Sybil's Doom

"She will murder me!" he cried. "I dreamed the knife was at my throat. Take her away, Sybil—take her away!"

CHAPTER X. Seven miles away, where the waves of the sea were washing the shingle shore, under the brooding sea-eagles...

"Where is my uncle? Where is Gen. Trevelyan?" Sybil cried. "Wake up, Mrs. Ingram, and tell me where he is!"

dearest laugh of any young lady in the three kingdoms. She had a tendency toward the east; she could gallop at the heels of the hounds in her scarlet riding-habit...

"Papa," she breathlessly cried, "they've had news at Monkwood; they've had another letter from Cyril!"

"Gwendoline," how often must I request you not to bounce in upon me in this abrupt manner, or call out in that shrill falsetto...

"Very well, papa," responded Gwendoline, with a shower of nods; "think so, Mrs. Ingram, and yes, no more do I. I hate every time I tell them it's a fine day."

With which Miss Chudleigh bounced indignantly out of the room, and lunged headlong into the arms of a tall footman in the act of ushering a lady into the drawing-room.

Couldn't Get Strong

Seemed to Have Lost All Ambition, Was Pale and Anemic, Made Wonderful Recovery When Dr. Hamilton's Pills Were Used.

"I was never actually sick," writes Mrs. La Pierre, wife of a well-known resident of Labentine, 'yet I never could get strong like other women. I felt as if I could never make. When I married I took a great pride in my housekeeping...

of high art, and did not wash off. She sat, beauty drowned in tears—her voice faltering, her great eyes gazing pitifully up at the baronet. Sir Rupert sat opposite, gravely playing with a paper knife and listening to the widow's tale of woe.

CHANGES IN FLOWERS

Many of Our Most Beautiful Ones Are Modern Productions.

It is a truly astonishing thing to reflect that Shakespeare, for all his love of flowers, would have been able to name scarcely a single bloom in a twentieth century garden, says the Strand.

As for the begonias, the chrysantheums, the dahlias, the geraniums, the fuchsias and carnations, there were unknown even to our great-grandfathers. Many of our most beautiful flowers are purely modern productions.

From South America came many years ago, the recently fashionable fuchsias; but have been brought many useful varieties from China we have had among have yielded wonderful prizes; Africa many varied plants, usually of most brilliant and gorgeous coloring; while numerous charming members of the narcissus family have been discovered in the Pyrenees.

Itching and Burning on Face and Throat

Sores Disfigured So He Died in a Day. Cautious Ointment Cured.

"Six months ago my face and throat all broke out and turned into a raging sore. I did not bother about it at first, but one week's time the disease had spread so rapidly over my face and throat and the burning itching sores became so painful that I began to seek relief in different directions...

OLD WILLS

The Most Ancient Known Written 4,500 Years Ago.

Some of the most ancient wills in the world are described by Virgil M. Hays in a book recently published by Little, Brown & Co. According to Mr. Hays, the Mesopotamian wills that have been discovered are of a character that is entirely new to the world.
