What Our Devil Says.

This may be March, but I don't know, it ain't so warm dat it melts de snow.

That there will be a lot of sore arms when everybody gets vaccinated.

That Homer is the happiest man in town to-day. A little baby girl is the cause of it all.

That Sid has been badly affected with his "heart" lately, but he thinks he'll live through it. "Is that right?"

That the school trustees should not allow the high school work in Jarvis public school to be dropped for the sake of a few dollars. And there are lots of others.

That its the little baker's turn to laugh this week at the other fellow.

That he intends to 'roast' some more of the boys next week. Look out for him.

That is the end of the news.

An Essay on Habit.

A story is told of an English school-master who offered a prize to the boy who should write the best composition in five minutes on "How to Overcome Habit."

At the expiration of five minutes the compositions were read. The prize went to a lad of nine years. Following is his essay:

"Well, sir habit is hard to overcome. If you take off the first letter, it does not change 'abit.' If you take off another you still have a 'bit' left. If you take off another, the whole of 'it' remains. If you take off another, it is not wholly used up; all of which goes to show that if you want to get rid of a habit you must throw it off altogether."

On Saturday morn at break of day,

A farmer rushed into town.

"Did anyone see a house go by,

A house that was painted brown,

I wanted ten dollars to let it get out

Or spite the G. T. R.,

But it disappeared without a sound.

Can anyone tell where it are?

I've looked under the fence

And dug in the ground

But no house painted brown can I see.

It must have had wheels,

It must have had wings,

Oh tell me where it can be.

He felt in his pockets and looked in his hat

And rushed for Priestland's bar.

He looked in a bottle, looked under the stove

But the house he sought was afar.

He went back home and scolded his wife,

It must have had wheels he said;

But the neighbors say that the only wheels

Are they that fill up his head

March came in neither like a lamb or a lion, but it is quite likely we will have March weather just the same.
