KEEP THE SEAT.

A lively-looking porter stood on the rear platform of a sleeping car in the Grand Central Station when a fussy and choleric old man clambered up the steps. He stopped at the door, puffed for a moment, and then turned to the man in uniform.

"Forger," he said. "I'm going to Chicago. I want to be well taken care of. I pay for it. Do you understand?"
"Yes, sir, but..."
"Never mind any 'buts.' You listen to what I say. Keep the train boys away from me. Dust me of whenever I want you to. Give me an extra blanket and if there is any one in the berth over me slide him into another. I want you to..."

"But, say, boss, I—" "Young man, when I'm giving instructions I prefer to do the talking myself. You do as I say. Here is a two-dollar bill. I want to get the good of it. Not a word, sir."
The train was starting. The porter pocketed the bill with a grin and swung himself to the ground.
"All right, boss?" he shouted. "You can do the talking if you want to. I'm powerful sorry you wouldn't let me tell you—but I ain't going on that train!"—Lippincott's.

THEY SPOILED THE FILM.

A short time ago a scene from the French revolution was being enacted in France for the moving picture machine. A guillotine had been erected by the roadside, and a howling mob had assembled about it. The mimic execution was going on in the most lifelike manner. The dramatic moment had arrived: the condemned man, with the priest beside him, stood under the glittering knife, the savage-faced mob waved its arms in fierce exultation when a touring car swept around a curve in the road. Some American ladies in the car, finding themselves face to face with this realistic picture, broke into piercing screams, while the startled chauffeur brought his machine to a stop. The disturbance was too much for the actors, and the condemned man, the priest and the mob turned to see what was the matter. The motorists soon found out the situation, and sped away, but the film was ruined.—Strand Magazine.

GRANDMOTHER OF MONARCHS.

It is curious to think how many thrones are and will be occupied by the descendants of the late Queen Victoria. In Prussia we have her eldest grandson, Kaiser Wilhelm; in Norway reigns her granddaughter, Queen Maud.

In Sweden the Crown Princess is a granddaughter of the late Queen, and other grandchildren are the Grand Duke of Hesse, the Crown Princess of Greece, the Empress of Russia, the Crown Princess of Roumania, the Queen of Spain, the hereditary Princess of Saxe-Meiningen.

Among the great-grandchildren of the late Queen are the German Crown Prince, the Czarowitz, the Prince of the Asturias, Prince George of Greece, the eldest son of the Crown Prince Gustav of Sweden—no less than seven kings and two of them are heirs to empires. In a very short time there will be no royal family in Europe that is not descended from Queen Victoria.—From the Gentlewoman.

A Track Walker's Record of Travel.

Boone Bennett, the veteran Kansas City track walker, has a record of which few men if any can boast. He lives near Dudley, this county, and has been walking track for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company on the Kansas City division for nineteen years.

For sixteen years he made the round trip every night of twenty-one miles of track, and for the last three years he has been going over a round trip of twelve miles. During those nineteen years he has walked over 12,730 miles of track at night, besides the walking he has done in daytime.—From the Mount Vernon Signal.

Minard's Liniment Cures Rheumatism, Etc.

Why Many People Look So Old

To look old before their time seems not uncommon to-day, with many people who should still be in the prime of life. Physicians say nothing in the world is so sure to age a person, to destroy their vitality and happiness as pain. A comparatively young person who suffers with muscular or inflammatory rheumatism looks older than a man twice his age. The farmer, the man who works at hard labor, the mechanic, is subject to the baneful influence of dampness, fog and inclement weather. It's hard for him to escape pain. What he needs at home is a bottle of that trusty liniment, Pain-Expeller, which gives instant ease to every kind of pain. So strong and concentrated is Nerviline that one application is as good as six ordinary rubbings with other liniments. The most wonderful pain-subduing substance in the world are in Nerviline—first, why it penetrates so quickly, why it instantly cures pain that other remedies can't even relieve. You'll be surprised how quickly Sciatica, Lumbago, or Rheumatism are cured by Nerviline—seems almost magical the way it will cure a cold or sore throat. When the chest is sore and it hurts to draw a long breath, one rubbing with Nerviline is sufficient. So highly valued is Nerviline by those who use it, that many families consider it quite as good as a doctor for aches, pains and minor ailments of every kind.

How We Got Our Present Calendar.

The Julian year consisted of 365 1/4 days and exceeded by 11 minutes 13.92 seconds the solar year of 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, 46 seconds. In consequence of this the equinox in the course of a few centuries fell back considerably. In the time of Julius Caesar, it corresponded to March 25, and by the sixteenth century it had retrograded to March 11. It was at this time that a physician of Verona named Ghiniard proposed a plan for amending this calendar. He died before he had opportunity to carry it forward, but his brother presented it to Pope Gregory XIII., who assembled a number of learned men to discuss it. It was passed upon favorably and adopted, and thus was given to the world what has since been known as the Gregorian Calendar. In 1582 Gregory issued a brief, abolishing the Julian Calendar in all Catholic countries, and introducing the reformed one.

The reform of the Gregorian or new on the Julian or old, consisted in dropping ten days after October 4, 1582, so that the 15th was reckoned immediately after the 4th. Every one hundredth year, which by the old style was a leap year, was to be a common year, the fourth century, divisible by four, excepted; that is, 1600 was to remain a leap year, but 1700, 1800, 1900 were not to be reckoned as such, while 2000 is to be so reckoned. In this calendar, the length of the solar year is taken to be 365 days, 5 hours, 49 minutes and 12 seconds, the difference between which and the true length is immaterial.—The Christian Herald.

AT THE CONVENTION.

(Carolyn Wells in Harper's Magazine.)
The Blessed Suffragette leaned over the reading desk at even; The speech she had prepared would take From eight until eleven. She had two white gloves on her hands— And pins in her hat were seven. Her robe, designed by Madame Rose, Hand-wrought flowers did adorn; And a superb black chiffon coat Was very neatly worn. And the chains that hung around her throat Were yellower than corn. "I wish that we could vote, dear one! For we will vote," she said. "Have I not on the finest gown That Madame Rose has made? Are not good clothes a perfect strength And shall I feel afraid?"

She plumed and rustled and then spoke, Less and of speech than will. She shouted gentle arguments. She shouldn't harm a child. And in terms quite acidulous The Antis she reviled. I saw her smile—but soon her smile Was turned to haughty sneers; She thought she saw another gown More beautiful than hers! She raised her lorgnon to her eyes— Then wept. (I heard her tears.)

PROTECTION FROM LIVE WIRES.

In this country a movement has been started with the object of having the electric companies, arrive at some uniform method of marking or indicating high tension electric wires. This agitation was brought about by the number of accidents to firemen and others similarly employed, who accidentally came in contact with these wires while in ignorance of their character, and was prompted solely for the benefit of these persons. In France the same kind of a movement has started, with an entirely different object, in this case for the protection of aeromats who might get in contact with them while in the air. It is proposed to cover these wires and cables with some distinctive insulation by which the bird-men could distinguish and avoid them or else to paint the poles containing such wires in some color which would indicate the presence of the heavily charged wires.

BOTANY BAY.

Sir Joseph Banks was the man who invented the once familiar phrase, "Botany Bay." He was the botanist attached to the expedition of Captain Cook, the "Australian Columbus." Landing at this bay, close to the present city of Sydney, he found such an abundance of strange plants and flowers that he associated the word "botany" with it for all time. For a long time Botany Bay and Australia were synonymous in England. Sydney has spread out to the historic bay, and you can travel by tram car to "Botany." It was Sir Joseph Banks who made the kangaroo and other Australian animals known to science.—From the London Chronicle.

WHY SHE WAS VEXED.

(Buffalo Express.)
"You seem dreadfully vexed."
"Yes, I was in a hurry to go home, but I had heard that Mrs. Newbell was out of town; so I thought I'd have time to hurry around and leave a card, and what did the hateful thing do but open the door herself!"

ITS ELOQUENCE.

Money Talks With a Power That Influences the World.

Besides money's what other tongue but laughter's have men time to listen to? To both of these will they listen, though they understand neither.

Money talks, and life listens as it listens not to the tongues of men or of angels. But when money, the means of life, becomes the end, the end to all intents and purposes it is. Then does the man of means, king of a vast realm, abdicate in favor of the slave, the man of one end, a realm of unideal gold such as no Keats wanders in, no poet sings. None is so poor as he that is possessed of his possessions; none so contemptible as he that abjectly serves his servant. Better go hungry than down on one's knees to such a virago in one's kitchen as money. Money is an old servant of man's, forever forgetting its place, and going unrebuked. Never to have taken orders from it or "back talk" is to be a master indeed.

Nothing is more common than to hear a man boast of his money. Is it his? Rather, he is its. It is a thing of authority. It saith to one man, "Go," and he goes; to another, "Come," and he comes; and to its servant, "Do this," and this he doeth. At its word, man jumps out of his sick bed, jostles his bosom friend, breaks an appointment with love, lets music come and go unheeded, beauty pass unnoted. Least money should talk to him like the jealous mistress, it is, he foregoes the green of the earth, the blue of the sky, flowers and the songs of birds. The voice of his old playmate the river calls to him in vain; the mother tongue of the wind and wave is no longer even a memory; the meaning of pleasure is lost to him. All this for money's sake. Poor brag-hard! His money! It! Man here! Harry Cowell in Smart Set.

TROUBLE WITH THE TOWER.

(Lippincott's Magazine.)
Among the engravings that adorned the walls of a Toledo woman's home was one big one of the leaning tower of Pisa. One morning, shortly after the advent of a new maid, the mistress of the house noticed that the picture of the tower hung crooked. She straightened it and said nothing of the matter to the new servant, who had evidently shifted it while dusting.

The next day the picture was again crooked, the same thing happened the next day, and the next. Finally, one morning, chancing to be in the room where the picture was, the mistress said to the maid, as she dusted: "Mary, you've hung that picture of the tower crooked. Just look at it!" "That's what I say, mum," returned the domestic, "look at it! The only way I can get that blasted tower to hang straight is to hang the picture crooked."

FRANCE'S COMING NAVY.

Paris, March 10.—M. Delescluse, in the chamber of Deputies to-day, said that by the year 1911 France would have in her navy 22 battleships of the Dreadnought class. This number, he continued, would equal that of Germany at the same date. Of cruisers France would have 18 to Germany's 12, although the latter's would be more powerful individually.
