Sandwich

Miss Bessie Thompson left on Friday for her home in York.

Leslie Atkinson spent a few days last week at the Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Graydon of Hamilton spent the week end at the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Booth.

Quite a number from this burg spent Dominion Day in Dover.

Mrs. Clayton Marlatt of Simcoe spent Sunday at "Cherry Grove."

Mr. and Mrs. Morrison of Shedden spent the 1st with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Atkinson.

Mr. Johnson spent a few days at his home in Bradford, Penn.

On Thursday, June 29th, about twenty-five ladies attended the Sandwich Women's Institute at the home of Mrs. Frank Pond's and spent a most pleasant and profitable afternoon. The President, Mrs. B. Pond, occupied the chair and introduced Mrs. W. B. Ferguson of Strathroy, the government delegate, who addressed us on moral standard of our lives. Miss R. Peacock then recited after which Mrs. J. R. Pond gave an interesting talk, Miss B. Thompson favored the ladies with a solo, and the meeting was closed by "God Save the King."

The ladies served a delicious lunch and a social chat was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Mrs. C. Nichol has kindly offered her home for the next meeting which takes place on Friday, July 7th. Meeting called at 2.30 p.m.

TO ESCAPE WORK.

Extent to Which Malingering Has Been Practiced by Prisoners.

A certain Englishman—Dr. R. F. Quinton by name—who served 32 years in various prisons in his native land as medical officer and governor, has many interesting experiments to relate. According to Dr. Quinton when he entered prison service at the Portsmouth convict prison in 1876, malingering was practiced to an extent that is hardly credible by desperate men who would go to almost any length in order to escape work. He writes:

"Self-inflicted injuries of the most serious character often led to amputation of limbs and other operations. The practice of placing arms and legs under railway trucks on the works was so prevalent at one convict prison that no less than 25 major amputations were performed in one year."

"Another prisoner who feigned stiffness of his index finger to avoid oakum picking was so irate when the finger was forcibly bent that on returning to his cell he promptly placed the offending finger in the hinge of his table, which was attached to the cell wall, and violently raised the leaf, with the result that the finger was absolutely shattered and had to be removed."

"A remarkable example of the persistence with which a malingering career could be carried on was afforded by the case of the notorious criminal Bidwell, who was sentenced to penal servitude for life in connection with the Bank of England forgeries. He was in good health on conviction, but never did any active work in prison."

"Feigning loss of power in his legs he lay in bed from day to day and from year to year, defying all efforts of persuasion and resisting all unpleasant coercive measures devised to make him work. When I saw him at Dartmoor at the end of eight or nine years of his sentence long disuse of his legs had rendered him almost a cripple."

"The muscles were extremely wasted, and both hip and knee joints were contracted in a state of semi-flexion, so that he lay doubled up in a bundle. Though he was examined time after time by experts no one succeeded in discovering any organic disease or any cause for his condition other than his own firmly-expressed determination never to do a day's work for the British Government—a threat which I believe he ultimately carried out."

Coffee.

The old coffee houses which were so common once upon a time have disappeared, but the popularity of the beverage still remains. Only two plants of the species are cultivated to any great extent—the Arabian and the Liberian. The coffee shrub first blossoms in its third year and then bears only a small crop of fruit. The fifth year is usually the time of its first considerable yield. In Java three gatherings are made yearly, called the "early," the "chief" and the "after crop," but only the second is of great importance. The flower enjoys only a short-lived existence as the setting of the fruit usually takes place within 24 hours and the petals wither and fall off almost immediately. A coffee estate in full bloom is a pretty sight, but its glory is very quickly past.

The name Mocha is applied generally to the coffee produced in Arabia and Abyssinia. The best portion of its crop goes to Turkey and Egypt, being bought on the trees by traders, who themselves look after the picking and preparation. Abyssinia is the original home of coffee. The finest coffee of Arabia is grown in the Yemen province and the best beans are reserved for consumption in the country or the courts of the Sultan of Turkey, the Khedive of Egypt or the Shah of Persia, or the other principal rulers of the Mahometan world. In the British Empire the chief coffee producing countries are India, Jamaica, British Central Africa and Ceylon. Small quantities of the product are also grown in Queensland, British Honduras and Natal.
