Peter E. Summers relates his experience: "I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay in bed in bed and aches and excruciating pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loss, memory poor, etc. N. M. Kennedy, the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Dr. Kennedy & Kennedy. Like a drowning man I clung to the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor roiling through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so."

If the Fenian raid veterans were treated as are the survivors of the American civil war, they would have liberal pensions, instead of the proposed grant of $100 each. And some of the American veterans were no longer in services than the Canadians who saw fighting in 1866 and 1870. But the Americans are numerous enough to form a pretty strong political organization; the Canadians are comparatively few in relation to the whole population.

The revolt of the bank clerk has spread. In Britain, as well as here, they are making a bold effort to bring a new order of things, which will display more justice than has hitherto prevailed. Time was when the avocation of the bank employe was considered in the "genteel" class, and while it may still remain, the progress of the world has opened up many avenues of employment equally as respectable and much more profitable to the man who applies himself. Therefore the necessity of filling the depleted ranks from the old land where the emoluments, it is presumed, are still less than they are here. A policy that prohibits a clerk from marrying on less than $1200 a year, even when he is unable to gain that figure until he is 30, is all wrong, and should be promptly remedied, even if the salaries of bank presidents and fat dividends of shareholders should suffer in consequence.

Anonymous Letters

Hardly a week passes but what someone wants us to insert some letter in the paper, but they almost invariably put in a proviso, "for goodness sake do not publish my name!" The following letter copied from Printer and Publisher shows pretty well how this practice strikes the average newspaper man:

February 2, 1912

To the Editor:

In your February number I notice an article by Mr. Victor Lauriston drawing attention that the Windsor Record and the London Free Press will henceforth publish letters to the editor only over the signature of the writer. We have followed this rule on the Brockville Times for the past six years and more and would not revert the old custom under any circumstances. We had no trouble whatever in establishing the rule and we have been saved endless trouble and annoyance by adopting it. For instance, "Pro Bono Publico," "Ratepayer," "Old Subscriber," "Constant Reader," or some other of the old familiar family enters the sanctum with a letter criticising someone or something and the conversation runs somewhat in this fashion:—

Pro Bono Publico.—"Good morning; (confidentially) I've a letter here I would like you to publish."

Editor.—"Certainly. Let me have a look at it—Yes that a good letter. It's most gratifying to find that our leading citizens are taking so much interest in public affairs. It's a pity that there are not more public spirited men like yourself. We'll use the letter tomorrow. By the way, you might just sign your name, here at the bottom of the letter."

Pro Bono Publico.—"But look here; you don't want to publish my name, do you?"

Certainly, why not? The letter's all right, isn't it?"

B.B.P. (with some asperity).—"Why of course it is! Do you think I'd write it if it wasn't? But I don't want my name published. You see I'm in business and I don't want to stir up any feeling on this matter because it might hurt my trade."

Ed.—"But my dear sir, we also are in trade and have sensitive business feelings. Why should we shoulder your responsibilities? When we publish editorial articles everyone knows who writes them and who is the responsible author. It is quite enough to bear that burden without carrying yours also. We do not wish to antagonize our business patrons any more than you do. Moreover are you not aware that it is our strict rule to publish letters to the Editor except over the writer's own name? See here is the notice printed daily in the publisher's announcement:—"The Brockville Times will publish letters on public matters only over the name of the author."

Come, now; Let us publish the letter over your name! It carries so much more weight with the public than a mere newspaper editorial!"

B.B.P.—"No, I don't think I will. I can't afford to take any risks. Business is out too fine nowadays. (Coldly) Good morning!"

Ed.—(genially).—"Well, good morning. Sorry you won't let us use that letter, though!"

And exit "P.B.P." impervious to flattery and inclined to be rather hostile and resentful because the Editor wanted to have him sign his name to his own letter! What are newspapers for if not for the purpose of airing the grievances and fighting the battles of other people?

Occasionally, however the jaded Editor is visited by a man who has plenty of red blood and who, when asked to sign his letter for publication stiffens up his spinal column and says, "Sure, I will!" I'm not ashamed of my opinion! Hand it over here!" What the Editor beams upon him as a man and a brother and the Noblest work of God. As Mr. Lauriston says, the publishing of letters boldly over a man's signature is a good English custom and characteristic of the national sturdy independence. It would be a good custom to follow in Canada, and assuredly, as I can testify by six years actual experience, it is a blessing to the newspaper editor.

Yours truly,
A. T. WILGESS,
Times Office, Brockville.

When a farmer opens his first bag of cement

he has taken a long step in the march of Progress, which leads to Prosperity.

After he uses that bag—if only for a hitching-block or a porch step—he has learned some profitable lessons.

He knows that it doesn't take an expert to use concrete successfully.

He knows that he has added a permanent improvement to his property, something that will last as long as the farm itself.

He knows that he has added convenience, and therefore profit, to his home.

He knows that it didn't cost him more, in money or time, than if he had used an inferior material and made a temporary improvement.

He knows that he wants to read the book.

"What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete" to find out how he can apply these lessons to other places on his farm.

This advertisement is to tell him that his copy of this profusely illustrated book is ready to be mailed as soon as he sends in his name and address. It makes no difference whether he has yet used that first bag of cement or not. If he hasn't, the book will tell him how to use it to the best advantage. And in any case it's

ABSOLUTELY FREE

A hundred and sixty pages of plain description, telling how other farmers have used concrete, with photographs to illustrate every paragraph in the text.

Just send your name and address on a postal, in a letter, or use the coupon, and the book will be sent by return mail.
