

FOR HOUSEHOLD ACCIDENTS

Zam-Buk is so Very Useful

Read How Beneficial it Proved in this Case.

Mrs. H. Sawyer, of Keene, Ont., writes: "My husband is engaged on a farm, and one day while chopping wood, the toe of the axe broke and fell upon his foot, cutting a nasty gash. The wound was so bad that we first thought we would have to get a doctor, but we finally decided to dress the cut with Zam-Buk.

"Well, the Zam-Buk treatment proved a great success. It not only eased the pain, but it prevented any inflammation; and right from first applying Zam-Buk, the cut began to heal. It is now completely healed, and my husband says he will never be without a box of Zam-Buk in the house, for we are sure it saved us a great deal of expense."

Over and over again Zam-Buk has been proved to be the worker's best remedy. As soon as applied to a cut, a burn, a scald or any skin injury, it relieves the pain and it sets up healing. It also prevents blood-poisoning or inflammation. It is a sure cure, too, for eczema, piles, ulcers, old wounds, bad leg, ringworm, scalp sores, festering, running sores, eruptions, cold sores, chapped hands, etc. Its absolute purity, also makes it the ideal balm for babies. Zam-Buk Soap should be used along with the balm for washing all sore places. This soap will be found excellent for baby's bath, even where the bath is not being used.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c box, and Zam-Buk Soap at 25c tablet, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

SALT SUPERSTITIONS.

Painter of "Mona Lisa" First to Put One on Canvas.

It is a curious fact that from the earliest times, many superstitions have clung about the use of salt. There is much evidence in Holy Writ for ceremonial uses of it. The Mosaic law commands that every oblation of meat offering shall be seasoned with salt, a command that is given, with variations, in various books of the Bible, such as Leviticus ii. 13, and Ezekiel xvi. 4. In the old days salt was put into a child's mouth in baptism and in some countries to this day the custom is followed of ward off the evil spirit.

Homer calls salt divine. The old Teutonic races looked upon salt springs as holy and worshipped them, runs an in Ireland it was for long the custom to place a pewter plate containing salt upon the heart of the corpse and burial. Then with coals and holy water it was thrown into the grave.

Of the very many superstitions touching salt, the most familiar is, of course, that which holds it unlucky to spill it. An origin has been alleged for this in De Vinea's, "Last Supper," wherein, at the side of Judas, is represented an overturned salt vessel. It seems, however, to be a fact that this superstition dates farther back. There is evidence to show that, when the victims for Roman sacrifices were led to death with salt upon their heads, it was regarded as the very worst of omens should they shake it off.

POSITIVE PURITY

It is well known and proved by Government analysis—that the sugar of superior purity is

And at the same time has double the sweetening strength of other sugars.

TO AVOID A COLD.

With the sudden fall of the temperature persons run a great risk of catching cold. There is one simple way of avoiding colds—keep your mouth shut while out of doors. The man or woman who comes out of an overheated room, especially late at night, and breathes through the mouth, will either catch a bad cold or irritate the lungs sufficiently to cause bronchitis and unpleasantness. Colds are often the result of people just after leaving a room full of hot air, and theatre-goers who discuss and laugh over the play on their way home are inviting illness.

REMARKABLE SURGERY.

Surgery has taken another advance step at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, where recently two of three patients suffering from tuberculosis of the knee have been cured. The infected joints were cut away and substituted by the same parts of a body of a patient in normal health who died from an accident a few hours before.

Surgeons not only at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, but at the Rockefeller Institute in New York, as well as in Germany, have found the operation successful since a finger which had been cut off by a machine, or otherwise, and after treatment, the finger grew again normally. Advances in surgery are now trying to find a way to remove from the body lungs affected with tuberculosis, and put them in their place in good lungs taken from the body of a patient who had no other disease or from accident, and after treatment, the finger grew again normally.

A wrong-doer is often a man that has left something undone, not always so that he had done something. A freshman's head may be as hard as any hockey head but if he has a dusky frame he'll make the football team.

"Don't you ever get homesick?" asked the domestic man. "No," replied the traveller. "I'm never home long."

ITALIAN TRIALS.

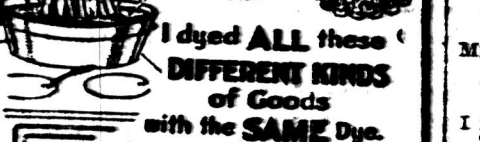

System Differs Radically From That of the States.

The reports in American papers of the trial of the Camerri at Vicenza have made many critics wonder if there is any system at all about criminal justice in Italy, what the system is like. There is, though utterly different from that which obtains in this country. The trial takes place before three judges and a jury to which are added a certain number of extra jurors whose sworn and appointed duty is to take the testimony, and are held ready to take their places in the jury box of any juror who may in the course of the trial be incapacitated from further service. The trial begins. Each of the judges has a copy of these before him. The prosecutor and the counsel for the accused further the trial by the reading of the evidence in most of Continental Europe, a man accused of crime is considered by the law to be the very best witness to his own guilt or innocence. In England and America the accused need not testify unless he choose. In Italy he is the first and most important witness.

When the accused has given his testimony he is confronted personally with his accuser. The accuser is allowed to put questions to him, and the judge who presides over the trial is allowed the widest scope in asking anything he can in the way of justification or palliation; even hearsay evidence is admissible. The judge has absolute discretion as to what testimony may be received and what excluded, and any judge who exercised this discretion unfairly would be an object of execration. Bias on the part of one judge is possible, but there are always two other judges on the bench with him, and these are a perfect check against unfairness. A LOVELY 98 CRY.

"My wife had a three-mite cry the other day that cost her mind the man, and I guess she did. It was her birthday, and she had not seen her mother for two years, and in a generous mood, she had arranged that she and the long-distance telephone. I had made all the plans to her as a complete surprise. I answered it myself. 'Hello, said I. What do you think? Your mother wants to talk to you.' 'She nearly fainted.' 'Oh, mother, she shouted into the receiver, and then began to cry. When the reception of the occasional repetitions of 'Oh, mother,' was all that she did for three minutes. I had it from her afterwards that her mother's vocabulary was equally limited. Personally I considered the interview a failure, but my wife insists that both she and her mother had one of the loveliest experiences of their lives."

THE ARTIST ANSWERED.

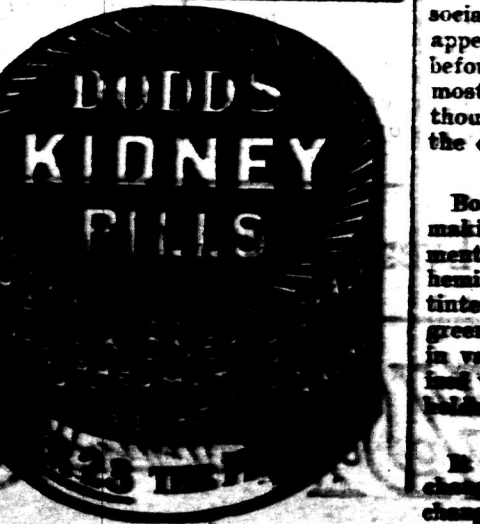

The artist was painting sunset, red with blue streaks and green dots. The old rustic, at a respectful distance, was watching. "Ah," said the artist, looking up suddenly, "perhaps to you, too. Nature has opened her sky pictures page by page. Have you seen the lambent flames of dawn leaping across the livid green of the lake of fire in the west, the ragged clouds at midnight, black as a raven's wing, blotting out the shuddering moon?" "No," replied the rustic, sharply; "not since I gave up drink."

Chronic Throat Trouble

Permanently Cured

Seven Days' Use of Catarrhine

Restores Regular Breathing

Miss Counter's Case Proves the Wonderful Efficacy of Catarrhine in All Throat and Nose Diseases.

Windsor, Oct. 24.—Miss Counter's case will prove of great interest to everyone troubled with sore throat, bronchitis or weak lungs. When asked for a statement, Miss Counter said: "About seven years ago I contracted a heavy cold that settled on my lungs and resisted all treatment. After I had tried several doctors here and specialists in Detroit without benefit, I went to my druggist and asked him for the best remedy he had for cold on the lungs. He recommended Catarrhine, which cured my cold in a week. It brought back my voice, and I have been ever since free from my old trouble. For coughs, colds and lung trouble I am sure that Catarrhine is the best remedy. It goes right to the sore spot, gives quick relief, and makes a lasting cure."

Catarrhine cures because its healing vapor is inhaled to the very places that are sore and inflamed. To permanently cure your winter ill, your coughs, sneezing and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhine. But beware of the substitute and imitator. Look for Catarrhine only. 50c. and $1.00, at all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhine Company, Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

THE SOUL'S FAREWELL TO THE BODY.

Farewell, thou, to the elements return, We sever all conversations from this day.

Back to the mother earth thou goest, thy time Has come, no power can bid thee stay. Thy reign was brief, yet in that space what wonders Thou didst accomplish. Voices will And praise thy memory; what matters it? Their praises now are all in vain.

Thou hearest not their voices, though And weep and pray, they cannot waken thee. The seal of fate is stamped upon thy face. And on thy brow death's victory. 'Twas I who gave thee power to live and learn To feel bright happiness and dark despair. My promptness caused the frigidness of hate The way to do, the will to dare.

I filled thy bosom with the flames of love, The fire of genius took its root in me. I guided thee, controlled thine every move, I breathed the breath of life in thee. And yet we needs must part; a voice on Bids us to journey on, on different ways. Thine to thy last cold resting-place, the grave. I with by God to live and praise.

Farewell, farewell! The parting is the end. Thou owest a debt to Nature, like all men— The body must to earth return—the soul Goes up on high, and thence what? Nellie Spencer Hall.

Minard's Liniment Co., Ltd.

Gentlemen.—In July, 1905, I was thrown from a road machine, injuring my hip and back badly, and was obliged to use a crutch for 14 months. In September, 1906, Mr. Wm. Outridge, of London, advised me to try MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I did, with the most satisfactory results, and to-day I am as well as ever in my life. Yours sincerely, MATTHEW X. BAINES, mark.

THE "LATEST" IN THINGS DELIGHTFUL.

It would be hard to find anything in its line more beautiful than the new embroidered Chinese grass lawn table covers. These are most handsomely embroidered with dragons, flowers, butterflies and beetles—the latter showing a marvelous amount of labor, even the details on the beetles' wings, are not neglected, and they come in such gorgeous colorings that none but the Orientals could conceive them. The Japanese importations show many exquisitely embroidered and drawn-thread-work linen bedspreads and tea cloths. Over one of the latter was thrown a delightful Chinese table centre, the creme de la creme of the collections, gorgeous in its dashing handsome combinations of the real old Nankin blue and golden yellow.

The New Baby-Care.

The importations of this article are small at present, for it is expected that American manufacturers will have a similar carriage out in the spring. The English baby-care permits of the back being lowered and the footrest raised, so as to allow the child to be wheeled in a position facing the nurse. It is finished throughout in black enamel, and the cotter model has rich effects in nickel-plated attachments. When folded it requires very little space, and, therefore, will appeal to the traveler.

Fur Hand-Bags.

Hand-bags of fur recall old times with a vengeance only in so far as mere sound is concerned, for the new bags have very little in common with the old sea-skin affairs, which somehow one usually associates with the shabby and semi-bald appearance which they frequently wore before being discarded. Ermine figures most prominently in the new bags, although they are obtainable in many of the costlier furs.

New Glasses.

Bohemian and cut glass are utilized in making the new eyeglass light, ornamental. One delightful pattern is Bohemian glass showed the central part tinted in a golden that blended into a green, and the three surrounding areas in varying iridescent tints that harmonized with the central tint and glistened.

INDIANS AT CHICAGO.

Native Council at Chicago Studied the Implications.

The present Hindu population of Canada numbers about 4,000, all men, for women are allowed to accompany them to Canada or to follow them after they have arrived and settled.

These are resident entirely in British Columbia and chiefly in the cities of Vancouver and Victoria and on the farms in the neighborhood, where they are industriously employed in the many forms of manual labor, for which they appear to have both special adaptation and desire.

I am indebted to Dr. Sunder Singh, the accredited agent for these people in Canada, for the statement as to how the eyes of the Hindus were first turned toward America and Canada and the first beginnings of modern emigration from India were inspired. He says that the visit of Hindu religious reformers to the great parliament of religions which was held in Chicago in connection with the World's Fair first aroused these people to an appreciation of the advantages of Occidental civilizations and democratic institutions.

The educational work carried on by American missionaries in the high schools of India also prepared the way for a sowing of good seed in a ready soil, the fruitage of which turned the eyes of educated Hindus toward this great world. Economic conditions in India furthered the movement of emigrants to Canada in 1905, when and continuing until 1907 not a few came to this country.—From the Victoria Daily Times.

FORESTRY IN SAXONY.

The aggregate area of the state forest of Saxony is less than 450,000 acres. The yield of the state forests in the year 1904 was 225 million feet board measure. In this total are compressed 95 per cent. of wood and 5 per cent. of technical use, and 17 per cent. of firewood. The age of final maturity, beyond which trees are not allowed to remain in, for spruce, 80 years; for pine, 90 years, for all hardwoods, 120 years. The diameter of the trees, measured at four and a half feet above the ground at these ages depends entirely on the quality of the soil. It varies for spruce between six and ten inches; for pine, between six and ten inches. The entire gross expense for forestry in 1904 was a million and a half dollars; forty per cent. for salaries; forty per cent. for logging and forest experiments, and twenty per cent. for planting and road building. The entire gross revenue from forestry in 1904 was three million, nine hundred thousand dollars. The net revenue was, as a consequence, two million, four hundred thousand dollars, equal to five dollars and thirty-two cents net per acre.

EXERCISE.

Women hate it. That is, they appear to. They like to do it. Walking would do them good. They should walk in the sunshine. Swimming would be splendid for them. Walking and swimming are indeed most mean changes of clothing. In walking the chest must be up and out, chin in, and breathing (through the nostril) deep and regular.

WORLD FROM THE SIDEWALK.

Have you ever stood in the crowded street, In the glare of the flaring lamp, And marked the tread of the million feet, In their quaintly musical tramp? As the surging throng moves to and fro, To mark the figures that come and go, In the ever changing scene.

Where the sinner treads with the publican proud, And Dives walks in his gloomy cowl, With Lazarus, cheek by jowl; And the daughter of toil, with her fresh young heart, As pure as her spotless name, Keeps with the women that make their mart In the haunts of sin and shame.

How gaily steps the country lass, In the midst of the city's ill, As fresh as the daisied grass, She grows in her native hills. And the beggar, too, with his hungry eye, And his sad, wan face and crutch, Gives a blessing the same to the passer-by, Though he gives him nothing or much.

When night has beaten the world's tattoo, And the dusky armor-dight Is treading with echoless footsteps through, How many of these shall be daintily fed, And will sink to slumbers sweet; And never a crumb to eat!

Ah, me! when the hours go joyfully by, How little we stop to heed, Our brothers' and sisters' despairing cry. In their woe and their bitter need; Yet the world as a whole as the angel's shout, This world of ours we'd call, If the brotherly love the Father taught: Were felt, by each for all.

Yet a few short years and this motley throng Will all have passed away; And the rich and the poor, the old and the young, Will be undistinguished clay. And the tears that laugh, and lips that moan In silent sabbath be sealed, And some will be under a stately stone, And some in the Potter's Field.

But the sun will be shining just as bright, And so will the silver moon, And just such a crowd will be here at night, And just such a crowd of women will sin. As ever since Adam's fall, And the same God o'er all. Unidentified.

THE UNIVERSAL FRANCHISE.

A small number of men sympathizers took part in the suffragist parade in New York city, among them several members of the faculty of Teachers' College. One of these professors had the honor of leading the male contingent and of carrying a banner.

"Did you notice," he asked a friend, afterward, "what the inscription was on that banner they gave me to carry?" "No," replied his friend, "you carried it as if you were afraid some one would decipher it."

"It read," chuckled the professor, "The men vote—why not we?"—From Success Magazine.

A GAME OF SKILL.

A somewhat pensive summer girl, at the end of a season that had left her further off than ever from the matrimonial harbor, looked sadly seaward and said: "Well, marriage isn't a lottery." But the fair young widow whose engagement to a millionaire in Chicago had just been announced—this fair young widow with a toss of her head retorted: "Don't you believe it. It is a game of skill."

WHY ONE WIFE.

(Cleveland, Atlas, Syndicate News.) A woman missionary in China was taking tea with a Mandarin's eight wives. The Chinese ladies examined her clothing, her hair, her teeth, and so on, but they especially amazed them. "Why," cried one, "you can walk and run as well as a man!" "Yes, to ride a horse and swim, too!" "Then you must be as strong as a man!" "And you wouldn't let a man beat you even if he was your husband—would you?" "Indeed I wouldn't," the missionary said.

The mandarin's eight wives looked at one another, nodding their heads. Then the old maid softly said: "Now I understand why the foreign devil never has more than one wife. He is afraid."

ECHO OF THE CONFLICT.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.) "I had such a scare to-day, George." "What was it?" "Why, a small, dark man, with black eyes looked through the living room door at a certain sight of me. He said: 'That's the man who started up the war.'"
