How Mr. Rossevelt Killed One of His First Lions.

At this moment my black sais, Simba, earm running up to me and took hold of the bridle; he had seen the chase from the line of march and had cut across to join me. There was no other sais of gun-bearer anywhere near, and his action was plucky, for he was the only man afoot, with the lion at bay. Lady Pease had also ridden up and was an interested spectator only some fifty vards behind me.

Now, an elderly man with a varied past, which includes rheumatism does not vault lightly into the saddle; as his sons, for instance, can; and I had already made up my mind that in the event of the lion's charging it would be wise for me to trust to straight powder rather than to try to scramble into the saddle and get under way in time. The rival of my two companions settled mat-ters. I was not sure of the speed of Lady Pease's horse; and Simba was on foot and it was of course out of the question for me to leave him. So I said, Good, Simba, now we'll see this thing through," and gentle-mannered Simba smiled a shy appreciation of my tone, though he could not understand the words. I could still not see the lion when I knelt, but he was now standing up, looking first at one group of horses and then at the other, his tail lashing to and fro, his head held low and his lips dropped over his mouth in peculiar fashion, while his harsh and savage growling rolled thunderously over the plain. Seeing Simba and me on foot, he turned toward us, his tail lashing quickers and quicker. Resting my elbow on Simba's bent shoulder, I took steady aim and pressed the trigger; the bullet went in between the neck and shoulder, and the lion fell over on his side, one foreleg in the air. He recovered in a moment and stood up, evidently very sick, and once more faced me, growling hoarsely. I think he was on the eve of charging. I fired again, at once, and this bullet broke his back just behind the shoulders; and with the next I killed him right, after we had gathered round -From "African Game frails," by

Andrew Lang's Golf Story.

Mr. Andrew Lang, who is responsible for many golf anecdotes, tells one which has delighted more than one generation of golfers:

"A determined player got into a sandpit, and for a long time all that his opponent saw of him was only distinguishable through the dense clouds of sand made by the violent action of the niblick. At last the resolute veteran emerged from the pit, and his opponent, without expressing any surprise or condolence or annoyance at the delay, merely asked him how many he had played. But evidently the other was not in a revealing mood. 'I went into that place,' he replied, icily, 'at a quarter past twelve. It is now a quarter to one. You are at Therty, sir, to foren your own esti-mate."—From "The Funniest Golf Story," in the November Strand Maga-

How Boys Are Punished in India. Here is a method adopted by Hindu teachers to bring unruly Hindu boys to order after ordinary methods of punishment have failed. In most Hindu schools, as well as in Hindu households containing a number of toys, there is to be found a block of wood with a chain attached, and known as a "thundoo." This is rivetcd around the leg of the boy with the aid of the nearest blacksmith, or fast ed strongly with twine, and kept there for a period ranging from a few hours to as many days, as the nature of the case may require. The boy is then exposed to the unsympathetic hoots and jeers of other boys (and girls), who enjoy the fun immensely and follow the boy wherever he goes. The disgrace is very keenly felt, and a second infliction of the "thundoo" is seldom found necessary.—November Strand Magazine.

Rheumatism

And Here is the Proof-A Solemn Statement From a Four-years' Cripple, Who Says "Nerviline" Did It.

"If I had lived through my sufferings another year it would have been a mir-acle." This is the opening sentence of the declaration made by Mr. J. Eccles Squires, member of one of the bestknown families for twenty miles round Sydney. "My hands were drawn out of shape, even my fingers were gnarled and crooked-my lameness, stiffness and inability to get about all showed the havoc Rheumatism made with my health. The blessing of it all is that I have heard of Nerviline, and now I am able to tell and advise others how they may get well, too. My system was so weakened that I had to build up with a good tonie, so I took Ferrozone at meals. But I never stopped rubbing on Nerviline-it had magic influence on my stiff, painful joints, and bottle after bottle was rubbed on the painful parts. Nerviline cured me. I am well to-day—have been well for 41/2 years."

You also can cure rhematism, lumoago, sciatica, neuralgia or any pain or stiffness in the muscles or joints-to do so use Nerviline. Don't let your druggist substitute. Get Nerviline only; large bottle, 25c., or five for $1.00; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Lucky Inventions.

A writer in a Paris newspaper speculates as to what will be the reward of the inventor of the safety hat pin for ladies, and suggests it will not be less than $200,000. He arrives at this sum by comparing the gains of other successful inventors. Fox, who superseded whalebone ribs for umbrellas by the paragon frame, we are told netted $1.200,000. The inventor of the shoe tip cleared $1,000,000. The hawker who conceived the idea of lead pencils with an India rubber tip cleared $100,000, and the designer of the piece of round India rubber for shoe heels retired with a fortune of $800,000. The reviver of Diaholo, a game known under the Directoire, is said to have made $600,000 from his idea.

Comparative Joy.

Too many "international" marriages are made upon a strictly commercial basis, and in such cases it often happens as in the story attributed by the Washington Star to Mr. Carnegie, that the bridal couple are not the ones most deeply moved by the sound of the wedding bells.

"Was it a happy marriage?" Mr. Carnegie asked of the cynic who told him of

"Oh. quite," said he. "The bride was happy, her mother was overjoyed. Lord Lacland was in cestasies, and his creditors, I understand, were in a state of bliss, absolutely delirous and uncontrolable bliss."

Stubbs and Washington.

Ed. Martindale tells this story as one of the incidents of Governor Stubb's visit at Washington. Stubbs met a Kentucky colonel, who had on a pretty big load of the juice that invigorates and later inebriates. The colonel started out by saying:

"Governor, we, the people of Kentucky, sah, have heard of you, sah. I am glad to meet you, sah. My people sah, think you a greater man than Washington."

"You flatter me overmuch. George Washington was a very great man." "George Washington!" exclaimed the colonel. "Thunder, no! No. sah. meant Booker T. Washington!"

in a Bottle,

One originally the bottle contained milk—just milk and a few million typhoid bacilli which lived and grew happily together in this culture-medium. Then, for demonstration purposes, a horde of 10,000,000 hungry monsters (known as the bacilli of Massol) were introduced

A storm in a teacup was nothing to the battle in the bottle. The milk grew turgid with the bodies of the slain, and still the Massol militia murdered and point he burst, and each of his 800,000 or I,000,000 fragments became a hungry young Massol bacillus which fought and ate in turn. Finally the milk foamed up

The demonstratoin aroseout of Profesor Metchnikoff's claim that the bacillus of lactic acid (the Massol bacillus) destroys the bacilli which cause internal putrefaction of food. The Massol bacillus, he holds, by rendering the internal organs antiseptic, lengthens a man's life an extraordinary extent, and he quotes the exceptional number of centenarians in Bulgaria, where the inhabitants live largely on soured milk, which contains this bacillus.

Massol bacilii are now presented in a novel form-that of chocolate creams, each containing 10.000,000 bacilli, and it was one of these chocolate creams which caused such havoe among the innocent typhoid microbes in the bottle

> MISSIONARIES TO JAPAN. (Canadian Courier).

You may have noticed possibly that a member of the Japanese Commission, which is visiting Canada, who happens to be a Christian, endorses Mr. Preston's contention that missionary work in Japan should be conducted by native preachers. They are at once cheaper and more effective. They understand both the people and the language; while the foreigner must be a genius wno gets to understand either in any very short time after his arrival. I presume that the Canadian missionary authorities will say in reply that the seed must be carried from Christian countries, that the Japanese Christian is himself a product of missionary effort-though the truth may be that he caught the fire at college in either Britain or the United States—and that, so long as the Christian nations supply most of the money for missionary work in the Flowery Kingdom, they will keep their hands on the strings and their men in the field. Still it is likely that the bulk of the subscribers will prefer efficiency to everything else, and that, if they once become convinced that the exported missionary costs more and does less than the native product, they will demand a U. S. Manufacturers in Canada. The U. S. Consul at Owen Sound, in his report to the Department of Commerce and Bureau of Manufacturers at Washington, gives a list of the principal manufacturing establishments in Canada, which are branches of United States concerns. In all 128 mentioned. most of them large companies. Toronto has the largest number-forty-three. Montreal follows with eighteen; Hamilon with eleven: Windsor, eight; Walkerville, six; Niagara Falls, five; St. Catherines and Welland, four each; and Chatham, London, Sault Ste. Marie, three each. The aggregate capital is said to exceed $125,000,000, and the activity covers pretty much every line of manufacture. The adverse tariff against U. S. imports gets the chief credit for the establishment of these branches on Canadian soil, but some of the American newcomers state that the tariff is by no means the sole consideration. A combination of circumstances induced them to take action. They had arrived at the opinion that the Canadian market was at the beginning of a big expansion, and wished to be on the ground to take advantage of it.

One man removed the pearl study from the man removed the pearl stude from the front of his shirt and placed them among the contributions. Another gave his watch and chain. One woman literally threw her diamond necklace into the plate, while from all sides came rolls of bills, scarf-pins, jewels of all kinds.
