BANK OF HAMILTON

Economy is, in Itself, a Great Income

If your income were greatly increased to-morrow, it is questionable whether you would be in any better position financially at the end of the year, without the incentive to save that a Bank account affords.

In other words, you must learn to save—and this valuable lesson is best learned by the opening of a Savings Account.

The process is simple, and the habit soon becomes fixed.

The Home Journal.

The April number of The Home Journal is here with very interesting contents. J. W. Sangster in "Why Are Eggs Sixty Cents a Dozen" presents logical arguments to prove that more than anything else it is due to the movement of the boys and girls from country to city, not to the avarice of the middlemen.

Why should we feed our children on Greek and Norse legends when our own country is so full of legendery history and fairy tales. Majorie Pickthall's Running Rabbit Stories" have progressed to the Bending of the Bow, the great magic war bow, whose arrows flew straight to the hearts of his enemies and floated before him like a shaft of light guiding him.

To residents or former residents of Toronto, the sketch of "Toronto Society in 1854" will be interesting reading. It is difficult to imagine York Street from Front to Wellington being the centre of "high society." The Grange and Beverley House being of the very few joyous, brilliantly lighted houses inhabited by society of that period that still remain, but you all know or have heard of their decendents.

To those who appreciate the value of the Ontario Women's Institute, Miss Laura Rose's account of the founding of Women's Institutes in British Columbia will be a source of satisfaction; apart from the Institute work, it is interesting, descriptive narrative.

But we cannot ennumerate everything, there are good stories, good suggestions on all sides of household affairs, lots of fashionable clothes. Just one comment on the new horticultural department "My Lady's Garden," it is excellent addition to the magazine opening large opportunities.

Hiring Help

The farm help question will never be satisfactorily settled until farmers change their methods of hiring men. Engaging help in March and letting it go at the end of October, is neither good for the farmer nor for the man he engages. There is no permancy about it. A six or eight month's engagement means a new man every year. If he is any good at all, his services become most valuable just when his time is up. He leaves at a time when he is becoming familiar with the farmer's way of doing things, and in nine cases out of ten never finds his way back to that particular farm again. More often than not that becomes his only engagement on any farm. He drifts into town during the winter, gets the loafing habit or perchance lights upon some city job and his services on the land are lost. A yearly engagement would keep him there. As his experience in farm work increases, his value to the farmer becomes greater. A clerk in any business becomes more valuable to his employer the longer he remains with him. So with the man on the farm. His servises the second year are of much more value to the farmer than they were the first year. Even if things are a bit slack in winter a yearly engagement is the right thing.

A separate house and a plot of ground for the hired man would go a long way towards solving the farm help problem. The services of a married man are more valuable to the farmer than those of a single man, for the same reason that a married man, as a rule, will render better service than an unmarried man in a city business. He has a wife and family to support and to earn their food and clothing, it is important that he should keep his job. To do this he must please his employer. The thing works out the same way on the farm. Once settled in a home of his own, the farm laborer will be loth to move He will become attached to the particular farm on which he is engaged and his interest in its success will increase as the years go by Even if he received no other return for the money invested in a small house than the assurance that he would have steady help, it would pay a farmer to make the investment. Nothing tries his patience more or interferes more with the successful operation of a farm than unsteady or unreliable help. Steady, reliable help cannot be permanently secured on a six or eight months' engagement. A yearly engagement is necessary, and a yearly engagement of a married man will make it doubly sure.

There is another side to this farm help question. The general practice of having the hired man board with the farmer and his family tends to detract from the sanctity of the home life. This is no reflection on the hired man. He may be ever so good morally and all that, yet his presence in the home becomes a disturbing factor in the life of the farmer and his family. That daily intercourse between parents and children necessary in the up building of a true home life cannot have full swing if there is a stranger permanently located in the home. If the farm home is large enough to have separate quarters for the hired help this can be avoided. But few homes have this extra room. And if they had the hired man might resent any plan that would prevent his enjoying all that was going. Then the women folk have to be considered. A hired man in the home means much extra labor, unless female help can be secured, and it is as scarce in the country as in the city. With a separate house for the hired man, this extra labor for the women folk and this breaking in on the home life could be avoided. Some farmers who employ more than one man have the second house large enough to accommodate all the help and pay the wife of the married man for boarding the single men. This may mean extra cash outlay, but it will be money well invested.—Canadian Farm.

Warning.

Since its introduction into Canada the sales of Parisian Sage have been phenomenal. This success has led to many imitations similar in name. Look out for them; they are not the genuine. See that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. You can always get the genuine at T. E. Morrow's.

Parisian Sage is the quickest acting and most efficient hair tonic in the world.

It is made to conform to Dr. Sangerbond's (of Paris) proven theory that dandruff, falling hair, baldness and scalp itch are caused by germs.

Parisian Sage kills these dandruff germs and removes all trace of dandruff in two weeks, or money back; it stops falling hair and itching scalp and prevents baldness.

And remember that baldness is caused by dandruff germs, thoso little hard working persistent devils that day and night do nothing but dig into the roots of the hair and destroy its vitality.

Parisian Sage is a daintily perfumed hair dressing, not sticky or greasy, and any woman who desires luxuriant and bewitching hair can get it in two weeks by using it. 50 cents a large bottle.
