THERE'S no mistaking the expression of a man whose farm is well "improved." He looks as prosperous as he feels.

It isn't the size of a place that counts most, nor its actual dollars-and-cents value. It's rather that "well-kept," thrifty appearance; the appearance that makes you think of fat stock, and well-filled barns, and comfortable, contented living.

Neat, permanent improvements go further in giving a farm this appearance than any other feature.

Concrete Is The Ideal Material

For such improvements. It is best harmonizing with its surroundings in the country. Everlasting. It cannot be injured by fire, frost, wind or lightning. Age—instead of causing it to decay—actually makes it stronger.

Concrete never needs repair—first cost is but cost. New improvements can be added year after year with less expense than would be required to keep wooden structures in repair.

Concrete walks, feeding floors, dairy-barns, ice-houses, root-cellar, well-curbings, fence posts, silos—what of these has your farm need most? Whatever you want to build, it's best to build it of concrete.

Do you want to know more about this subject of permanent farm improvements? Then write for your copy of

"What The Farmer Can Do With Concrete."

It's a book of 22 pages, getting into other farmers have used the "best material" to great advantage. Published in all at the cost. It is now being offered free to all farmers who write for it. Address

Canada Cement Co., Ltd., National Bank Building, Montreal.

Placing the plumage of birds on French women's shoes may be classed as a novel appeal to their understanding.

Lake Superior may be frozen over or not, but there are very few ambitions enough to test the fact by actual observation.

Why not each householder start a hen coop of his own, as an aid in the strenuous struggle with the high cost of living.

If meat goes soaring, as predicted, it will cause the masses to treat with indifference recent measures enacted for its stricter inspection.

That was a very pretty valentine Sir James Whitney handed Miss Ontario Wednesday in the shape of a million dollars for better highways.

It must be a sore trial to a really good man, when he accepts any kind of public office, to find out that he must learn to play tag with the truth at times.

Inaugurate that age-limit for teachers and it may result in the knowledge that there have been more leap-years in their lives than the calendar allowed for.

A German doctor claims the discovery of a composition that makes a body transparent after death. But lots of folks claim to be able to see through others while they are yet alive.

In the loss by fire of a Methodist church in Iroquois, the dispatch states that a number of relics were destroyed. Possibly allusion is made to past buttons, tobacco tags and such flotsam found in the collection plate.

The demand for immediate railway expansion in the west, as a remedy for the continuous attack of wheat indigestion, when such a thing is humanly impossible, is as reasonable as trying to graft a banana on a hickory tree.

Although the English are as fond of dogs as we are, and have as many, hydrophobia, which is common here, is there all for twenty years. No case has appeared since a strict and well-enforced muzzle law, and by quarantining for three months every dog brought into the country. Now, however, a case has appeared that has attracted much attention. A master of hounds was bitten in the hand by a fox, and some time afterwards died of hydrophobia. It was at first maintained by some of the physicians that the fox, if suffering from rabies, could have got the disease only by having been bitten by a rabid dog; but too many cases of hydrophobia in foxes, wolves and jackals are known to permit so narrow a view to prevail. The incident seems to have created much uneasiness in England.

There is one thing incident to pipe smoking that the average smoker seems never to think of—the number of times a new pipe is "tested" before it is bought. The universal practice of all smokers is to try a pipe to see if it "draws," before they try to put it into his mouth. If the first pipe proves unsatisfactory, he tries another and another and another till he finds one that suits him. The fact would be revolting even if every smoker were clean and healthy; but this is a democratic country, in which all men's rights are equal before the bargain center. The untidy immigrant tests his pipe as conscientiously as the bank clerk. The dealer cannot interfere. Consequently, every pipe is tried many times and by many different men before it is finally chosen. The subject is not an agreeable one to discuss, but it is a matter for pipe-smokers to consider, and for boys who have not yet acquired the habit to keep especially in mind.

Fruit growers around St. Thomas say frost has practically ruined the fruit crop in that district. Many apple trees are badly split by frost and girdled by mice. Thursday morning the home of Mrs. M. Smith, Dunnville was wrecked by an explosion of gas, which blew out the west side of the house, wrenched off the front door, did other damage to the building and played havoc with the furniture. Mrs. Smith was blown across the room and her face badly cut, besides being otherwise bruised and left in a dazed condition from the shock.

An amusing incident is reported from Raleigh township. A well known farmer lady had a flock of about two hundred chickens that she was preparing for market. She went to the barn on a recent morning to attend to them and discovered, to her surprise, that during the night, thieves had visited the place and cleaned out the entire pen. She began a search at once for tracks, and picked up a roll of bills in a rubber band amounting to $210. Later in the morning a well known man visited the place and went straight out to the hen house. He returned to the house in a few minutes however, and asked the lady if she had any chickens for sale. "No sir," she replied. "I sold them all last night." The incident closed with that and the man drove away.

You are probably aware that pneumonia always results from a cold resulting in pneumonia when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was used. Why take the risk when this remedy may be had for a trifle? For sale by all dealers.

Boiling Water For Frost Bites

Frost bites, frozen ears, noses and fingers may be cured without any ill effects by boiling water according to a Toronto physician. That in spite of the popular fallacy to the contrary boiling water was the best remedy which could be used said the doctor. He had, he said, used it himself and on his patients, and it always gave perfect results. The doctor told of experiments on rabbits, which were carried on in Germany. Two ears of a rabbit were frozen, one of which was treated with boiling water; and the other with various other cures. The result, he said, was always the same. The boiling water cure worked, while the others were quite inadequate, and often brought on serious complications.

A fitting retribution for the combiners responsible for the high price of eggs would be to make them targets for all bad ones.
