

DIZZY SPELLS, BAD HEADACHES

A Sufferer of Twenty Years Comes Forward With a Real Cure.

"I can't remember any time during the past twenty years when my head wasn't aching. If I bent over, dark spots would come before my eyes, and it seemed as if all the blood in my body wanted to rush to the head." Thus opens the letter of Mrs. Enoch S. Spry, of Putnam P. O., and continuing her interesting statement she says: "Work or exertion made my heart beat terrible, and going up stairs caused such shortness of breath that it fairly frightened me. My doctor told me that it was poisons in the blood, and if that was the cause Dr. Hamilton's Pills will have the greatest re-energer on earth. I tell you how I feel today and you can understand what a great cure Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made. I feel strong enough now to work like a man, as for going upstairs on the run it doesn't bother me at all. I eat and sleep as any well person ought, and as for dizziness, which used to frighten me so much, it has entirely disappeared. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a wonderful woman's medicine. They helped me in other ways, too, and I know every woman that uses them will have comfort and good health. THOSE NEW BOOTS.

Try Them on First at Night and Take Short Walks First.

If possible, says a correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, try on your shoes in the evening. The feet are larger and more sensitive at night, because of the exercise they have had during the day. The muscles are also more tender from constant motion and the augmented flow of blood. The weight of the body so seriously affects the circulation of the blood that you are obliged to stand all day suffer much from swollen feet. This, too, often causes varicose veins. When one is in good health the feet return to their normal size, after a rest. This is because they no longer have to sustain the weight of the body.

Never wear new shoes when taking a long walk. Wear them first in the house for several days, then on short walks.

In taking the precautions which I have advised you will insure as much comfort for your feet in a new shoe as in an old one, and your boots, shoes and slippers will last a great deal longer.

POLEMYELITIS.

(Philadelphia Record.)

Infant paralysis is now recognized as an infectious disease which has of late years become generally prevalent. Investigations by health authorities in Pennsylvania lead to the conclusion that the mosquito is a carrier of the disease. The mosquito also stands accused by reputable Michigan physicians of the dissemination of the paralysis microbe. Whether it is the mosquito and whether it is guilty, as indicated, may still be matter of scientific question, it is no longer open to doubt that they are serious enemies of safe and sanitary living deserving the worthy of universal extinction.

Sirs,—I came across a bottle of your MINARD'S LINIMENT in the hands of one of the students at the University of Maryland, and he is being so kind as to let me use it for a very bad sprain, which I obtained in training for foot races, and to say that it helped me would be putting it very mildly, and I therefore ask if you would let me know of one of your agents that is closest to Baltimore so that I may obtain some of it. Thanking you in advance, I remain, Yours truly, W. C. McCUEAN, 14 St. Paul street, Care Oliver Typewriter Co. P. S.—Kindly answer at once.

It's the best I can make a musician of your boy, and he'd succeed better as a window-washer." "I like the candy you bring me, Mr. Squawson, but your company bores me beyond measure." "Maria, there's going to be trouble in your house if you don't get your feet washed before you go to bed." "You know well enough, Uncle Jonathan, that we wouldn't entertain a disagreeable man if you are if you were rich and childless." "Rinko, you and I would get along all right if you'd come into my neighborhood where I never could see you." "Bobby, when you go home will you please tell your mamma that I think she ought to wash your face at least once or twice a week."

THE WILL AND THE WAY.

I was a noble Roman, Rome's imperial day. Who wears a coward's cloak. Before the battle, say: "There's no way to shake it!" "Oh, oh!" exclaimed the hero: "I'll find a way or make it!"

It's fame your aspiration, they path is steep and high. In vain he seeks the temple. Content to gaze and sigh! The shining throne is waiting. But he alone can take it. Who says, with Roman firmness, "I'll find a way or make it!"

Is learning your ambition? There is no royal road. Aye, the path is steep and high. Most climb to her abode. Who feels the thirst for knowledge, I'll help you make it. "I'll find a way or make it!"

Are riches worth the getting? They must be gravenly sought. With wishing and with fretting she says, that can be bought. To all the prize is open, but only those who say: "I'll find a way or make it!" "I'll find a way or make it!"

"TEA" IS NOT A NEW SCIENCE, BUT FACTS ABOUT A FAVORITE BEVERAGE.

Tea belongs to the Ternstroemiaceae family. This makes it a first cousin to the lovely camellia.

Tea was first an ornamental plant. Assam was the place where tea was first brewed.

China did not adopt it as an infusion until A. D. 250. It was introduced in Japan in A. D. 965 by the famous Buddhist, St. Dengyo.

Today it is cultivated over a great part of China, largely in Japan, Tonquin, Cochin-China, Assam and other parts of India and Ceylon.

Japan boasts of some of the most splendid plantations—none testifying to the triumph of cultivation and poetry of the Japanese better than the vast and beautiful one at Uji. The seeds for this were first sown by the Buddhist abbot, Myoe, near the close of the twelfth century.

There are experimental plantations in Brazil, Australia and in our own country in Carolina. The Eastern fields are enveloped in certain religious mysticism, for tea was largely "promoted" by the religious there.

The Buddhist monks believed it was specially sent for use as a draught to keep their priests awake by midnight prayers; and there is an interesting legend concerning Daruma's nap with the origin of tea.

There may be something in the enlivening qualities of tea. Boston had one of the largest tea parties in history, and immediately after it there was something doing.

The tea plant grows from 3 to 18 feet tall, and its leaves are picked off carefully, one by one, four times a year. They are dried and lightly rubbed, the process being repeated until the leaves become curled and crisp.

THE WASP AS A PET.

London Daily Chronicle: The wasp is becoming a nuisance and there are few who would choose a wasp as a companion. But Lord Avery, who was Sir John Lubbock, is among the few. Some years ago he captured a wasp in the Pyrenees and he kept it for months. "I had no difficulty," he writes, "in inducing her to feed on my hand; but at first she was shy and nervous. She kept her sting in constant readiness, and once or twice in the train, when the railway officials came for tickets, and I was compelled to hurry her back into her bottle, she stung me slightly. I think, however, entirely from fright. Gradually she became quite used to me, and when I took her on my hand apparently expected to be fed, she often allowed me to stroke her without any appearance of fear, and for months I never saw her sting." The wasp ultimately succumbed to the rigor of an English February, "and she now occupies a place in the British museum."

1,183 BABIES.

(Buffalo Times.)

Eleven hundred and sixty-three babies have had their lives saved in New York this year by clean milk, efficient nursing and doctoring, and education of parents in how to take care of children.

These are not fanciful figures. They have been obtained by comparing the number of dead babies in the great city this year with the number last year.

There are many thousands more people in New York now than there were a year ago. Estimating deaths in proportion to population, there would be many more deaths than there are.

That there are less is proof overwhelming that something great has been done to protect babies in the great city.

The person to whom this is owing more than anybody else, is Mr. Nathan Minard.

He is the man who taught New York the value of sterilized milk.

It is well worth while to know there are eleven hundred and sixty-three live, crying babies instead of eleven hundred and sixty-three poor little dead babies.

WALL PAPERING.

Going to paper? Well, think first. Papering makes trouble. And it costs something. So one must make haste slowly.

The simpler the paper the better, as a rule.

With many pictures the paper should not be figured.

Some choose big figures and then wonder what is the matter.

The first thing to decide is whether the room is to show off the paper.

If the paper is to be the star feature it cannot be too beautiful and convincing.

For bedrooms the white satin stripe is dainty.

SUFFERERS FROM PILES!

ZAM-BUK HAS CURED THESE!

Friction on the hemorrhoid veins that are swollen, inflamed and gorged with blood, is what causes the terrible pain and stinging and smarting of piles. Zam-Buk is applied at night will be found to give ease before morning. Thousands of persons have proved this. Why not be guided by the experience of others?

Mr. Thomas Pearson, of Prince Albert, Sask., writes: "I must thank you for the benefit I have received from Zam-Buk. Last summer I suffered greatly from piles. I started to use Zam-Buk and found it gave me relief, so I continued it, and after using three or four boxes I am pleased to say it has effected a complete cure."

Mr. G. A. Dufresne, 193-185 St. Joseph street, St. Roch, Quebec, P. Q., writes: "I can highly recommend Zam-Buk to everyone who suffers from piles."

Magistrate Sanford, of Weston, King's Co., N. S., says: "I suffered long from itching piles, but Zam-Buk has now cured me."

Mr. William Kenty, of Upper Nine Mile River, Hants Co., N. S., says: "I suffered terribly from piles, the pain at times being almost unbearable. I tried various ointments, but everything I tried failed to do me the slightest good. When I heard of Zam-Buk, and thought as a last resource I would give this a trial. After a very short time Zam-Buk effected a complete cure."

When Harry Atwood, the aviator, made his sensational flight to New York across country from New London, 135 miles away, he had to come down in Astoria for more gasoline. "I knew I was up against it," said Atwood, according to the Cincinnati Times-Star.

"I came down in the middle of a big field, and I found I had to leave my machine to run four blocks for gasoline. I telephoned for police protection, but it had not arrived. And then a dozen or so youngsters arrived, the first of the curious mob that was running toward me from all parts of the compass."

"What's the matter, mister?" said one kid.

"I told him, 'I have to leave my machine here, while I go for gasoline,'" I said. "And I know that in ponder crowd try to pry loose part of my machine as a souvenir. If I go away and leave it unguarded it will not be in fit shape to use when I come back. If I don't go, I may not be able to get the gasoline I want."

"Leave it to us, mister," said the kid. "We're boy scouts."

"They didn't have any badges or uniforms or anything else. But I knew the kid was telling the truth. When I got back I found that a wild mob of 2,000 people had been held in check by those kids until the police arrived. No one had so much as placed a hand on the tier. I don't know how they managed to do it—but they did."

"Myself," said Mr. Atwood. "I'm strong for the scouts. Kids who can turn a trick like that can get my vote any time."

AN ENGLISH PHASE.

Just How They Are Trying to Reduce Infant Mortality.

Dr. A. R. Harris, the medical officer for Islington, who recently started a campaign against the house-fly, deals exhaustively with the question of infant mortality in the course of his twelfth annual report, just issued.

Great though the improvement in the rate of infant mortality has been during the last ten years, he says it is "still far and away too high, nor will those who take an interest in the protection of infantile health be satisfied until it has been reduced to narrowest limits."

What that limit is it is impossible to gauge accurately, but it must certainly be 30 or 40 per cent. lower than the last return for the country show that the Insurance bill, if it becomes law, will reduce the mortality among infants to a certainty, for nothing has been more fatal to young children than the early resumption of work by mothers who have recently born them.

"But what the Government is thus about to do its part," proceeds Dr. Harris, "it also behooves the local authorities who control the administration of local affairs, and who, therefore, have the management of the health interests of the people, by far the greatest of all interests which they direct, to do their part, and particularly to see that the wives of the laboring classes, who enter upon matrimony in absolute ignorance of all matters appertaining to maternity, shall receive adequate instruction after, as well as prior to, lying-in. Happily most authorities in the country have determined to do their duty, and not a few in the county of London also, but unfortunately we in Islington still remain passive. We are not doing our duty."

THE LATE KING

Memorial in Crathie Church—Unveiling Ceremony.

The King and Queen, accompanied by Princess Mary, Prince Albert and Prince George, and also the members of the Royal Household at Balmoral, attended divine service at Crathie Church on Sunday forenoon, and in the course of the service His Majesty unveiled the communion table recently placed by him in the church in memory of his father, King Edward VII. There was a large and distinguished congregation, the church being filled to overflowing.

At the conclusion of the hymn following the sermon their Majesties were conducted to the chancel, where the Rev. J. Sibbald, chaplain ordinary, to his Majesty in Scotland, handed the cord to the King, who thereupon unveiled the memorial, saying: "I desire to place this memorial in this church to the glory of God and in memory of my dear father, King Edward VII."

In accepting the custody of the memorial on behalf of the Kirk, session of the parish and the congregation, Mr. Sibbald thanked His Majesty for beautifying the church by placing in it so worthy a memorial of one who regularly worshipped there. A prayer of dedication followed. The whole service lasted an hour.

The King and young Princess were attended in Highland costume. The Queen wore a dress of pastel blue faced cloth with light hat, trimmed with roses and wheat ears. Princess Mary wore a pink dress with white hat trimmed with forget-me-nots.

The memorial consists of a communion table and screen placed at the east end of the chancel. The table and pincushion which it rests on are of Iona marble. The design is simple and brings out admirably the varied and harmonious tints of green and black—the leading characteristics of this stone. The table is between six and seven feet in length and three feet high. The oak screen placed behind the table is exquisitely carved and stands eight feet in height. The wood is from a country house in Leicester, and is over 300 years old, giving it the rich, dark color which only age can impart.

The carving is in the late Scottish Gothic style. Here and there Scottish thistles appear. Surrounding the four main posts and figures of angels holding shields. On the surrounding skirting on a level with the table, the following ecclesiastical lettering appears: 1911. In piam memoriam Edwardi VII. Brito. Omnia Regis Fid. Dei Imp. Posuit Filius Georgius R. et L.—Daily Mail.

J. Whitcombe Broucher Tells What He Would Do.

Dr. J. Whitcomb Broucher, pastor of The Temple, Los Angeles, Cal., is preaching special sermons that are attracting much attention, and packing his 5,000-seat auditorium. His sermon on a recent Sunday evening was on "If I were a girl." Some of the things he said were: "I had a young girl ask me to-day, 'Doctor, ought I to wear a harem skirt?' I replied that I was like the bloomer girl who was riding a bicycle along a road in Massachusetts when bloomers first became the fashion, and passing a native along the way, asked: 'Is this the way to Warham?'"

The man replied: "You've got me, Miss. I never saw a woman have 'em on before."

"So I told the girl that I didn't know whether she ought to wear a harem skirt or not."

"But I believe in allowing the women to wear anything at all that allows them the greatest freedom and health. I'd rather have you wear a harem skirt ten times over than some of the things you have been wearing."

"I saw a girl the other day displaying a wonderful millinery creation, and she said that one plume alone cost twenty-five dollars and she was getting only twenty-five dollars a month. She had a forty dollar hat on a forty cent neck."

"If I were a girl, I would try to dress neatly and attractively without regard to any of the whims, so as to be strong and well."

"I suppose some men like the tender, delicate things that faint at sight of a mouse, but I wouldn't want to be that kind of a girl."

"If I were a girl in Los Angeles I would try to make the most out of my life. Our life was made for a certain purpose and we should make the most out of it, body, mind and soul."

"There is no young woman in Los Angeles who can't make out of herself all that she wants to be. There are three things that people are searching for in the world more than anything else, and these are health, wealth and happiness, and the basis of them all is health."

"A girl should learn how to keep house and how to make a bed. I've travelled over this country, and slept in many beds and the number of girls in this land who don't know how to make a bed and tuck the covers in at the bottom so your feet won't get cold, is marvellous."

"If I were a girl I'd learn how to take care of myself without the aid of any man. I'd be like the girl who was going golfing. A man asked her: 'Where are you going, my pretty maid?'"

"'I'm going golfing, sir,' she said."

"'May I go along, my pretty maid?'"

"'I've sticks in plenty, sir,' she said."

"'So be independent; get an education and learn how to take care of yourselves.'"

"In addition to the question of dress, there is the question of exercise, and the question of bathing and eating, all of which tend to make one strong and hence happy."

BOY WAS TOO FRESH.

Miss Louise Gunther, who returned recently from Chicago, where she was appearing in vaudeville, turned a bottle of red ink over while writing at her desk at One Hundred and Twenty-first street and Amsterdam avenue and the first two fingers on her left hand were discolored. Miss Gunther applied soap and water immediately, and although she scrubbed industriously, was unable to remove the ink entirely. She did feel it, though, until the fingers were brown instead of red.

The same afternoon she went to a delicatessen store near her home to get some material for her evening meal. A boy about 16 years old waited on her. When he had wrapped up her bundles he leaned over the counter and assuming a confidential air, said:

"I'll tell you how you can get that off your fingers if you want me to."

"Rub the fingers with gasoline."

"Will that remove it?"

"I took it off my fingers," said the boy. "Try it and I'll bet you nobody won't ever know you ever smoked."

"I ever what?" she almost screamed.

"Why, smoked," said the boy.

Miss Gunther hadn't paid for her purchases. "Here," she said, "you just take these back. I never smoked in my life."—New York Telegraph.

NEW FRENCH UNIFORM.

The traditional and well-known colors of the French uniform are likely to be changed. Dissatisfaction with the existing uniforms has long been evident, and during the next summer and in the manoeuvres four regiments, including the 6th and 7th corps, will wear a new uniform made of reseda green, which is a slightly yellowish green tint. An officer and private of infantry and a horse soldier wearing the new uniform were seen by the army committee of the Senate and the Chamber, and the former were favorably impressed, while the latter were a little less enthusiastic.
