Garnet.

The Garnet Women's Institute met in the Hall on Saturday, April 8, at 2 p.m. There was a large turnout of members who had the privilege of listening to an excellent address by Dr. K. W. Howell of Jarvis, on "The preservation of health and spring diet." The music given by the Misses Dales and Kisdill was appreciated by all. The next meeting will be held on May 20 when the subjects to be discussed are as follows: Recollections of Queen Victoria, Sunshine as a disinfectant, and Care of the sleeping room.

The Daily News of Nakusp, B.C., of March 20th, contains the following, which has reference to a former well-known resident of this place. He was also a brother of Mrs. H. Almas and Mrs. A. Thomas of Hagersville. "A serious accident occurred at Rosebery on Saturday morning when brakeman William Lethong of the Nakusp and Slooan branch was very seriously squeezed between the cars when making a coupling, early in the morning, breaking his collar bone, fracturing three ribs and the concussion affecting the lungs. The unfortunate man who is exceeding popular with the travelling public and his fellow workmen, had only just come on duty for the day, and was just in the act of making up the train to connect with the steamer from Nelson for the daily run to Nakusp. He is considered one of the most careful and reliable men in the district. Mr. Lethong spent a very restless night in the New Denver hospital, suffering great pain, but hopes are entertained for his recovery. He has been in the service of the C.P.R. for several years."

Hagersville.

Mrs. C. Coles has returned to her home in Brantford after visiting her sister, Mrs. R. J. Catherwood. Daniel Forsyth has returned from a few months stay in the Northwest. John Leng, who intends leaving in a few days for the Porcupine District, was waited on a few evenings ago by some friends at the Keating House and presented with a handsome gold locket. Andrew Shuler pleaded guilty to the theft of a horse from Patrick McMahon at Canfield and a few days ago was sentenced to two years less one day's imprisonment in the Central Prison.

David Bell of Glanford visited relatives here prior to going to Saskatoon. Miss Pearl Jones has returned to Dunnville after a week's visit here. Samuel Ponnessa, accused of ill-usage and neglect of his child has been honorably acquitted of the charge.

Mrs. Henry Thomas passed away at her home on Friday afternoon in her 64th year. The funeral was held Sunday after to Hagersville cemetery. Rev. F. L. Turnbull of Hamilton conducted the funeral. Tonson Mitchell has accepted a position with D. Jones and will occupy Mrs. Helm's house. Mrs. J. Douzety of Ryckman Corners spent the past week with friends in town. Mrs. W. Jennings and daughter spent Saturday in Hamilton. While Mrs. C. Shaw was returning home the other evening from doing her shopping, a man sneaked up behind her, cut the handle of her satchel with a knife and made off with it. Luckily there was only a small purse, containing about a dollar in it.

Nelson Whitelaw, engineer at J. C. Inzle's quarry, is recovering from the effects of his recent accident. His clothing became fast in a set screw upon a shaft and he was caught up and carried around the rapidly revolving shaft. His clothing was torn off and he was badly shaken up and bruised. Easter Sunday the Methodist people here will be favored with two solos. In the morning J. Brethour will sing "The Lord is my Shepherd," and in the evening Miss S. Brethour will sing "Calvary."

Entrance Exams May be Made More Stiff.

Though pretty nearly anyone would have thought that the entrance examination in 1910 was sufficiently difficult for all practical purposes the end is not yet. According to reports the standard will be still further increased for the 1911 examinations, and the difficulty of pupils squeezing into the high schools and collegiate institutions will be thereby increased. It was generally thought that the 1910 examinations and the standard enacted were both too severe, but apparently the powers that be at Toronto think that a little more of the same kind of thing will not hurt. Protests from parents and pupils will doubtless be forthcoming. According to reports the raising of the entrance standards of 1910 resulted in a falling off of between 3,000 to 4,000 in the number of successful entrance pupils from a total of the previous year, 1909. Another substantial drop in the total may be due to take place this year. The change will doubtless have the effect of lessening the pressure upon the collegiate institutes, the higher schools of learning and the pressure upon the public schools will be thereby made still greater.

Are All Persons "In Love" Self-Centered, Petulant and Moody?

Not long ago a certain celebrity, in the course of a speech, exclaimed, "What can be a happier state than to be in love?" No one answered him at the time but in a day or so a number of prominent people began to realize that it was up to them to talk for publication on the subject. The opportunity to say something original was really too good to be wasted. It is very evident from the points of view expressed, that instead of being the ideal state described in verse and prose, love is rather a miserable experience. For instance, a famous authoress says:

"Why is it that we are always rather annoyed to be thrown into the society of people 'in love'? Is it because human nature is churlish and inclined to begrudge lovers their so-called happiness? I do not think so—altogether. We vaguely recognize the irritation, the self-centered petulance of their moods.

"There is the cloud that always threatens to burst and the most rapturous of lovers are continually mindful of this expected downpour. It makes them suspicious and miserable. If the man is late for an appointment, if the girl does not post the promised letter in time—nothing is too small to precipitate the storm. Lovers live in a whirl of misunderstanding and re-primand, and happiness is the last thing they seem to get.

"For every moment of bliss granted to lovers," states another student of human nature, "a hundred tears are possibly shed. Sweethearts, tormented by jealousy, behave as though they would prefer to shut each other up in a cage."

Even a recently engaged woman admits that, though she believes herself to be in a state generally of ecstatic bliss, there are moments when anything seems better than the nerve strain of the highly exalted condition she was in.

"Although I am very, very happy," she says, "and I should be very sorry to separate from my sweetheart, yet there are times when I find his continual attentions somewhat irksome. It is difficult to always keep up the strain of appearing entirely absorbed in one man, however much one may care for him, and we often have tiffs owing to the demands we make upon one another's moods."

Here's a School for Teaching Wives.

There is a man of my acquaintance—and he thinks himself a fairly intelligent and well-informed man, too—who was greatly astonished when his wife told him, shortly after their marriage, that she did not know how to sew. He says a recent writer, "Why," he said, "I thought all women knew how to sew naturally." And he was offended when his wife laughed at the idea that sewing is a natural gift with all women. And so it is with other branches of work generally held to be comprised in women's sphere. They do not come naturally to all women, and some of them are not easily learned by any women. To remedy the defects in the housewife education of wives and women about to enter the matrimonial state, a "school for wives" has been established in London. In it the scholars are taught everything that is likely to be useful to them in their wedded lives, such as cooking, sewing, the purchasing of supplies, laundering, etc. Nothing is neglected in the school's curriculum. The pupils are even taught how to stain floors. It is believed that many a Londoner will have cause to bless the happy inspiration which led his wife to the school, since the result of the instruction given there are bound to be seen in decreased household bills. The school will no doubt be imitated elsewhere.

Rear Game for Slaughter.

Ignorant of the fate that awaits many of them during the hunting season, 4,000 happy young pheasants were enjoying life on an English estate in Sussex. They belonged to a firm whose business it is to raise pheasants for supplying deficiencies on private estates.

"There promises to be a good demand for our young pheasants this year," said the manager of the firm, "as the early breeding was spoiled by bad weather. The young birds fetch from 80 cents to $1.50 apiece, according to the demand. People find it far less trouble and expense to buy their birds for shooting than to breed them, and a big business is done each year in the sale of the young birds."

"They are hatched and brought up in the first place by ordinary hens, a good hen taking a sitting of twenty eggs. When the birds get older and able to fly their wings are bound to prevent them going far."

Lovely Lisbon.

One of the cheapest cities in the world to live in is Lisbon; and it's a city worth living in, too, with its blue skies and quaint streets. Palms grow in the public gardens, and bananas in the centre of the city.

Lisbon is a fine place for an Englishman to spend a holiday. For every sovereign he changes into the national currency he finds himself possessed of something like 30 shillings; and, then, things are cheap. He may live at a decent hotel at an inclusive charge of about 3 shillings a day.

Of course, there are drawbacks. You go to bed at a reasonable hour, hoping to get to sleep; but up till one o'clock, at earliest, there is a constant turmoil in the corridors, and the row starts about six in the morning again.

And the moments when human activities are at rest are adequately filled by the nocturnal music of innumerable cats and the scurrying of rats.

Sealing-Wax of the Ancients.

A sort of earth was used by the ancient Egyptians in sealing papers and documents. They also placed such earth on the horns of cattle and upon it was stamped the seal of the priest. Thus were identified the cattle to be used in the sacrifices. Sealing wax in the present form was first noted in London in the middle of the 15th century.

Falls' Millinery is Individual

Nobody likes to see "her" hat a duplicate of the one she has on—on another woman. Our Milliners never duplicate a hat. It would be cheaper for us if they did because the cost of making is lessened, just as a builder can put up a row of houses all exactly alike cheaper than if each house were separately planned and constructed. But the Falls' way is different. Our designers avoid "Dittos" in hats and strive for "differentures." Each style is a separate study and each hat quite its own individuality, and New York and Paris peeps forth out of each assorted Easter styles at $5, 6, 7.50, 10, 12 and 15.

50 Gold Nuggets for Men, A Special Offering

For more than 15 years a great Manufacturer of good Clothing, has done business with this store and as it has grown, he has grown, so we told him a few weeks ago that we wanted a special offering in Navy and Black Serge Suits for men, the value of which would stand out like a sore thumb, he replied "Gentlemen, complying with your request, we will shortly ship you as requested 50 Men's Navy and Black English Worsteds Serge Suits. But kindly note:—We will do something very unusual for you and cannot duplicate these Suits at prices invoiced." The Suits are also lately new and fresh. Every suit is cut on a model that is new this spring. Styles are single and double breasted. The Fabrics are Navy and Black English Worsteds Serges AND THEY ARE ALL WOOL. Sizes are 35 to 44. We have marked them $8.90 and never saw such suits for the money. Perhaps you would do just as well to set your alarm clock ahead of your neighbors.
