Channel squadron, the naval funeral procession slowly steamed. Ahead were eight destroyers, and seldom have these speedy craft drawn their long black hulls so sluggishly through the water.

The Funeral Ship.
Coming slowly after them was the Royal yacht Alberta, half screened by the awning on the poop, the Royal coffin placed on a crimson dais, the curtains of which were drawn back on the four poles, leaving free to view the magnificent casket and the robes. Sometimes ahead, sometimes behind, was the Trinity House yacht Irene, while in the wake of the coffin came the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert with King Edward and Queen Alexandra and the British Royal Family; the Royal yacht Osborne with other royalties; the Imperial yacht Hohenzollern, with Emperor William, the Duke and the Duchess of Connaught and others; the admiralty yacht Enchantress and a Trinity House yacht with officials on board.

An Impressive Scene.
The main squadron of battleships and cruisers were moored two and a half cables ahead of line extending from Cowes to Spithead. The channel fleet, under the command of Vice Admiral Sir Harry Hollisworth Rawson, formed the eastern portion, and the reserve fleet under Rear Admiral Sir Gerald Noel formed the western portion. The foreign war vessels were moored southwest of the British ships in the order of their arrival, and alongside of them were moored eight British gunboats, the Antelope, the Skipjack, the Leda, the Rattlesnake, the Alert, the Cree, the Speedwell.

After leaving Trinity pier, the Alberta with her attendant escort steamed along the deep channel and the coast of the Isle of Wight, and the single line of battleships and cruisers. The main line was as follows, beginning at Cowes—Alexandra, Camperdown, Rodney, Benbow, Collingwood, Colossus, Sans Pareil, Nile, Howe, Melampus, Severn, Galatea, Balleona, Pactolus, Pelorus, Diana, Conqueror, Arrogant, Minerva, Nicebe, Hero, Hood, Trafalgar, Resolution, Jupiter, Hannibal, Mars, Prince George and Majestic.

Minute guns were fired by all the ships in the Solent, and at Cowes, commencing when the Alberta left the pier. Each ship ceased firing immediately after the procession had passed her.

Solemn Music.
No standards were displayed and ensigns and union jacks were at half mast. The bands played the funeral marches of Chopin and Beethoven only. No national anthem was played.

On the approach of the procession the ships were manned and the guards and the bands were paraded. The guards presented arms as the Alberta passed each ship, and then rested on their arms reversed until the procession had gone by.

Nelson's Ship Manned.
A detachment of marines and the admiral's band was on board Nelson's old flagship, the Victory, in Portsmouth harbor.

All the sea front and dockyards were manned by marines and sailors, while Barrow Island was manned by boys from the training ship St. Vincent, and men from the gunnery ship Excellent. When the Majesty had been left astern the Alberta was moored for the night. Tomorrow the body will be taken ashore at Portsmouth and thence conveyed to London and Windsor for the last tributes to the great Queen.

The Land Ceremony.
The land ceremony, consisting in bringing the coffin from Osborne House to the pier at Cowes, was scarcely less interesting than the naval function. At noon the gorgeous trappings of the chapel ardene were with crepe. Several of the party, and especially Princess Beatrice, were sobbing bitterly.

Contrasts in Dress.
In striking contrast with the black-robed women followed the heads of the Royal household in gorgeous uniforms. The coffin was placed upon the gun carriage. The pipers commenced their dirge. The procession marched slowly down the winding cedar-hedged path until the gate was reached, where the glittering escort was met. Then the massed bands broke out with a dead march, and the cortege pursued its slow way in the midst of intense silence, save the solemn music of the bands. As the khaki-colored gun carriage, followed by the King, with the Emperor of Germany and the Duke of Connaught on his right and left, passed down the hill, all hats were doffed.

ing the Queen and Princesses. The Kings of Belgium, Portugal and the Hellenes, probably riding, closing the escort.

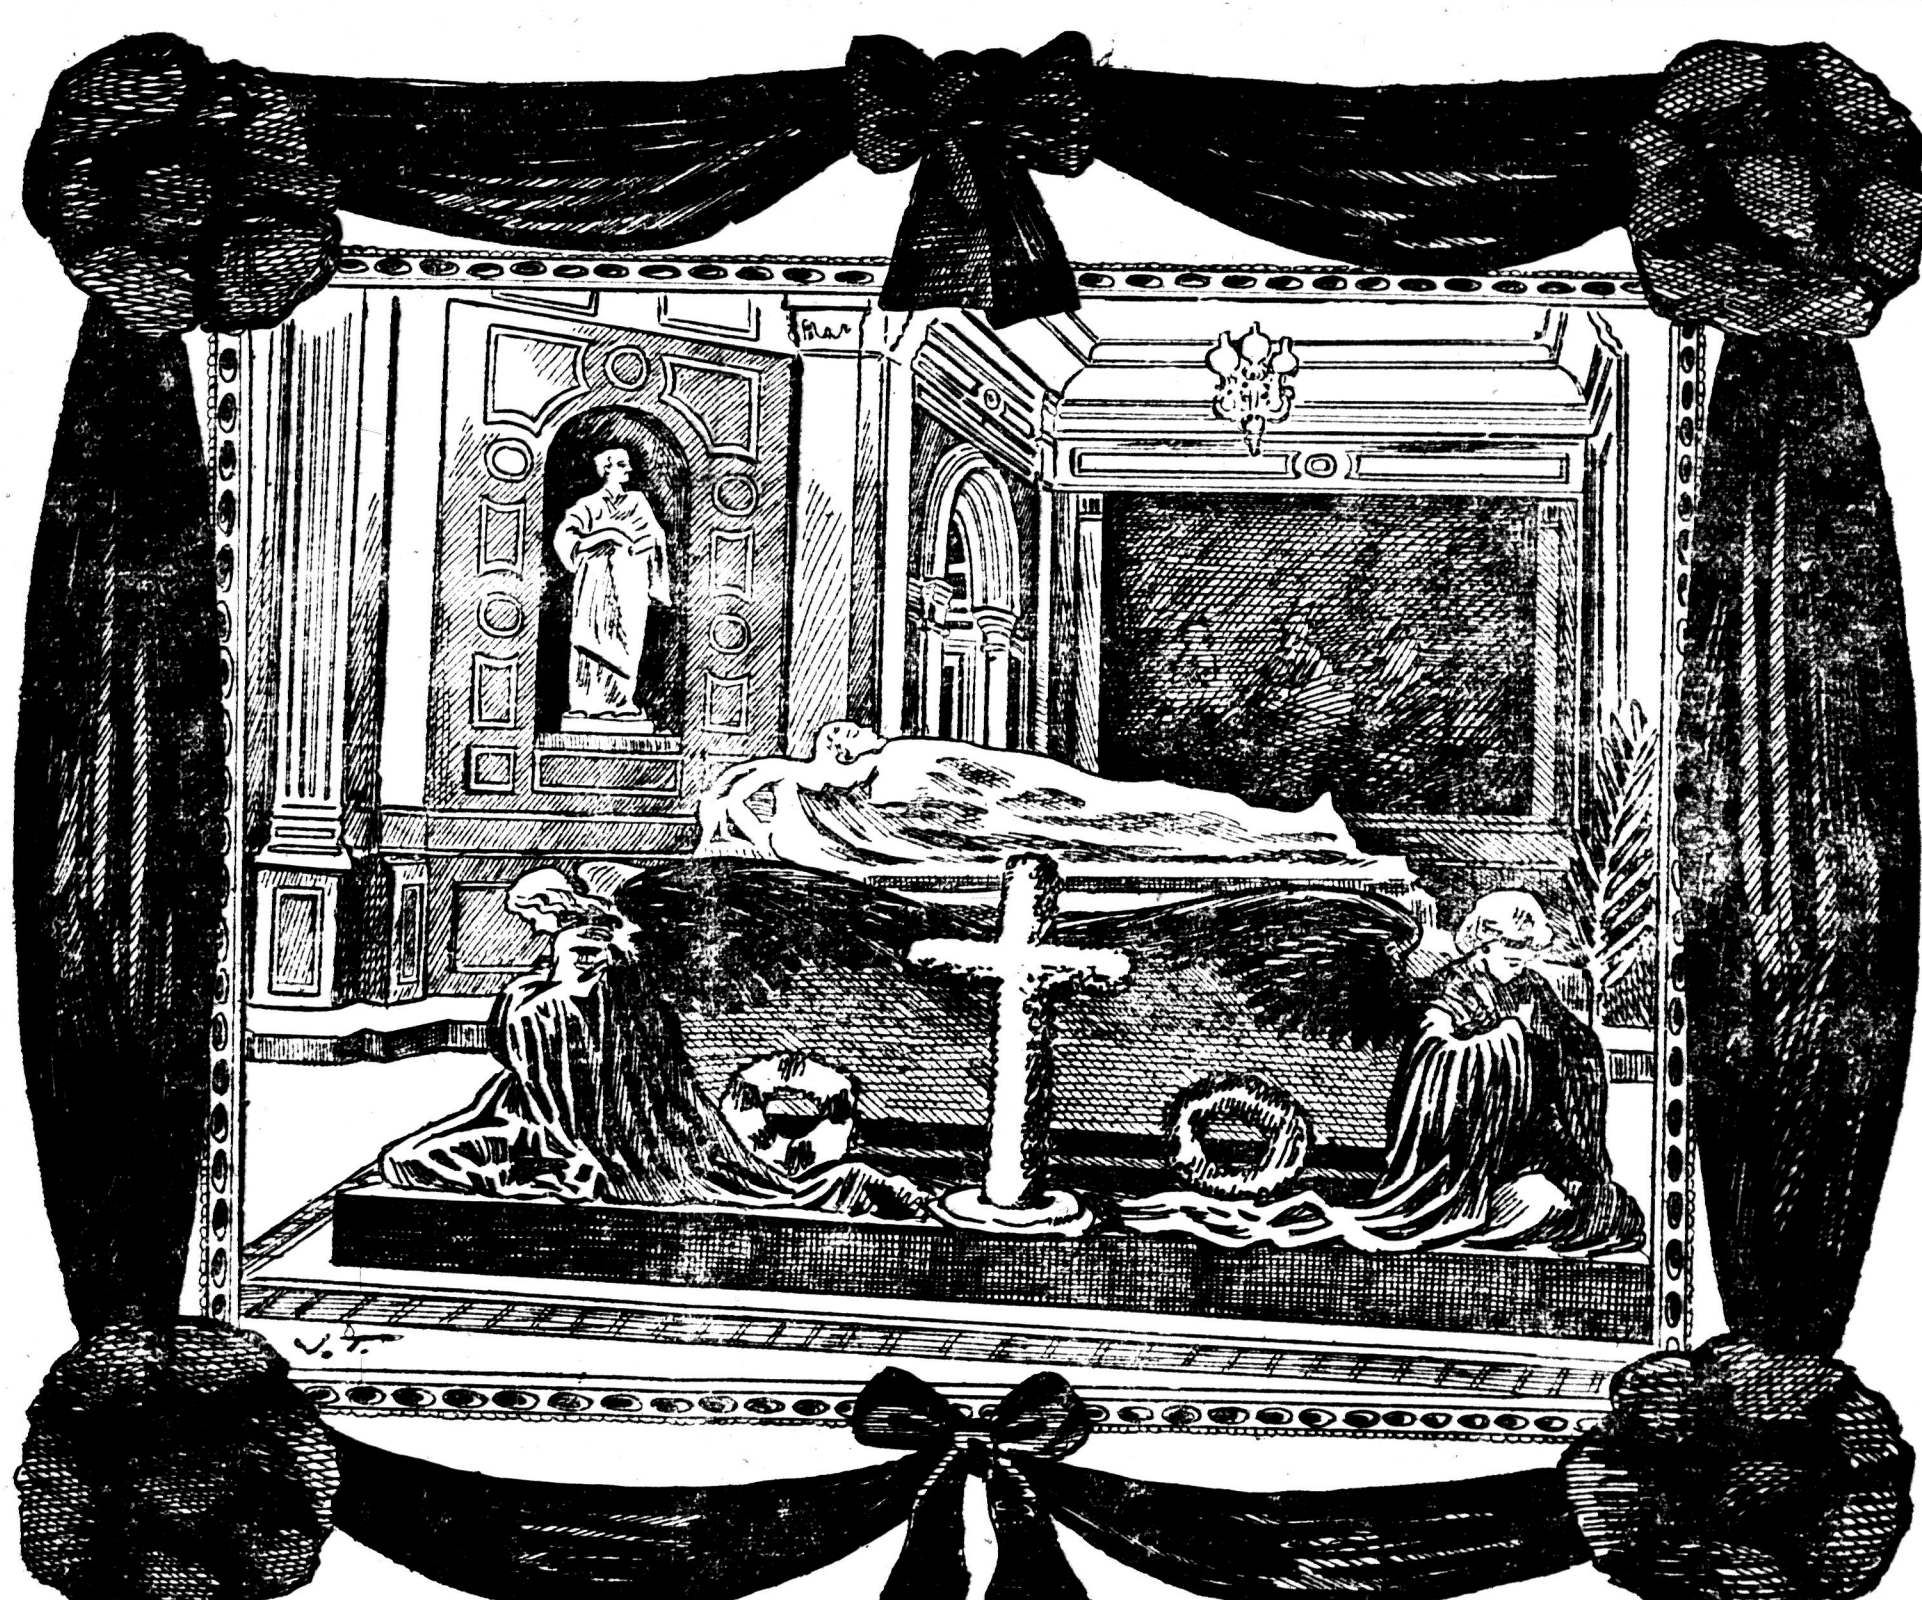

The programme of the Earl Marshal, the Duke of Norfolk, does not deal with the Windsor ceremony, in connection with which much still remains to be done. Late last evening the Earl Marshal issued further instructions. These announce that, since the letters of indication were printed the hour for ceremony at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, has been changed from 11 to 2 o'clock p. m., that special trains for invited guests will leave Paddington Station for Windsor at noon, that the train for the members of the diplomatic corps will leave at 12.30 p. m., that trains bearing the royal remains and those who have participated in the procession will leave at 1 p. m.

The King has ordered that the same men who will carry the coffin tomorrow in the procession shall bear it to the mausoleum at Frogmore, Monday.

High Prices for Seats.
London, Jan. 31.—In obedience to the King's expressed wishes, purple will be the prevailing color along the route of the funeral procession—purple, and black and purple, edged with white or silver. There will be little lettering, with the exception of "V. R."

Canadian Tributes.
Montreal, Jan. 31.—The Star has the following special cable—London, Jan. 31.—Lord Strathcona is the official representative of Canada at the Queen's funeral at Windsor on Saturday. Canada sends a magnificent wreath four feet in diameter and consisting of a center panel of white flowers encircled with camellias, lilacs of the valley and violets. Around this outer circle are eight semi-circular wreaths of white azaleas, representing the eight Canadian Provinces. The inscription reads—"A tribute of affectionate regard and esteem from her Canadian people."

disturbed. Over the coffin was thrown the coronation robe, worn by the girl Queen. On this was placed the royal regalia, the wand, the sceptre and the Crown, which were scarcely ever used by the Queen in her lifetime, as she preferred the dummy regalia, which will be buried with her at Frogmore.

Sailors Carry the Coffin.
At 1.45 sailors from the Victoria and Alberta raised the precious burden and bore it from the house. This duty was to have fallen to the Highlanders, but as they rehearsed so awkwardly it was decided that sailors should be so honored. Outside the royal residence Grenadier Guards were drawn up in a brilliant line. At the sharp click they presented arms for the last time in honor of their dead Queen.

The pipers led the procession, making the woods ring with a weird refrain. Behind them came the Royal Family. At the gate the military portion of the parade stood ready, a glittering medley of uniforms.

The Family Follow.
Then followed the other Royal Princes. A few seconds later emerged Queen Alexandra and eight Royal princesses. All dressed in the simplest black, their faces entirely veiled King Edward.

Emperor William.
The Duke of Connaught.
The Crown Prince of Germany.
Prince Henry of Prussia.
Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein.
The Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.
Prince Arthur of Connaught.
Prince Charles of Denmark.
Prince Louis of Battenberg.
Queen Alexandra.

The Duchess of York.
The Duchess of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.
Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein.
Princess Louise (Duchess of Argyll).
Princess Beatrice (Princess Henry of Battenberg).

The Duchess of Connaught.
The Duchess of Albany.
Princess Victoria of Wales.
Princess Charles of Denmark.
Her late Majesty's ladies-in-waiting.
Her late Majesty's household.
The household of the King.
The household of the Queen.
The household of Emperor William.
The household of the Royal family.
Military officers, eight abreast.
The royal servants and tenants.

The London Procession.
The procession then moved in the following order—
Officers of Headquarters Staff.

Field Marshals.
Band of Royal Marine Light Infantry.
The Guards' Band.
Royal Engineers' and Royal Artillery Bands.

The Earl Marshal, riding.
Gold Sticks.
Two White Staves.
Gun carriage, surrounded by bearer party of non-commissioned officers of the Guards.

Outside of these, on either side, two lines, as follows—
ON THE LEFT OF THE CARRIAGE
The Lord Chamberlain.
Aides de Camp.

The Queen's Physician, Sir Jas. Reid.
Equerries and Lord in Waiting.
ON THE RIGHT OF THE CARRIAGE
The Lord Steward.

Aides de Camp.
Equerries and Lord in Waiting.
Immediately behind the gun carriage comes—

The King, riding.
On his left the Duke of Connaught, riding.
On his right, Emperor William, riding.

Following these come the royal family, royal representatives and Master of the Horse, all riding.
Four four-horse carriages, convey-star of violets, with the letters "V. R." and a crown picked out in lilacs of the valley. At the foot is a white silk ribbon, with a spray of pink orchids. The inscription reads—"Tribute of affection from the Government and people of British Columbia."

The Daily Mail gives a pathetic touch in its report of yesterday's proceedings of the Scottish Corporation, assembled to pass votes of condolence. It says that Lord Strathcona was so visibly affected that, though he stood up for several minutes, only a word or two here and there could be caught, and his speech was not more than a mere whisper.

Notes.
The Dutch residents of London have abandoned their proposed banquet on Feb. 7th in honor of the marriage of Queen Wilhelmina, owing to the public mourning here.

It is estimated that £50,000 has been spent for floral tributes to the Queen.

The Northeastern Railway has issued an order to the effect that at the hour of the Queen's funeral all movement of trains will be stopped for ten minutes. The employees have been instructed to stand quietly and reverently wherever they happen to be.
