Surned in a Church-The Horrible Fate of Osmanich's Christians-Blacksmiths Began the Slaughter at Marash.

The following letters have been received from Marash, Asia Minor, by one of the prominent Armenian residents: My dear sister.-I trust you have received my message telling you that we were safe.

On Saturday, April 17, the confusion began; Christians began to run in all directions in great terror, shrieking and crying. The Turks in the Blacksmiths' Market had attacked the Christians without any warning and started to butcher them mercilessly, using their iron tools and large knives and anything they could lay their hands on. Great was the horror that seized the whole city.

We were given shelter at the French Consulate with hundreds of others. I was put into a small room with thirtyeight other ladies.

We learned of the massacres at Adana and other places, and were very anxious concerning the fate of the prominent men of our city, who gone to the Adana convention as delegates. We telegraphed to Osmanieh eight times, and finally succeeded in receiving an answer signed by a Protestant lady, as follows:

"Rev. H., Prof. S. and daughter and all other delegates were burned all in the church building, with hundreds of others; not a single man is left here."

I' disguised myself as a Turkish woman to avoid assault in the street and went to see an Armenian who had escaped to our city from Osmanieh. From him I learned the sickening details which I refrain from writing to

I hurried to Mrs. H. and stayed with her several days. Our nights were passed sleepless in talking about the lamentable situation of our country and trying to see the aim of the Lord in permitting these outrages to come upon His children. We are sorry for all who have met death in these atrocities, but our hearts are wrung with grief especially for those who were the very pillars of the nation.

Just now the firing of cannon is announcing the ascension to the throne of the new Sultan, and our prayer is that he may follow the right path and leave a better record than his predecessor.

After killing the pastor of Kharni they married his daughter to a Mohammedan priest by force. The assaults committed on Christian sisters have blackened heaven with horror.

During the last fifteen days re peated orders had been received here from Constantinople to massacre the Christians, but the chief telegraph opator, being a Young Turk, concealed the telegrams.

There are more than 14,000 refugees here from all the neighboring towns, which have been stotally destroyed. This awful calamity, following the famine, will send most of the refugees to their graves soon if help and money do not arrive at once. Pray for us, and lay our misfortune before our Canadian sisters if you can. Your affectionate sister,

HOW A BOY ESCAPED. From an Armenian in Marash to his brother-in-law in Toronto:

* * * Surely you must have heard what calamity has befallen us. Our prayer is that these atrocities may never be repeated even in an enemy's land. It was on Saturday morning, April 17, that the trouble started. We were almost paralyzed when we learned that the Turks in the Blacksmiths' Market had attacked the Christians without any warning. Our little Herand. 12 years old, your nephew, had gone in the morning to the very place, and we were almost certain that he had become a victim to the Turks' cruelty. It was impossible for me to go out in search of him, but late toward the evening the military commander sent some troops to restore order; and, facing every danger and risk. I hurried to the place to find some trace of my boy. The scenes I saw on the streets made me strewn about mercilessly. After a long search I was told by an eye-witness that the boy had thrown himself into the outlet of a sewer and crawled in. In fear and agony I threw myself into the filth and mud and crawled up some distance, when I stood aghast-the scene before me made my fiesh creep and my heart ache. There in frent of me ley my darling boy. wounded on the head and face, covered with blood, utterly unconscious, I took him out immediately, and, carrying him apon my shoulders, brought him home. Your sister fainted away at the sight of her child, whom she thought dead. The boy, however, is recovering slowly; but he may bear permanent searsving evidence of Turk barbarity-on his face and head

Oh, my brother, human tongue cannot describe the excent of misery that prevails in this district. All the neighcoring towns have been totally destroyed; thousands and thousands of our brave Christian brothren have been burned to death: thousands of our innocent Christian sisters have leen carried away, and at present there are about 15,000 refugees in our city who are practically starving. The Lord must have some supreme purin all this, but we cannot peneir ite through His wisdom.

Surely the good people of that free country cannot withhold their help and sympathy from us, in this hour of mitatest need and dire despair. . . Your loving brother.

A LAKE OF FIRE.

But the Fire is Only Phosphorescent Water-It's in the Bahamas.

The Lake of Waterloo is a phosphorescent sheet of water a thousand feet long, near Nassau in the Bahamas. At night it is like a sheet of living fire if any wind is stirring to ruffle its surface.

If the night be calm, says the Rosary Magazine, the water lies dark and still until some object sets it in motion. Little colored boys are ready to swim out into the lake, where they seem to be clothed in garments of flame, leaving a long trail of molten splendor behind them.

The oars when rowing are as when dipped in fire, and if one holds up a handful of the water and lets it fall it looks like beads of gold, and the fish that dart here and there, startled by the visitors, leave flashes of mystic, glowing splendor be-

The clumsy turtles that move about look like balls of fire, and when it rains the lake is like a mass of jewels. This marvelous display of phosphorescence has never been accounted for, as the lake is of artificial formation, having been made for the breeding of turtles by a Nassau resident. The bed of the lake is cut out of solid limestone and it is filed from the sea, in which there is little of the phosphorescent quality.

Designed by Italian Sculptor to Stand on the Shore of the Gulf of Spezzia

A colossal monument to Percy Bysshe Shelley, the poet, is shortly to be erected near San Terenzo, Italy, where he spent the last days of his life. The entire design is to be about forty-five feet high, and it is to be attached to a cliff facing the Casa Magna, in which he and later

Byron lived. The work is being executed by the Italian sculptor Fontana. The keynote is taken from Shelley's tragedy "Prometheus Unbound." . It displays the figure of the Titan writing on the rock with the lightning which, like Jupiter, he grasps in his hand, this inscription: "To Shelley from the World Unbound."

Shelley's heart, snatched from his funeral pyre by Trelawny, is buried in the Protestant Cemetery at Rome, of which he wrote: "It might make one in love with death to think that it would make one in love with so sweet a place." But the character of the place and the surroundings made it undesirable to locate any great monument there. At Viareggio, where his body came ashore on July 18, 1822-ten days after he was drowned on his way from Leghorn to San Torenzo-and where it was burned while Leigh Hunt poured wine and incense on it and Lord Byron read poetry there is already a Shelley monument, and, besides, the flat coast affords no opportunity for Fontana's design. The shore of the Gulf of Spezia and the neighborhood of his last abiding place were therefore chosen for this greatest tribute to his memory.

TRY THIS PRESCRIPTION.

Take a hopeful, cheerful view of things. The bigger the dose the better. Don't worry over anything, whether you can help it or not. If you can help it, do it, but don't worry. Get out of the office if possible. Eat good food and plenty of it, including milk, cream and eggs. Sleep at least ten hours out of twenty-four and in a room with the windows open. Take exercise every asy cut of doors, but not enough to riske you tired.

For those who are "all run down and in a fair way to get "good and sick" the above prescription will usually start them on the high road to health and happiness.

ALL NIGHT BAKERIES.

Where Customers Can Have Their Wants Supplied at Any Hour.

Among the many places of business of one and another sort that in a great city are kept open all night are bakeries. The bakery is a peculiarly domestic business establishment, supplying mostly home wants, and as most people work days and sleep nights it might be supposed that there would be no occasion to keep bakeries open nights; but here where with the city's manifold industries there must be large numbers of people working at all times to keep things going there are bakeries that do keep open and find trade at all hours.

Some of these all night bakeries have unch room attachments where people top in to eat going to or from work, while others do a bakery business only. At either customers come in at all hours of the night to buy things to carry away just as people do at any hour of the day. for the people who go to work at mdi night or at 1, 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning want bread and bakery stuff before they go just the same as do those who begin their labors at 7, 8 or 9; and there is likely to be in their neighborhood an all night open bakery where they can regularly supply their wants.

From 2 to 5 a. m. are the hours that mark low eld in the all night bakery trade, but customers are dropping in all night long.-New York Sun.

THE USEFUL SWALLOWS.

Light Cavalry of the Avian Army and the Friends of the Farmer.

From the standpoint of the farmer and the orchardist perhaps no birds more useful than the swallows exist. They have been described as the light cavalry of the avian army.

Specially adapted for flight and unexcelled for aerial evolutions, they have few rivals in the art of capturing insects in midair. They eat nothing of value to man except a few predaceous wasps and bugs, and in return for their services in destroying vast numbers of noxious insects ask only for harborage and protection. It is to the fact that they capture their prey on the wing that their peculiar value to the cotton grower is due. Orioles do royal service in catching weevils on the bolls, and blackbirds, wrens, flycatchers and others contribute to the good work, but when swallows are migrating over the cotton fields they find the weevils flying in the open and wage active war against them. As many as forty-seven adult weevils have been found in the stomach of a single cliff swallow.-Bulletin of the Department of Agriculture.

I'd clamp down its edges with valises and boxes. I'd light inside it three green wood fires, filling it with a bitter smoke that all insects are supposed to loathe. "Finally I'd get in myself. I'd smoke big pipes of the black native tobacco, and I'd long miserably in that hot, smoky atmosphere for the dawn. "Despite all my precautions quite 200 or 300 mosquitoes would get inside my net as soon as darkness fell. They were like a whirlwind in there. It couldn't have been worse. Their noise and their nipping made me feverish - made me really delirious at times. "At last in exhaustion I'd get a few hours of troubled sleep, awakening for breakfast, drunk from the poison injected by hundreds of tiny needles into my veins.

In a mountain near Montalban, Luzon, there is a large cavern, with many branching chambers, and a central dome 200 feet in height, perforating the mountain top, from which, in December, 1907, Hugh M.
