Tribulations of an Editor.

The trials and tribulations of a country editor are manifold, but are borne with fortitude because the country editor has a sense of humor! The recompenses of his life are many, however, and one of these came to us the other day in the shape of the following letter from an old subscriber:
"I've stopped my paper, yes I have, I don't like to do it, but the editor, he's got too smart. And I allow he'll me it. I am a man as pays his debts. And will not be insulted. So when the editor gets smart, I want to be consulted. I took the paper eleven years. And helped him all I could, sir. But when it came to dunnin' me, I didn't think he would, sir. But that he did and you can bet I made me hot as thunder. Says I, 'I'll stop that sheet, I will. If the doggone thing goes under, I hunted up the editor. And, fer his cunning' caper, I paid him 'leven years and quit. Yes, Sir! I've stopped the paper.'"

Nathan Miller while driving on Friday escaped serious injury, his horse becoming frightened at an auto in charge of Dr. Playfair of Hagersville. The horse became unmanageable, bolted and threw Mr. Miller from the rig with such force that he was rendered unconscious. Dr. Playfair, however, proved the good Samaritan and at once went to Mr. Miller's aid, bringing him around in a few minutes. He then turned his attention to the horse which was captured, a short distance from town, but the rig was a total wreck. The Dr., like the Samaritan of old, said "whatever the expenses are I will pay when I come again." Mr. Miller is loud in his praise at the immediate attention rendered him by the Dr. as in many instances autoists take such little notice of runaways of which they are the cause.

She was also a valued member of Knox church choir, where she will be much missed as well as by her host of friends. The best wish follows her in whatever occupation she may follow. Miss Geisner left for her home in Ridgetown Thursday.

Having is very general in the surrounding country just now. The crop is a good one, but not so large as it would be if cutting operations were delayed for a couple of weeks, but the quality of the later cut hay is not quite so good. However the chief reason for early harvesting is to give the clover seed which comes in the second growth a longer time to mature.

Friday was the longest day in the year. There are fifteen hours and thirty-five minutes between sunrise and sunset, and only eight hours and twenty-five minutes at night. The daylight will diminish slightly at first, and then gradually until Sept. 21st, when there is exactly twelve hours between sunrise and sunset, and on Dec. 21 the length of night and day of to-day will be reversed.

The W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Robinson on Wednesday of last week. The attendance was very encouraging and the gathering proved both enjoyable and helpful. Mrs. Geo. Irwin, the President, presided. An interesting report of the Hamilton W.M.S. Convention was given by Mrs. R. Pond. Mrs. Laur also gave a paper on "Western Women in Eastern Lands." Master Harry Balbeck contributed a solo. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, August 6th, at the home of Mrs. Wm. Glanfield, the program committee being Mrs. Chas. Walter and Mrs. Glanfield.

Sad Accident

A very sad and distressing accident happened to Mr. Juggins, (who recently purchased the farm of Charles Marr), on Monday. He had gone to the barn to shoot rats; one had disappeared under the straw and in an endeavor to get at it pushed the gun, butt foremost, into the stack, when the gun was accidentally discharged, Mr. Juggins receiving the full charge in his left side, just above the heart, blowing nearly his whole side off, but barely escaping his heart. Dr. Playfair and Newell were immediately sent for and the injuries were soon attended to. We are pleased to report that Mr. Juggins is getting along nicely.

Mr. Campbell Leaving

Our citizens generally and the customers of the Bank of Hamilton in particular, will deeply regret to learn that J. A. Campbell has been transferred from the management here to the same position at Hagersville of the same bank. He came here some three years ago and by his general manner, close attention to business and the general confidence he inspired in the public mind, succeeded in building up a very large and continually growing business. He was popular with the customers of the bank, was liked as an individual and was a most valued citizen, as he actively participated in every movement calculated to advance the interests of the town. His removal will be deeply regretted by our citizens and his place will not easily be filled. We do not know who Mr. Campbell's successor will be, as the announcement has not yet been made. Mr. Campbell left this morning but Mrs. Campbell will remain until she can secure suitable quarters.

Strawberry Festival

Another great success has characterized the annual Strawberry Festival held under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church for the Festival held on Tuesday of this week was certainly a success from many points of view. The weather was ideal the church lawn in fine condition, the strawberries and other delicacies all that could be desired and the program varied and of an high order from first-class talent. Recitations were given by Misses Marion Davidson and Margaret Allen, Mrs. Chas. Walter and Rev. Eddy. Mrs. H. Ross, rector of St. Paul's church, won the good-will of the audience by his appropriate address and kindly manner. This augurs well for the continuance of cordial relationships between the churches of the community. The musical part of the program was also well sustained, Mrs. A. J. Gilmore of St. Catharines contributed a number of solos. She is possessed of a sweet yet powerful soprano voice, showing artistic cultivation and care in her phrasing and distinct enunciation. Misses Lillian Allen, Ethel Snyder, Verna Walter and Shirley Rodgers also sang in a most creditable manner. Solo piano duet by Jack Brown and Miss Meta McMurey and a violin duet by H. and Miss Hattie Miell of Garnet well deserving the hearty applause they received. J. J. Parsons, Reeve of Walpole, gave splendid satisfaction as chairman. The financial proceeds exceeded $130.

In Memoriam

One by one beyond recall, another life goes out, a last vital spark expires, and death claims its own. In the midst of hurrying life we are checked, and from its throng of busy cares, its whirl of emotions, its brightening joys along our pathway, we are called to a scene of sorrow, to mingle with tears instead of smiles, to gaze with bowed head upon that quiet mystery, Death. It consigns another mortal body to the grave, there silent, cold and still, to await the coming of Robert Marr, was a native of Haldimand county. She lived there until she was 18 years of age, when she married and removed to Norfolk county, township of Woodhouse, where she resided until her death, which occurred suddenly on June 19, 1912, in the 70th year of her age. Previous to the day of her death she had been complaining, arising on this date to commence her household duties as usual, when she was suddenly seized with a fainting spell. Medical aid was quickly summoned but proved to no avail, she passing away the same evening. She was esteemed and beloved by all that knew here and will long be remembered for her many virtues, kind friendship, useful and exemplary influences to all around here. She was warm-hearted, charitable, faithful and sympathetic; lively, genial and good natured which rendered her always welcome as a friend. Endeared as she was to numerous friends, how much more to husband and children, they to whose heart she lived so near. She leaves to mourn her loss a sad husband, one daughter and four sons, three residing in the Canadian West, only one being able to attend the funeral, which was held from her late residence, on 22nd inst., to Port Dover cemetery, a large number of friends and relatives attending.

Thou hast left us darling mother
And hast passed from earth away,
Thou hast gone to realms of beauty
Where 'tis one bright, endless day.
Ah! thy love hands are folded
On thy cold and pulseless breast,
And our dear and darling mother
Now forever is at rest.

The Prince of Wales

The Prince of Wales attained his majority, the age of 18, Sunday June 23, and will henceforth take a larger part in the affairs of the greatest empire that has ever had a place in the world. He is a manly, lovable youth, and has in him the qualities of head and heart which go to endear him to the nation. The King endeared himself to his people by unconventional and democratic service in the navy. His son has taken the most direct way to the principle of British monarchical government, which is that the sovereign rules only through the Ministers responsible to the people. When the Prince of Wales attains the throne of his father, the British monarchy will have lost nothing of its pristine glory, but will be more firmly established on its democratic foundations. God bless the Prince of Wales.

C.O.F. Sermon

The members of the local C.O.F. lodge met in their lodge room Sunday afternoon and marched to the English church to hear Rev. J. H. Ross deliver the annual sermon in honor of the C.O.F. A very small number, about twenty two, were present, out of a membership of nearly ninety. Rev. Ross chose for his text Luke 10-30, and his messages were very thoughtful and inspiring, as well as interesting and instructive. He spoke of the high ideals of the C.O.F. Order, and of its magnitude, and said that two of the highest ideals in that order are fellowship one with the other and character building. He also referred to the parable of the Good Samaritan as touching the ideals of the C.O.F. and said that men who had so much to do with the uplifting of human souls could not prosper long without it and he asked that they fulfil the highest ideals of their order by attending divine service as often as possible and hold out a helping hand to the fallen. In conclusion he commended the Order to the All-Wise One, beseeching them to accept Him as their highest ideal and as their Guide and Protector.

Holidays Too Close.

The folly of multiplying legal holidays must have been clear to anyone who tried to do business on Monday, June 3rd. It was the King's birthday and by usage, if not by compulsion, every bank was compelled to close its doors. It was not a real holiday anyone would have called it a real holiday. Everyone in the ordinary pursuits of life was at his task, to the person who wanted to cash a check, the business man with his ordinary transactions to implement, found himself balked. That King George desires such a tribute in his honor—that it makes for the loyalty of the community, it would be foolish to assert. The fixing of June 3rd as a legal holiday by Parliament on the accession of King George was merely a ploy, designed by those who framed the proposal to demonstrate their excessive loyalty. In Canadian cities four summer holidays are already established, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Civic Holiday and Labor Day. These are well distributed through the only months of real summer that we get in Canada. They are assuredly sufficient without embarrassing the community by the empty and meaningless institutions and public offices.

Death of John Heartwell

To some death comes by slowly lingering disease and for months, yes, even for years the earthly tabernacle crumbles in ruin. It was thus with the late John Heartwell, who was afflicted with his bed for the past eighteen years. He has been a great sufferer from kidney trouble and about two years ago received a stroke which rendered him completely helpless, but during his long and tedious illness he was ever patient and uncomplaining. His death on Thursday certainly came as a happy release from his sufferings. Mr. Heartwell was born in Glanford in the year 1838, thus he had attained the age of 78 years, 8 months and 28 days. In the year 1863 he married Mrs. A. Young of Windham. He was a former resident of Acron, Mich., coming to Nanticoke some eleven years ago, residing there about three years, when he moved to Jarvis, thus being a resident of town for about eight years. Four children were born to him, three of whom are living, viz: Mrs. M. Priest of Jarvis, Abraham and John of Acron, Mich. Mrs. Heartwell survives her partner in life and to her, also the family we extend our sympathy in this their hour of sorrow and bereavement. The funeral took place Sunday at 10.30 a.m. to the Methodist church for service and interment, Rev. A. C. Eddy, officiating.

Amenities

How delightful life would be if we all had the commonsense and generosity shown in that story of the mass which was celebrated in an Orange lodge because the Catholic church had been burned down. It is incidents of that kind which build up a great people. They make friends, they substitute understanding for misunderstanding, comradeship for conflict. They do not call for or eventuate in any loss of real principle on either side. They cause those things to disappear which should disappear and those to grow which should grow. The quarrels of other generations too often continue to be on, accentuated beyond their original significance by traditions of bitter speech. It is these accretions on the original sore which cause most of the irritation of the body politic to-day. They cannot be removed by any surgical operation, they can only be cured by a process of internal reintegration. In that process chivalry and the good word are the chief agents. An Orangemen has shown the way here. He will be glad to hear the story of a Catholic priest who played a similar part. It is told in Sir Horace Plunkett's book on Ireland. The Orange Society in a remote district smashed its drum on the evening of the twelfth. The damage was irreparable; the disappointment was intense. Then the local parish priest heard of the predicament and acted at once! He lent the Orange Society a drum belonging to the local Catholic Society and the music of the "Boone Water" was none the less sweet the next day.
