Hicks' Forecasts for September
A regular storm period is central on the 3rd, covering the 1st to the 6th. It will be natural to expect decided fall of the barometer with all other attendant changes to active storm conditions during this period. Very warm and humid conditions, with south winds and low barometer, will admonish of equatorial storms. The 3rd, 4th and 5th will be the crisis of the period. Watch storm developments on and touching these dates, especially in southern extremes. The Mercury period will prolong and intensify tendency to threatening weather following this period. A reactionary storm period is central on the 8th, 9th and 10. On and about the 11th of September maximum "earth currents," disturbing telegraph lines, exciting auroral lights and causing seismic shakes, very naturally reach a crisis, over the globe generally. Look for fierce equatorial storms on and near the 9th and 10th followed by change to much cooler weather and fronts to the northward. Seismic period, 6th to 11th, central on 8th and 9th. Regular storm period unites with Mercury period and the autumnal equinox, from the 12th to the 16th. This period will bring return of falling barometer, change to warmer, cloudiness, rain and thunder, but we do not figure that generally abundant rains will fall at this time. A reactionary storm period falls at the centre of earth's autumnal equinox—from the 19th to the 22nd. Threatening storms with more or less violence, will be perfectly natural at this time, or at any time in this part of the month. New moon on the 22nd will prolong low barometer, high temperature and stormy conditions generally a day or two longer than normal at this time. Chances for good, general rains grow better as we approach the close of September. Change to much cooler about the 22nd to 25th, first in the west progressing east and south. A marked seismic period covers the 19th to 25th, being central on the 22nd. A regular storm period covers the last week in September, the crisis of the period falling on the 26th, 27th and 28th. Autumnal storms will be general at this time, and cool nights with frost in many states may be expected as we pass into October.
