CAPITAL PAID UP.....$ 2,370,000
 Reserve and Undivided Profits..... 3,500,000
 Total Assets..... 44,000,000

Just as a successful merchant makes every effort to give his customers court-ous, efficient attention, so do the officers of the Bank of Hamilton endeavor to render to depositors every service consistent with conservative banking practice. No deposit is too small to assure the depositor considerable treatment—the saving accounts of those in moderate circumstances are welcomed with courtesy, and with that absence of undue formality which makes banking a convenience and a pleasure.

Reminiscences of the Fenian Raid

By Capt. W. M. Alderson, continued from Feb. 27

I received the despatch and started for the camp of Colonel Peacocke, riding at a gallop. Soon my horse was wet with sweat. I came to a bridge, it had not been on fire but a few planks had been torn off; the stream was not wide and there was no current, being three feet deep. Noticing several small logs lying on the bottom I was afraid my horse might get injured in crossing; but there being no alternative I urged my horse through the marsh. It stumbled but we finally reached the opposite side, my horse being a sight to behold with water and mud, but it continued on a sharp trot, myself keeping a sharp look out for Fenians, as there was woods on either side of the road, but I saw none. Of course they may have seen me coming but when they saw my rank (Lance Corporal of the Canadian Army) they considered discretion the better part of valor and ran away. I came to an outlying picket, (of Gen Lowry's army) gave him the pass word and rode on. In a few minutes I was near the General, who called out, "What! is it Corporal! Isaluted, rode up to him and handed him the despatch; he glanced at it over and said, "go and tell the artillery to come down, they are about a quarter of a mile up the road. I was about to start when a staff officer said, "your horse has had enough, I will go." The General said, "all right," and turning to me said, "well done, Corporal, you need not return to your troop, I will make you one of my A. B. C.'s for to-day, remain near me." He then ordered his bugler to sound the order to fall in, and soon the Army of 1800 men were formed up in column of fours on the road. The command was given, "Forward, March" and we were on the way toward Old Fort, Niagara. Had marched about two miles when two men were observed on the top of a snake fence, about ten rods from us, consulting with their hands. The General said, "go and see what they want. I rode over to them and was informed that the Fenians were hiding in some buildings about a mile away. I looked and saw a number of men running between two barns. I returned to the General and informed him of the Fenians. The General ordered his bugler to sound the order to deploy and then came the order "fire." In a few minutes the bugler gave the order, "cease firing." I was told that nine Fenians were killed. The army formed up on the road and soon our march was resumed. About two o'clock p.m. we arrived at the old fort. The Fenians had left but they left behind many evidences of their visit, there being many lumber wagons and carriages, a lot of sheep, cattle and fowl, around the fort, all of which had been stolen from the people in the vicinity. We were told that the Fenians had gone to the village of Fort Erie which is on the west bank of the Niagara River, the city of Buffalo being on the opposite bank.—To be continued.
