Work for the Editor

"Most any one can be an editor. All an editor has to do is sit at his desk six days in the week, four weeks of the month, and twelve months in the year, and 'edit' such stuff as this:

"Mrs. Jones, of Lost Creek, let a can opener slip last week and cut herself in the pantry."
"Amischievous lad of Matheron threw a stone and struck a companion in the alley last Tuesday."

"John Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week looking for a leak and fell striking himself on the back porch."
"While Harold Green was exhorting Miss Violet Wise home from a church social last Saturday night a savage dog attacked them and bit Mr. Green on the public square."

"Isiah Turner, of Lebanon, was playing with a cat Friday, when it scratched him on the veranda."
"Mr. White, while harnessing a bronco last Saturday, was kicked just south of the corn crib."

It's a human failing, but don't put yourself on the back just because you happen to do your duty.

Song of High Prices

"Going up?" the Butter asked, Of the Storage Egg; "If your car is not o'er-tasked—" "Nay, get on, I beg. Ah, here's Pork Chop close beside, With the Beefsteak lord, Ham, too, cannot be denied; Now we're all aboard."

CHORUS
Going up, going up! My but ain't we high? Going up, going up! Soon we'll reach the sky "Once of common folks the stay Now we're 'upper crust.' More exclusive day by day, Thanks unto the trust. Such advancement must atone For our haughty airs; It's so different when one's known But to millionaires."

CHORUS
Going up, going up! Trusts will hold us tight Going up, going up! Till we're out of sight

A cut finger is not benefited by pulling off the plaster and exposing it to somebody's eye. Charity coverth a multitude of sins. Things thus covered are cured without a scar; but once published and carried to meddling friends there is no end to the trouble that they may cause. Keep it to yourself. Troubles are transient; and, when a sorrow is healed and passed, what a comfort it is to say, "No one ever knew it was over."

A Kansas editor mentioned that he sometimes received a letter "with a 'V' in it," after the paper has contained a painstaking wedding notice or obituary. "We sometimes receive envelopes on such occasions ourselves," says the Herrington Sun. "They usually contain a note saying: 'Enclosed find two 2 cents postage, for which send us four copies which has the notice of our daughter's wedding. We are sorry you made such a mistake as to say 'the bride was dressed in pink chiffon'; it wasn't chiffon at all, it was tulle. Yours Respectfully, etc.'"

In every country town there is a sign at the railroad crossing like this. "Look Out for the Cars." Now everybody in that town knew it was a railroad crossing the day the track was laid. When the sign was put up it took two days—not longer—for every inhabitant it became familiar with it. In a week even the small children could read and spell it backward. Did the railroad take it down? No. If they had the warning would have been forgotten in a week and smash-ups and damage suits would have resulted. One-time advertisements act the same way. You must keep everlastingly at it, like the railroad crossing sign.

In the rush and hurry of modern life do we think as much as we might of the happiness of those who are growing old. They have lost so much. Their youth, often their health, most of the friends and companions who started with them on life's journey are gone and yet we often grudge them the brightness and joy we might so easily put into their lives. We will not stay to hear the recollections of old and happy days, which they love to tell us. We let them see so plainly that their day is over and ours has come. That those who have borne the burden and heat of the day, toiled and struggled and worn themselves out for others, should be left to feel lonely and neglected is sorrowful. We can and ought, each and all, in our own place and way, do something to bring the glow of summer and the remembrance of the days of roses and love into the lives, now fast nearing their winter and end.

Does the poor man feel at home in the ordinary city congregation? We are afraid not. The Salvation Army gets down to bed rock and gets after the poor and lowly. The Roman Catholic church does the same thing. Are our Protestant churches doing their part in looking after the poor man? Perhaps they are; perhaps it is not the fault of the pastors or the churches, but rather of the poor themselves, who are sensitive about their dress. Yet, allowance should be made for this. The mission church in poor neighborhoods reaches the class we are speaking of; but after all, it is contrary to the Christian ideal to separate the rich from the poor. The evil exists; it is the business of the churches to find a remedy.

The following is taken from The Evening Banner, Bluffton, Indiana:—"Balboa, No. 37656, the chestnut trotting stallion owned by Dr. M. W. McLean, of Vera Cruz, has been sold to Gus Weil, of Jarvis, Ontario. The price paid for the horse was not made public, but it is understood that the amount was no small one, as the horse was classed among the good ones. The horse has been owned for sometime by Mr. McLean, he purchasing the animal from a Frankfort firm, well known in racing circles. During the past two seasons Balboa has been raced in the Indiana and Illinois circuit, and was very successful. He has a mark of 2:16 1-4. Lovers of fine road horses in Wells county will regret the departure of the horse from this county, as he has a number of colts here that look like 'somers' and he will be numbered among the good ones of Indiana."

Why He Wouldn't Look Pleasant

Seeing that his repeated requests to look pleasant only caused his subject to scowl more fiercely, the photographer ceased to look pleasant himself. "If you can't cheer up," he said, "we might as well call this sitting off." You seemed an amiable sort of chap. Why can't you be pleasant when I tell you? "Because I don't want to," said the man before the camera. "My wife is going to send those pictures to some relatives of hers whom I have never seen, along with an invitation to visit us soon, and it is my intention to look like a brigand, so they won't come."

A Letter of Recommendation

331 Bloor St. West, Toronto, Jan. 5, 1912

I have pleasure in bearing testimony to the qualification of Mr. Donald MacGregor as a baritone soloist of excellent vocal and musical gifts. The marked success which has attended his professional work is an indication of his popularity and artistic attainments.

In his capacity of choir-master at Victoria church, he has developed a highly efficient choral body, of which recommending Mr. MacGregor to the favorable consideration of concert communities in search of a thoroughly competent and effective singer.

Signed,
A. S. VOGT,
Conductor Mendelssohn Choir, Toronto.

Newspaper Errors

Some newspaper readers are inclined to visit their indignation on compositors and proof readers because of typographical errors. These people fail to consider the haste under which newspapers are produced—the millions of letters which go to make them up, the rapidity with which the matter is "set up," much of it from poor "copy." In fact absolute freedom from errors is almost impossible to secure.

An effort was made to secure this when Queen Victoria's book on her life in the Highlands was published. After careful reading and revision of the proofs until the proof-readers believed them to be perfect, the proof were posted up, and a reward of £1 each was offered for the discovery of any errors. Months after when the book had been published, the discovery of several errors was announced. When this the experience of publishers having ample time and dealing with hand work using such precautions, it is plain that something is to be allowed for newspapers produced within a few hours and subject to all chances of error that typos, imperfect copy and hurried proof-reading entail. The marvel is not that there occur mistakes, but that mistakes are so few.
