ARE YOU WEAK AFTER SICKNESS?

Now is the Time to Enrich Your Blood, Strengthen Your Nerves, and Get Real Well.

You can profitably take a page from the volume of Mrs. Geo. E. Amarilla's experience—she has been through the mill—she knows. "The many months of almost useless depression, the nervous fears and the sleepless nights I might have prevented—to think of them is almost enough to make me ill again. A little care and just a simple remedy at first would have averted a long serious illness.

"In the spring, two years ago, I had typhoid fever. I gained in weight, but my flesh was puffy and my strength feeble. I was easily tired, and my color not good. But I depended on a hitherto rugged constitution to right itself, and kept on doing more than I ought. The outcome was collapse of a nervous character. From the improvement 'Ferrozone' has made, giving me strength, color and endurance, it is reasonably certain that had I used it when I first felt poorly my strength would speedily have been restored. I can strongly urge those recovering from illness, those who feel ill, in fact everyone who needs better health can quickly gain it by using Ferrozone."

FERROZONE BUILDS UP THE WEAK.

It's because Ferrozone converts what you eat into nourishment, because it contains blood-making and nerve strengthening qualities. These are the reasons why it builds up the weak and cures the sick. Try one or two Ferrozone Tabl ts with your meals, and watch the gain. Fifty cents per box, six for $2.50, all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Canada.

LUNCHEON GIVING.

Form of Entertaining That is Enjoying Renewed Popularity.

"Luncheons are being given much more frequently now than in other days," says a writer in Vogue. "We are having more holidays perhaps, and on Saturdays town looks forlorn after 1 o'clock. Certainly they are much in favor at Tuxedo, as at all the country places within motoring distance of town.

"At Chevy Chase, near Washington, Sunday is always so gay at this time that tables have to be engaged weeks in advance. Many people in town entertain during the season with Sunday luncheons and in the evening either dine with friends or go to one of the restaurants. However, women usually stay at home until 6, or at least are visible until that time, for they must have a day on which men can call. Several of the November brides gave large luncheons shortly before their wedding days, inviting the entire bridal party and intimate friends.

"Some old fashioned hostesses cling to bouillon—perhaps because they have pretty china cups—but otherwise it is quite out of fashion. Three courses are ample for luncheon, which begins with hors d'oeuvres and should include one entree. Then there is a roast or chicken or chops or anything of that kind and a salad ands imple dessert. One wine, usually Rhine or hock or claret, may be served, and a half hour after luncheon, as with dinner, bottled mineral water (the imported is better form than the domestic) should be brought to the drawing room.

"Once every few seasons there is something really new in the way of things to eat, but I have found that the old fashioned viands are the best if they are really well cooked. We do not like fussy dishes nowadays, owing perhaps to the many systems for aiding the digestion and keeping thin.

"Some hostesses remain faithful to grape fruit as an introduction to luncheon and others to oysters or clams. But neither the oyster nor the clam cocktail is particular good form. The hors d'oeuvres is safer, because several may be served in the French manner and every one has a choice, while there are many who fear oysters or clams, claiming that they induce typhoid—something which I do not believe.

"Another gastronomic fad now generally taboo is the extraordinary salad, and all, except lobster and chicken mayonnaise, have French dressing. A green salad is best, and next to that one of endives. With pimentoes or green peppers, they make a pretty dish, and the combination is healthful."

Scotch Tailor a Garibaldi Veteran.

Alexander A. Walker, of Edinburgh, has been notified by the Italian Ambassador in London that by order of His Majesty the King of Italy the Minister of War has granted him the right to wear the medal for the War of Independence and Unity in Acknowledgment of the services rendered by him in the cause of Italy in the ranks of the British Legion during the campaign of 1860.

Walker was working as a tailor in Glasgow when Garibaldi came to the front, and he became enthusiastic and volunteered. Sailing from London, he landed at Palermo and took part in the advance to Naples. He was at the battles of Milazzo and Reggio, and at the siege of Messina, and entered Naples on Sept. 7, 1860. Mr. Walker served a year, and, although taking part in many engagements, was only once wounded slightly.—From the Westminster Gazette.

GERMANY'S HARD LESSONS.

Occupying the greater portion of central Europe, Germany is, in political respects, the most unfavorably located country in the world.

Nowhere protected by such natural boundaries as large rivers or high mountain ranges, but easily accessible and vulnerable on all sides, Germany has been, since remotest times, th eobject of hostile assaults.

For a period of 400 years the German tribes were compelled to defend their independence from the Romans. Later came the horrible invasion of the Huns; the piracies by the Northmen; the frequent attacks by the Magyars, Mongols and Turks.

During the Thirty Years War Germany served as the gerat battleground for Spanish, Swedish, Italian and Hungarian troops, who reduced the population from seventeen to four millions and made the country an almost uninhabitable desert. In Saxony, during the two years 1631 and 1632, 943,000 persons were killed or swept away by sickness.

In Wurttemberg over 500,000 lost their lives, and eight cities, 45 towers, 65 churches and 36,000 houses were burned. The Palatinate, having at that time a population of 500,000, suffered a loss of 457,000, and in some parts of Thuringia more than 90 per cent. of the population perished.

The seventeenth and eighteenth centuries brought the frequent raids by the French, who left the ruins of hundreds of beautiful castles on the Rhine, Moselle and Neckar as lasting monuments of their visits.

The seventeenth and eighteenth century saw the onslaught of that monstrous adventurer, Napoleon I., by whom Germany was humiliated as never before. The imperial mantle was torn into shreds and stamped into the dust. The German kingdoms and states were given by Napoleon as presents to his relatives and favorites, who made the German cities ring with their gay life. Would any nation, says Rudolf Cronan in McClure's, ignore the lessons taught by such an unhappy, terrible past?

DO YOU USE PILLS?

If in Doubt About the Right Pills to Use Read the Following Letter Carefully:

"I am one of those persons whose system requires aid," writes Mr. Young Gledhill, from Picton, "but it is so easily affected by reason of the great sensitiveness of the bowels that ordinary drastic pills inflict great injury to the delicate coating, and excite such persistent activity as to be with difficulty checked.

"I wish in the highest terms to express the great value of Dr. Hamilton's Pills in cases like mine, and I am sure also for elderly people and the very weak, there is no pill like them.

"Speaking of my wn experience with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, I can say they have proved the most stimulating Pills for the liver I have found. I have proved their tonic action upon digestion, and the same results have been secured by friends upon whom I have urged their use. The manufacturers are to be congratulated upon possessing so valuable a prescription and the public should know that so valuable a remedy has been placed at their command."

No other pill for constipation, for liver, kidney or stomach trouble, compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills; they are mild and sure always to restore health. Refuse substitutes. Sold by all dealers, 25c per box, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

SEASON'S GREETINGS.

(Halifax Chronicle.)

All hail to the day when the Britons came over
And planted the standard with sea-foam still wet,
Around and above us their spirits will hover,
Rejoicing to mark how we honor it yet,
Beneath it the emblems they cherished are waving,
The Rose of Old England the roadside perfumes,
The Shamrock and Thistle the north winds are waving,
Securely the Mayflower blushes and blooms.

A Japanese Compliment.

The Japanese have ever the instinct of politeness. It may happen, however, as in the case recorded below, that their idea of a compliment is not precisely that of the one to whom they wish to show courtesy. The story is told by Inspector General Hornaday.

"I remember a little Japanese who attended one of our banquets," he said, "and a queer compliment that he paid to a colonel's wife."

"I sat between the two, and the lady said across me:

"'Mr. Takashiru, oyu compress the ladies' feet in your country, don't you?'

"'Oh, no, madam; that is a Chinese custom,' said Takashiru. 'We Japanese allow our ladies' feet to grow to their full size. Not that——'

"And he bowed and hissed in the polite Japanese way:

"'Not that they could ever hope to rival yours, madam.'"

CHIEF OF CONGO TRIBE.

Right of Women to Throne—Strange Beliefs and Superstitions.

E. Torday described to the Royal Anthropological Society last night the results of a recent ethnological expedition to the Congo Free State. After dealing with the racial divisions he explained the institutions, government and religion of the people of the Congo State.

The head of the tribe was the chief, but in certain questions his mother seemed to take precedence of him. His power was nominaly absolute, but in reality very slight. There were six great officers and a host of smaller officials. The right to the throne descended in the female line, but a woman only came to the throne if the male stock failed. The chief having the power to disinherit any likely claimant virtually had the power of nominating his successor.

The Bu-Shongo believed in an all powerful creator, but paid no worship to him, though magic was largely practised. Spiritually man was believed to consist of three elements—soul, double and shadow. The soul was thought only to leave the body at death, the double at both death and sleep and the shadow only at death. The belief that a corpse could not cast a shadow was currently held.

Mr. Torday reported the nearest approach to true totemism as yet discovered in Africa. For among the western Bu-Shongo, he said, each person inherited from his father an ikina, a plant or animal, which he might not eat. The ikina had no connection with tribal names, and the division into ikina cut across the division into tribes and villages. Persons possessing the same ikina might not marry.

KEEPING HOUSE BY ELECTRICITY.

The 1910 housekeeper may operate and govern her household by just the turn of a switch. Just a turn of the thumb and forefinger will revolutionize the old way of doing things in the home. Follow the "new" housekeeper from morning until night, and at the end of the day she will tell you that life really is a joy for her compared to a period of no more than ten years ago, when it required a match to light the stove and the gas, it required coal to cook the meals, it meant smoke and smudge, dirt and dust.

To-day there is not a department in the modern household, from the laundry to the drawing room, that is not improved with devices electrical that save time and labor, that make the home brighter and cleaner, and that provide comfort an enjoyment that the reign of oil, gas and coal never knew, and probably never anticipated until the electrical inventor began his work.

A turn of a switch and the water is heated for the bath, the current is on for the vibratory machine and the irons are heated for curling the hair.

BREAKFAST DONE TO A TURN.

A turn of a switch and the broiler or toaster is ready for the breakfast, the percolator sizzles for the coffee, the oven is ready for the biscuits, and the water is heated to wash the dishes.

A turn of a switch and the work in the laundry is made a pleasure instead of a drudge. The washing is done by a motor, the clothes are motor wrung, the flat irons are heated and, in cases of emergency, the clothes are dried with an electric fan.

A turn of a switch and the pneumatic cleaning machine is placed in operation, the carpets and rugs are dustless by being relieved of their dirt, the corners and crevices are cleaned, the wall papers and tapestries are dusted, the mattresses and couches are renovated, the windows are washed and dried and once or twice a month all signs of moths are driven out of the clothes in the closets and bureau drawers.

No "Side."

Lord Charles Beresford is devoid of any suspicion of "side" or nonsense. At the close of one of Lord Charles' meetings at York, at the time he was wooing that constituency, a solemn and sedate old clergyman who had been seated on the platform came up to the candidate and said with much gravity: "Allow me, Lord Charles, the pleasure of shaking hands with you. I had the honor of being confirmed many years ago, by your respected uncle, the primate of all Ireland." Lord Charles instantly shouted in stentorian tones to his brother, who was near the door at the other end of the hall: "Bill! Bill! Here's a parson who says he was confirmed by old Uncle John; come up here and have a talk with him!"—M. A. P.

Much of the worry which every mother of young children undergoes would be spared if the mother kept Baby's Own Tablets on hand and gave an occasional dose when the child was fretful, cross or feverish. Golden Eagle in Songster Class.

Chris Wittmeyer, from Godrich, was arrested Monday for killing a golden eagle and was fined $10 and costs. Wittmeyer and a party of hunters had been in the vicinity of Twin Lakes hunting geese, and while on their way home sighted the golden eagle, which is a rare bird in this part of the country, and shot it and sent it to Mandan to have it mounted.

One section of the game law provides that all harmless birds must be protected, and the golden eagle comes under this head. The present Game and Fish Commission has made a strict stand for the enforcement of the law, and there has been less unlawful shooting this year than at any time in the past.—Bismarck correspondence St. Paul Dispatch.

Maine Trappers' Fight With Bobcats.

Two bobcats made it interesting for John and Jesse Bowden, of Bucksport. The two were out looking after their traps when they discovered a young cat in one of them. While John was taking him from the trap the mother cat returned and jumped on his back. She fastened her teeth in his shoulder and her sharp claws in his back. The only way Mr. Bowden could help himself was by raising up and placing his back against a tree and jamming the cat. In the meantime his son had come to his assistance, attracted by his cries for help.

At the first opportunity he shot Mrs. Cat and the trouble was over, with the result that the father and son made a good day's work. As there is a bounty of $2 on each cat and the skins are worth from $3 to $5 each the cost to them was their clothes, which were badly torn. Mr. Bowden received a bad bite in the shoulder, the son one in the calf of his leg.—Kennebec Journal.

THOSE PLAYTHINGS.

In searching through the attic room, I came,
Upon a box, all tightly closed, there on a shelf laid 'way;
I opened it and in me there sad feelings did arise—
At what, though simple as it was, now lay before my eyes.
Oh, there were tops and strings and balls, of tools a little set,
And books of all the colors, too, all marked with alphabet;
A little horse of painted tin, and cart with tiny wheels,
A pig that when its sides are pressed, just like a real one squeals;
Of marbles, course, a multitude, and many other toys—
At birthdays bought, and Christmas times, to heighten childish joys.

How oft those little playthings all were scattered on the floor,
Perchance, too, hindering our steps in passing through some door;
A little voice rang out with glee and tiny feet did prance—
As on a box or top or ball we stumbled, p'rhaps by chance;
'Twas "so annoying" then we thought—the clatter and the noise,
As thoughtlessly out of our way, we pushed aside the toys
When grown impatient, too, sometimes, we may have stopped to chide,
Till cherub eyes, thus saddened, their tears they could not hide—
And O, those eyes, just at such times, we never can forget—
They often seemed to say to us, "Some day you will regret."

Those little feet grew weary, though, alas, one sad, sad day;
And tiny hands grew tired, so tired, and could not longer play;
And ruddy cheeks turned wan and pale, and laughing eyes grew sad—
No childish song around was heard, in tones so gay and glad;
A cherub voice said pleadingly at a fond mother's knee:
"O, take my playthings, mama, dear, and Keep them all for me,
"I feel so tired, so very tired, I can no longer play."
So the playthings all were gathered, at the day's still, tranquil close —
And the little player sank into a heavenly repose.

The playthings now no longer, ah, are scattered on the floor—
Their noise and rattle through the rooms, fall on our ears no more;
No more a little voice in glee, comes ringing through the hall—
A picture of a little boy's just hangs upon the wall.
Attiny chair is vacant, too, when meal time comes around,
And lonesomeness is in our home, in every stir and sound;
And it seems the very sunshine now casts but a cheerless ray
Into that room where once we watched a little boy at play.
Did we possess, we'd give the gold of earth's wide, wide domain,
To see the little player now, and playthings back again.

The Mormon Way.

Marriages among Mormons rarely fail. Their people are taught from the first to last that mariage is a most sacred rite and must be entered into only through the purest and best motives. And the elders among them, like the old time makers, counsel those who seek to enter this holy state, and in case they are unfit, or the proposed match is ill-advised, the marriage is forbidden.

A lady who has lived in Salt Lake for several years, and who went there with her mind set against believing anything good of Mormons, in talking with some of the veterans from home said:

"Since the abolition of polygamy, and after living neighbor to Mormons for a dozen years and more, I feel compelled to say that in the matter of marriage, of faithfulness, and love and care for children, they can give Gentiles many pointers. I don't like all their ways exactly, but the fact that they do not recognize, nor accept the double standard of morals—one for women, and one for men—makes me feels more or less ashamed of our people.'

"They do not teach, but actually practice total abstinence, not only from intoxicants but from all things harmful the Mormons, and only wish I could say or unnecessary to health, comfort and good morals. This much I can say for as much for the Gentiles in Salt Lake City.
