A Reply.

EDITOR RECORD,

Dear Sir,—I again ask permission to insert a few lines in your paper in reply to the half-column or more of empty thought in the Haldimand Advocate of last week, under the heading of "Jarvis News," purporting to be a criticism of a letter contained in this paper two weeks ago, in reference to the Walpole Fair. Now, Mr. Editor, I do not wish to offer anything further, as my previous letter gave the needed explanation, and I do not propose to lower myself to reply to such haberdashery and the work of a disordered brain. I do not claim any special ability on my own part in preparing the Prize List as this work is all done by the Prize List Committee, and, as stated before, compares very favorably with any in the province, and as far as my own work is concerned in regard to the Walpole Fair whether I can be criticised adversely or not, I leave it to the people to judge.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this space, I remain,
Yours truly,
Geo. L. MILLER,
Sec'y of the Fair.

Found Dead in his Corn-field.

William Henry Williams, a well-known farmer of the 3rd concession of Woodhouse, was found lying dead in his cornfield on Wednesday of last week by those who had gone in search of him.

Not appearing at the usual hour for his dinner the members of the family at home became anxious and a search was instituted with the above result.

Deceased, who was in his 75th year, had been ailing of late but able to work and was engaged getting in his corn when stricken down. His sudden death is attributed to heart trouble. His wife predeceased him about 20 years ago and a family of four or five daughters survive him. He had resided in that part of the township known as "Down's Hollow" for 30 years and was a good neighbor and highly respected by all who shared his acquaintance.

The funeral was held Saturday afternoon to Woodhouse Cemetery.
