A case was heard before Magisistrate Love Thursday morning, when two London seedmen, both of whom started business this spring, were charged with violating the seed act by having in their possession and offering for sale quantities of alsike clover seed containing more weed-seed than the law allows. The charge was laid by T. G. Raynor, seed inspector for the Dominion Government, and both men pleaded guilty. One of the men, who said he got the seed when he took over the business, was fixed a nominal sum. The other said he secured his seed out of town. This case will be investigated.
