Note and Comment

Largely as a result of the Sigel tragedy in New York, representatives of all the Anglican churches in Ottawa decided that Chinese in their Sunday schools shall in future be taught by men instead of by lady teachers. Other churches and denominations might do well to follow the precedent thus established. The Oriental idea of ethics is not always in harmony with the ideal in Western morals, and if it is really a thirst for knowledge that actuates the Chinese student in attending school on Sunday, he is, if anything, likely to obtain it more thoroughly from a man teacher than from a lady teacher.

Hamilton is to be congratulated on raising the $50,000, and more, so easily for a Y. M. C. A. building fund. The Y. M. C. A. is one organization, at least, for which nothing but good is spoken. Its influence is confined not only to the centre in which it may be situated, but extends out into the surrounding country. Perhaps the majority of young men who grow up in the villages gravitate to the cities, and they are always sure of a hearty welcome and assistance in many ways from the Y. M. C. A. Then for a small sum they may become full fledged members and enjoy the numerous privileges in connection, and the parents at home can rest assured their boys are being influenced with a view to developing and bringing out the best that is in them physically, mentally and spiritually.

It has long been supposed that the craving for sweets on the part of children was something to be suppressed, but according to a physician writing in Success the desire for sugar should, in reason, be gratified rather than discouraged. The writer goes so far as to state that good butter scotch is better for a youngster than cod liver oil. How some of our grandmothers would hold up their hands in righteous indignation at the very idea.

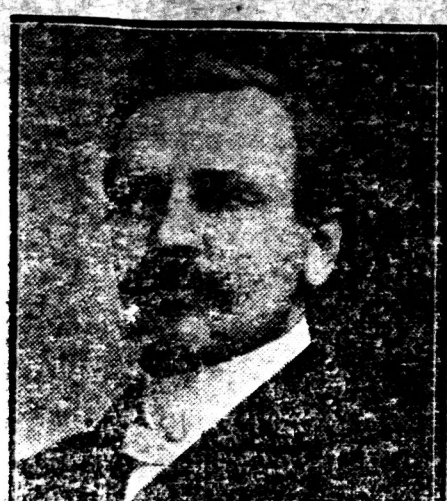

Last year was a closed season for partridge in Ontario and proved so beneficial that it is possible shooting of these valued game birds may be allowed this year for a shorter season—probably one month. The superintendent of game and fisheries in his report says, "To what extent open seasons may prevail in the future depends upon the self-denial practised by sportsmen and hunters in general." Game Warden Burt, of Simcoe, in his report recommends that neither partridge nor quail be allowed to be shot in this district during the season of 1909, as the birds are still very scarce.

The foundation from under a time-honored belief has been removed. From time immemorial it has been held to stoutly by some and half believed in by others, that the moon had something to do with the growth of crops in addition to some other things. Potatoes, it was said, should be planted in the dark of the moon to obtain the best results. To ascertain if there was really anything in the theory, the United States government made a test, and it was found it made no difference how the moon was when the tubers were planted. Next in order will be tests in cutting hair, boiling pork, and the many other things Luna's condition is supposed to affect.

Are Cattle Your Hobby?

If they are, don't forget that the show in Shortlands at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, last year, was pronounced by experts from across the sea, to be as good as can be seen in Scotland itself. Herfords, Jerseys and Ayrshires, were also of excellent quality. This year there is every evidence that the cattle show will surpass anything ever shown at Toronto—and that means anything in America.

During the last ten days of June, six bodies were recovered from the river below Niagara Falls in the vicinity of the Whirlpool. They were supposed to be the bodies of Niagara's victims of months ago, recently washed out from the rocks where they had been held for months.

Letter From Mr. Harnwell

St. Lawrence River, Friday, July 2, 9 p. m.

Dear Editor:

Upon the St. Lawrence route a volume might be written and still not do it justice. The natural beauty is so great that it is difficult to know what to enumerate and what to omit.

My ticket called for me to go by rail to Quebec as the Empress of Ireland is so large that it cannot come up as far as Montreal.

Quebec afforded an interesting resting place for half a day. We feasted our eyes on the noble citadel, the lofty spires of the many churches, the historic monuments to Montcalm and Wolfe and the natural beauty of the place. The steamship company transferred us on board our vessel and at 3.30 p. m. Friday, our great floating palace swung from her moorings and began her voyage of seven days to the English coast.

The Minister of Marine and Hon. R. L. Borden, Conservative leader, who are passengers, were given a military salute and national airs were sung as we left the dock. All afternoon we have been sailing past shores dotted at intervals with tiny French villages, each dominated by an imposing church whose metal roof glitters in the sunshine and is visible far in the distance, long even before the houses of the village are seen.

The Laurentian hills on the north banks impress one as a series of mountain ranges of some extent and are a pleasant surprise. The winding valleys seen from the river, the cliffs, the hillside farms, the cosy hamlets perched near the water's edge, give a scenic and grand character to the whole view.

The river was full of yessels coming from many nations. A sleet and snow storm chased us from the decks at night-fall and the evening in the parlors was full of music and delight, nearly all of the social songs familiar to many were sung by the entire company—some of them in a half-dozen languages—being led by a professional player at the piano, the evening of song closing with "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

Tomorrow morning a packet mail boat will come from Rimouski and exchange mails; the last till Monville is reached. Wishing The Record and its readers continued success, I remain, yours sincerely,

H. J. HARNWELL

Heslop Murder Recalled.

(Hamilton Times.)

The death of Miss Sarah Ann Heslop at her home in Ancaster Thursday recalls one of the many shocking crimes in this neighborhood which have gone unpunished. In the early hours of the morning of January 27, 1891, John Heslop, treasurer of the township of Ancaster, was murdered at his home, about two miles from the village. The Heslop homestead was a snug farm house near the Sulphur Springs, and the household consisted of Mr. Heslop, an aged man, his wife and daughter, then a girl of 16. In the still of the winter night the house was approached by a number of men, supposedly four. They procured a log of wood from the shed and battered in the door. Old Mr. Heslop, aroused by the noise, arose to investigate, was met on the stairs and foully murdered. Being township treasurer, it is supposed that the burglar-murderers thought he had a large amount of money in the house, some taxes having just been collected. In this they were wrong, but that was evidently the motive.

Provincial Detective Greer worked on the case with the local detectives, and after some weeks a number of arrests were made. The trail came on in Hamilton, and resulted in a verdict of not guilty. The outstanding feature of the Bartram-Lottridge trial are remembered by Hamilton people, except those of the younger generations. The Indian Goosey, the cream horse and Kitty White's funeral became bywords in the city. After the trial the authorities kept an eye on the case for some time, and occasionally rumor said that they had succeeded in getting new information, and that other arrests and another trial would take place, but after a while the Heslop murder was conceded to be one of the unsolved mysteries.

Mrs. Heslop died years ago. They were a quiet, retiring family, especially Miss Heslop, who never quit got over the terrible tragedy which she witnessed. She had long been ill, and death was a happy release to her.

The funeral took place Saturday afternoon from Woodend, the late home of deceased, to St. John church, Ancaster.

Harry Reid Knows

T. E. Morrow, the grocer, does not guarantee Parisian Sage to grow hair on every bald head, but if there is any life left in the roots of your hair, Parisian Sage will stimulate the hair bulbs and cause your hair to grow again. Here is one case. "I am now using the second bottle of your Parisian Sage, and can notice a new crop of hair appearing. I am glad to say it is a darker color than my hair was before it became bald." Harry Reid, 10 Manhattan St., Rochester, N. Y.

Don't wait until you're bald before using Parisian Sage, use it now. Kill the dandruff germ and prevent baldness. T. E. Morrow, the grocer, sells Parisian Sage at 50 cents a large bottle, and he guarantees it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair, and cure all diseases of the scalp, or money back. Parisian Sage is a delightfully invigorating hair dressing; it makes the hair soft, fluffy and beautiful.

While taking in the Dominion day celebration at Strathroy, Geo. Brown, an Adelaide farmer, claims to have been relieved of $51, which he carried loose in his hip pocket. As there were no signs of pickpockets in the town, the police is of the opinion that he must have lost the money.

Sarnia by a majority of 555 voted to extend the gas franchise to the Sarnia Gas & Electric Light company for the term of twenty years. The Sarnia Gas company has completed a contract to pipe gas from the Tilbury field and sell it for 14 cents per thousand feet for manufacturing purposes and 30 cents per thousand for domestic use.
