The incentive to thrift that a savings account gives you is even more valuable than the actual interest that accumulates upon the deposit. The habit of saving—insuring comfort in old age—is as easily acquired as the habit of spending.

Banking service in the Savings Department of the Bank of Hamilton is as sincerely offered to the man who deposits a few dollars a month as to those who deposit thousands.

Some Don't's

Don't gather the large stones off the streets as they are very ornamental and it makes the autos wear out quicker! Don't have the weeds cut until they go to seed so you will be sure of a larger crop next year! Don't stop the boys from riding on the sidewalk because if they kill some one it will cause a little excitement! Don't let the business men work together it might help to make the town grow!

The Entrance Exams

The Department of Education has announced that the junior high school entrance examinations for 1912 will begin on Wednesday, June 19th, and continue until Friday, June 21st. The department has issued a circular of instructions in which it is stated that the intention of the department of education, by maintaining a proper standard at high school entrance examinations to improve the character of the work done in the public schools to prevent congestion of the high schools with inadequately prepared pupils.

A Dull Town.

People grumble and say the town is dead and dull and at the same time send in their orders to the large cities for supplies of all kinds. Every few days a large package of merchandise arrives at the station and we presume that a number of people clubbed together to make the order as it is often too large for one family. As long as this sort of thing continues the town will remain dead and dull. If it keeps up very long we may as well call in the undertaker. As long as people are too small to give the home merchant every opportunity to supply their wants, so long will things remain in their present condition.

Very True

The Tweed News says—Our staid old business men and much moneyed citizens go about their duties here in a very methodic way, and they are almost as quiet as the proverbial clam, but let one of them land himself out in Saskatchewan or Alberta or British Columbia and he begins to jump in the air and holler loud enough to be heard all over America, and they shell out their money in any game that comes along. Ontario men make great boosters when they become Westerners. The mystery is why they can't do as much in Ontario. If we all began to boost Ontario as much as we are boosting outside places, Ontario would be the greatest spot on the upper side of the earth. And this old province is worth boosting.

A Warning

The papers of Toronto and Hamilton are daily commenting on the practise of young people who parade the streets at night too often and too late for their own good. The following from The Toronto News might serve as a warning to a number of girls and boys in Jarvis: There is, however, another factor to be considered and one that is fraught with serious menace to the community. There are too many young girls parading the streets at night. The casual visitor to the city is invariably struck with the number of immature girls who may be seen every evening, particularly on Young and Queen streets, and who invite at least passing remarks from men. In many cases the girls are old enough to know better. Their conduct is not calculated to foster the spirit of respect which every gentleman naturally feels towards every woman. Parents should not wait until the police think it is time to shoo them off the streets at night. There is moderation in everything and mothers and fathers, too, should see that in the case of their children they do not go beyond that.

Warm Spot

A country doctor, returning from a visit in the small hours of the morning, in the time of the body snatchers, had to pass a secluded burial ground in which a deceased patient had been interred the day before. When he reached the wall he saw a standing unattended in the road outside. Looking cautiously over the wall he saw that two men had interred the corpse. Standing in the shadow of the wall he saw them bring the body and place it in a sitting position on the seat of the trap, so that, when they drove away, the body, which they had wrapped in a dark cloth, would in the dim light look like a third man, sitting between the other two. They got over the wall again to fill in the grave. The doctor lifted the body down from the trap, laid it under the wall and seated himself in its place. After a short time the two men got over the wall again, threw their spades into the back of the trap, seated themselves one on each side of him, and drove off. Presently one of the men said to the other: "The body seems to be warm still." The other replied, "So it is." Then the corpse said, "Warm! And if you had been where I have been for the past twenty-four hours you would be warm too!" The two men leaped with a yell out of the trap at opposite sides and ran for their lives.

Importing Apples

It may seem strange to import apples from Tasmania into Canada, when in that article Canada is supposed to be an importing country, and bound to become more so as orchards multiply and scientific culture extends. But in the spring and early summer good Canadian apples are scarce even in Canada, and fruit not many weeks old from Tasmania will be cordially welcomed by our growers and housekeepers. The seasons in the southern hemisphere being the reverse of ours, and steamship communication being attended with unprecedented advantages in respect to speed and storage facilities, there is no reason why fruit of Canada and Australia should not be systematically exchanged.

The Letter With The Sting

A letter that leaves a sting should never be written. There is a great temptation to say smart things in a letter. They sound so nice to you, when your typist leaves the completed letter on your desk. But how do they sound to the other fellow? All the smartness has oozed out before the missive has reached him. Only the ugly brutality remains. Read the letter over, admire it and yourself; read it to your clerk, to the office boy, to the ext., if you must show it to some one. Then tear it up and write another. State your case as fully as you wish, and as strongly as it will stand. You can do all that and still be polite and friendly. Make no threats. Use no taunts. Keep your bravado and bluster. Don't be a fool.

Cause For Gratitude

The Montreal Witness, referring to the accommodation afforded by the Royal Victoria Hospital of that city, where Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught was brought for treatment mentions it as a wonderful phase of the situation that the poorest homeless girl taken ill on the streets of Montreal would have been in a moment picked up by the same automobile ambulance that removed the Duchess from her special train, would have taken to the same splendid hospital, would have had perhaps more, because less embarrassing sympathy with the nurses, and above all would have been operated on with the same care by the same great surgeon, and never a cent to pay. When one looks such a fact squarely in the face it is a real cause for both wonder and gratitude.

The little mean tricks cause more trouble in the world than the big ones, there are so many more of them.

What are the People Doing

Teachers, it is said, will be scarcer this year in Ontario than ever before. A speaker at the Montreal Conference of the Methodist Church at Kingston deplored the lack of young men offering for the ministry. A year ago not a single candidate had come up. The Hon. Mr. Foster says that the pressure on Ministers of the Crown for office and jobs is damnable. At the same time, there is a famine in office desks. What are the people doing? They are not going on the land or even staying on it. Careful calculation seems to show that while the whole population increased seven hundred thousand in the past ten years, the rural population of the Dominion has not increased by much more than three thousand.

Honest now, what does a man make out of dishonesty? As a rule the crook has a hard time of it.
