Philip, Trachonitis, and Herod Antipas, Gaillee and Perca. It was the ambition of Antipas to be called king, and this title was sometimes applied to him through courtesy. His name was spread abroad Josus had been engaged in his public ministry for more than two years and his teachings and miracles had been widely reported, and the news had reached to the palace of Herod Antipas. This ruler had deserted his first wife, the daughter of Aretas, the king of Arabis, and aretas made war upon Herod to avenge the wrong done his daughter; thus Herod was kept busy with his enemy on the southeastern border of his dominion. It has therefore been suggested that Antipas had but recently heard of the great works that were being wrought by our Lord.

> PRACTICAL SURVEY. Topic. The Voice of Conscience.

I. Quickened a guilty memory. II. Pointed out specific crimes. I. Quickened a guilty memory. The conscience of Herod destroyed his eveed. Under an accusing conscience his theological view of life and deetiny could not hold. Conscience faithfully portraved evils committed, faithfully condemned his wrongs and chastened his pride rigorously, but it would not undo his past or make his present peaceful or his future hopeful. He could remember details in such a way as to see every evil resting upon himself, not finding relief in bringing others in as the cause of his crime. In him we have the illustration of the power of an aroused con-science as God's avenger of sin. The report of Christ's marvellous works awoke the solemnities of even Herod's debased nature, and made him a witness unto himself that the world is under the rule of a supreme moral governor. The self-willed and voluptions king was forced to acknowledge the same spiritual realties that John had stendfaetly held. Yet trying to escape from himself he could not tell what to do with the present situation in the light of his past conduct. There was a mixture of a guilty conscience, superstition, policy, cunning, and ignorance. The Baptist's voice seemed always to sound in his guilty soul. Conscience and memory asserted their power, so that Herod and his ngly crimes were left alone together. Though Herod did not originate the plan to murder John, he executed it, and his conscience forced him to say, "Whom I beheaded." Cowardice, superstition and cruelty go together. Herod's history is a solemn warning upon the nature of was the carrying out of that promise made over the wine-cup which made more sacred than the law of God. His out repentance caused Herod to cling to his darling sin. When John rebuked him for that sin and said. "It is not lawful." Herod's friendship changed to said the balance soid on the street at the gled. He feared him, he admired him, to his darling sin. When John rebuked H. A rash promise (vs. 21-23).) 21. A convenient day was come. A day suitshie to the cherished and wicked purtruth. He could not hinder John's work. It was finished, and could not be undone. He had done the faithful ias and Salome in a few verses of this lesson. There is no better mirror to Every acre that does not produce a erop is a burden to its owner. If he is out of debt and can afford to carry an outside investment, well and good; but if he is in debt and needs the money invested in idle land for the proper handling and equipment of the used land, then he is not only unbusinesslike, but he is foolish to hang on to land that can but keep him poor as long as he holds it.

When milk is skimmed the fat is taken out, and an unbalanced ration is the result, one that is richer in protein than it ought to be for the young calf. There is nothing better to replace this fat than flaxseed meal. Get the raw flaxseed ground. It contains 30 per cent. of fat. Cook this into a jelly, and feed a calf a small amount of this at first with the skim milk, after which the quantity may be gradually increased. There is nothing else equal to flaxseed meal to take the place of the butter fat removed from milk for young ealves.

Alderman Finds Girl After Four Days.

Montreal, Aug. 26.-After a search lasting four days for a sixteen year old gir! through Montreal's "East side," Ald. Elumenthal has been successful, and today took the girl home to her parents. As a result of his investigation he expressed himself absolutely convinced that segregation of disorderly houses in Montreal into a compact, guarded district would be "a thousand times preferable" to the present condition of things under which the evil exists in every district of the city.

"Say what you will," he declared, "et the moralists object-as they have a right to do against what may seem to be an approval of vice. I am forced to the conclusion that segregation would save thousands. "In theory, of course, the proper course would be to wipe the evil out absolutely. But that is an impossibility. Then why for the cake of an impossible theory leave conditions in their present shape? If these places were segregated properly and guarded by the police ves would not be flaunted in the eyes of our young people in every part of the city as it is now.

"But at present in Montreal what do we find? These people are sifting erea into our best districts, and the police raids only serve to spread the eval farther throughout the city."
