A Boon To Stock-Raisers

To Know How to Cure Colic, Distempers, Colds, Swellings, Etc. - Saves Thousands Each Year.

It is a matter of vital importance to every farmer, horse-owner and stockraiser to know exactly what to do when one of his animals is taken suddenly

The letter of Mr. Frank F. Fullerton, which we print below, gives information of inestimable value, and tells of his experience in curing ailing stock during the past thirty-eight years:

means at hand I lost several valuable animals. Some one told me of the success Mr. Wendling, of Brockville, Ont. had in his racing stables with "Nerviline,' so I laid in a supply. It wasn't very long before Nerviline saved the life of a valuable stallion of mine, which was worth at least $1,000. This horse was taken with colic, and would have died, had it not been for Nerviline. have used Nerviline for reducing swellings, for taking out distemper lumps, and easing a bad cough, and always found it worked well. I recommend every man who owns horses or cattle to keep Nerviline on hand.

Mr. Fullerton is one of the best known residents of Stormont, and his recommendation as an experienced and practi cal horseman proved beyond question how valuable Nerviline really is.

Getting Used to It.

I ran hard to overtake a street car recently, and asked a physician upon the car whether it was a safe thing to do. "Yes," he replied, "if you do it every day." Here is a point in regard to vigorous exercise. If we practise running daily we strengthen the heart and lungs, and no injury is done, providing we starr moderately. But if we make a desperate run only once a month we are liable to overtax the heart, and if the heart is not in a healthy condition are liable to lose our lives. It is possible for a human being to endure great strain, great cold, great heat, great misfortunes of every kind, providing he accustoms himself to such changes gradually. The firemen in the holds of great ocean steamers endure for hours at a time heat in which those unaccustomed would perish in a short time. The Esquimaux of the north can lead a comfortable life for long periods where an ordinary man unaccustomed to the cold would soon perish. The lesson is, then, that whatever changes we make we shoeld make moderately, thus accustoming ourselves to the change. It is advised that consumptives and others should sleep outdoors, or in rooms with the window well raised even on cold nights, but remember that this change must not be made suddenly from a hot room to excessive cold .- Michigan Christian Advocate.

STATE OWNED RAILWAYS.

Discouraging Record of Annual Deficits and Surplus Complaints. Government railways are having rather a hard time of it in Europe. The experiment of ownership and operation by the State, as far as it has been attempt ed, not only in Europe, but elsewhere scems to have failed, and time and trial more and more demonstrate its inevita ble and inherent inefficiency.

Everywhere State operation is criticised, and every year proves it increasingly unsatisfactory to everybody, ex cept the politicians and the functionar ies. Thus in Belgium the financial situa tion has grown so bad that the railway administration is now contemplating what is practically imposible a substantial increase both in freight and passenger rates. It is that or bankrupt cy for the scheme.

In Switzerland Government, exploits tion regularly works an annual deficit. With less than 3,000 miles of lines the budget of 1906 showed a deficit of about $925,000, and in 1908 of about $1,200, 000. Government operation in that conpact little country, with only about 3, 000,000 of inhabitants and an area only about twice that of the State of Massa chusetts, has given such unfavorable results that the public are crying out against it, and it promises to be a leading issue in the coming electoral cam-

In Japan State ownership has proved so disastrous to the finances of the coun try that the Government is now looking to a syndicate of foreign capitalists to help it out. The statement is made that Government ownership there has imperilled the national finances, prevented railway improvments and checked the efficiency of the service.

In Italy the results of the State operation are thus far notoriously bad. The operation results, of course, is an annual deficit, and although the traffic constantly increases, the receipts constantly diminish. During a recent month's operation, out of 1,000 passenger trains 486 were an hour or more late, and there is constant and bitter complaint both from shippers and passengers as to the unsatisfactory character of the service.

In France the least satisfactory oper ation is that of the State, and in Germany things go from bad to worse, in spite of the strenuous efforts of the imperial Government, with an exceptionaly competent and accomplished general staff of superior railway officials, to get around the increasing difficulties and to make a good appearance.—Moody's Magazine.

Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

X-Ray for Warts.

The very simplest way of getting rid of a wart is by a single application of the X-rays. The wart does not fall off during the actual application, but within a week or ten days afterwards it simply drops off, leaving smooth and healthy skin behind it.

The time occupied by each sitting is something between fifteen and thirty minutes, and no dressings or other applications are required. The procedure gives a minimum amount of trouble to the patient, a maximum of certainty of immediate cure, and no scarring. One kind of wart which is particular! annoying to its possesor is that which grows upon the scalp. These warts may occur in people who are quite grown up or even past middle life. It is as easily cured by an application of the X-rays as are the warrs upon juvenile hands.— From the Hospital. HIS DEVOTIONS.

ANY KIND OF SKIN TROUBLE!

Quickly Yields to D.D.D. Prescription.

Oil of wintergreen is recognized by the medical fraternity as one of the best of all remedies for skin diseases. But it has been found most effective when combined with thymol, glycerine, etc., as in D. D. Prescription.

The following letter, written on July 12 last by Mrs. R. E. Purdy, of Condie, Sask., gives an idea of the variety of the uses of D. D. D. in the household: "Last winter I sent for one of your free samples of D. D. D. The King as Farmer. There is an article in the June num ber of Cassell's Magazine on "The King's Farm," which has been written by the Very Rev. John Gillespie, LL. D., and which gives an account of royal experiments in agriculture at Balmoral. Much of the beautiful and ipeturesque estate cept in the leakiest of rooms, the amof Balmoral, we read, has been planted and almost all the remainder turned in to pasture land since it was acquired Queen Victoria. The home farm is at Abergeldie Mains, which is held on lease by his Majesty from the owner, Mr. Gordon, of Abergeldie. The rent- from one to three feet above the floor paying tenant farmers of the United Kingdom therefore have the King as the chief member of their class. The farm, Dr. Gillespie tells us, which is situated on the south side of the Dee, about two and a half miles east of Balmoral Castle, extends to only 165 acres or thereaboute of arable land, with some rough pastures. The soil is typical of Deeside land, being mostly of a light of the fresh air, and leaves the occupants like the Tablets." Sold by medicine gravelly nature resting on a rock formaion of granite. The Fallacy of the Fireplace.

While we deeply regret the necessity of disturbing such a hoary and venerable belief, with so many delightful and comforting associations connected with it, as that of the "perfect ventilation" obtained by means of an open fireplace. candor compels us to state that the natural method of ventilation, either by means of an open fireplace or an ordinary stove, is neither adequate nor satisfactory. It is not adequate because, exount of change made in the air is insufficient.

The second and most vital reason is that the cold air which enters for the most part comes in at a level where it is of the least value for respiration, viz. and is sucked directly into the fire and shot up the chimney, thus producing an unpleasant sensation of draught upon the feet and lower limbs while doing very little to jurify the air at or above the level of the mouth. This latter is the only air in the room that we can breathe.

In other words, the fire gets the bulk of the room the foul air, which being warm, tends to rise toward The fire draws plenty of fresh air for itself, but it doesn't give any of it back for the use of the human occupants of the room. All the benefit they get is the fireplace. Hence, while an open fire provides a much larger involuntary change of air than a closed stove, its mere presence in a room by no means solves the problem of ventilation for that room, as is often fondly supposed.

It is a very pretty thing to look at and an excellent means of providing healthful exercise by causing the occupants of the room to take their turn in standing or sitting directly in front of it and turning themselves round and round, like meat on a spit, to keep from being chilled on one side and roasted on the other. But it is almost as much of a broken reed for purposes of ventilation as of warming in really severe weather. As an ornamental addition to a room already warmed by furnace or steam heat, and as a temporary resource and addition to comfort during the unsettled weather of spring and fall, before the main heating system is in operation, it is most excellent, but it can only be regarded as an addition to methods of real ventilation and real heating.-Dr. Woods Hutchinson, in November Outing.
