Right at Last

"I think you have some rooms to let," said the lady, who was dressed in deep mourning and wore a veil.

"Yes, ma'am," said the servant, uncertain of the lady's spinnerhood.

"I wish to see the rooms, please," said the lady, lifting her veil, and she followed the landlady upstairs.

There were three rooms, two bedrooms and a sitting-room, and the lady appeared satisfied.

"I have just come from the continent," she explained to Mrs. Robson, the landlady.

"My name is Browne, with the 'e,' please, and I am a widow," and she sighed.

sweetheart, if Ida Trevelyan should indeed prove to be she.

With her cup of tea before her, Miss Mazurka waited hour after hour.

"Who indeed?" said Royce, with a touch of impatience in his voice.

"Just a little talk about business, my dear boy! He! he! Quite right, Royce."

"Not till it's got no more eggs to lay, my dear boy," chuckled the old man.

"And you will get it without doubt," said Royce, coolly. "He cannot escape you; you need not be afraid. Wait a moment."

"What is the use of going back upon that?" said Royce, with a laugh.

and gave me a ten-pound note, which I'll give you, Royce."

"Yes, yes, it is," said the old man, huskily. "It's wonderful how bad it gets. I—I can't remember how what I used, Royce. It's sad, isn't it?"

"Dreadful," assented Royce. "Never mind, my boy," went on old Craddock; "we'll pluck this Dewsbury pretty clean between us. Play with him, Royce, play with him as often as you can."

"And I say play with him, Royce. Drive him still further into the net. He's young and simple."

"And puts the fullest trust in me," interposed Royce, with a touch of bitterness. "Yes, I understand. Don't be afraid; you shall have the Dewsbury estates in your grasp. I have no cause to love him!"

"Who indeed?" said Royce, with a touch of impatience in his voice. "But never mind that. What do you want?"

"Just a little talk about business, my dear boy! He! he! Quite right, Royce. Pluck your pigeon while he's got a feather left! Ah, Royce, you're clever, but I taught you, I taught you."

MADE WELL AND STRONG

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Toronto. "I gladly give you my testimonial in favor of your wonderful medicine. Last October I wrote to you for advice as I was completely run down, had bearing down sensation in the lower part of the bowels, backache, and pain in the side. I also suffered terribly from gas."

After receiving your directions, I followed them closely and am now entirely free from pain in back and bowels, and am stronger in every way."

I also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my baby was born, and I recommend it highly to all pregnant women.—Miss E. WANDY, 92 Logan Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Maple Creek, Sask. "I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I am now with pains every month. I know other women who suffer as I did and I will gladly recommend your medicine to them. You may publish this if you think it will help others.—Mrs. F. E. COOK, Maple Creek, Sask."

If you belong to that countless army of women who suffer from some form of female ill, don't hesitate to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs.

ignorance until he married her and had become the master of the estates.

MERIT POLITENESS AND YOU GET IT.

Mlle. Cecil Sorel.

Paris.—When M. Francois de Tessan declared that politeness is rapidly dying out in France, he stirred up quite a row.

Mlle. Cecil Sorel, "the prettiest and politest woman in all Europe," whose hand Lord Rosebery of England is said to be striving for in vain, was asked what she thought of it, especially as regards the courtesy of men towards women. Her answer was quite simple. She said: "One always has the politeness displayed toward them that one merits."

For some reason she roves over the politeness stopped as suddenly as it had begun. Mlle. Sorel's reply ended it.

Nose Colds Cured Quickly.

Dear Sirs, I was a chronic sufferer from continuous colds in the throat and nose, and for many years have constantly had Catarrh. I was recommended to try Catarrhine, and find that by using the Inhaler on the first touch of a cold or La Grippe I am able to stay in a few hours. I have been able to breathe through my nose freely since using Catarrhine, in fact I am completely cured. I signed, Edward S. Lee, Sydney, Ont.

Narrow Streets of Great Yarmouth.

Great Yarmouth contains what is said to be the narrowest street in the world, known as Kitty Witches row, and its greatest width is fifty-six inches. Its entrance would seriously inconvenience a stout person trying to pass through it. Twenty-nine inches from wall to wall is all the room that can be spared in this part.

Little Edith Harris Cured of Dropsy by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Two Doctors Said She Would Die, But To-day She is a Healthy, Happy Girl—Healthy Kidneys in Childhood the Guarantee of a Happy, Useful Life.

McTaggart, Sask., Feb. 27.—(Special.)—That no child is too young to have Kidney Disease even in its worst form, and that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it in any form has been abundantly proven in the case of little Edith Harris of this place.
