Adrianople and Constantinople.

Sofia, Nov. 4.-Details thus far of | negotiations on the subject have yet the rout of the immense Turkish army by the Bulgarians show that the Bulgarian forces were numerically far in-1 2 2 ferior.

The Turkish army is reported to have aggregated 200,000 men. It included the garrison which had retreated from the captured fortress of Kirk-Kilisseh, as well as the main body of Turkish troops which had advanced from Constantinople. It comprised practically the whole of the Turkish troops remaining in Eurrope, apart from the garrisons of Adrian- 000 men, under Nazim Pasha, the War ople, Salonika, Monastir, Kanina, Scutari and a few other towns.

This great army was under the personal command of Nazim Pasha, Minister of War and commander-in-chief, who was assisted by some of the most able Turkish generals serving in the army at the present moment.

The fight opened with the discovery by the Turks of a number of Bulgarian at first against the Bulgarian troops, cavalry scouts. The Turks drew in their but could gain no success, and, after outposts, and these were closely followed three days' fighting, fled. The Bulgarby lines of Bulgarian skirmishers, who ian army vigorously pursued the Turks, were succeeded by the main Bulgarian who retreated in disorder and panic on army in fighting formation.

The battle, which was destined to last several days and result in the defeat of the Turks, was soon in progress all along the line.

The Bulgarian troops repeatedly delivered fierce attacks, sometimes at one point, sometimes at another, along the Turkish line extending from Lule burgas to Berai.

The Turkish troops offered a stubborn and desperate resistance, but were unable to withstand the onslaught of the impetuous Bulgarians, and finally they turned and fled in great disorder toward Tchorlu, in the south.

The losses of the Ottoman army are reported to have been enormous in dead, wounded and prisoners, as well as ammunition and other supplies.

The capture of a third Turkish military train near Lule Burgas before the battle was an immense advantage to the Bulgarians, as it furnished them with more facilities for the transport of their troops and supplies to the district where the fighting took place.

Vienna, Nov. 4.- Negotiations are in progress between representatives of Bulgaria, Servia, Montenegro and Greece, is a rumor there that Naziba Pasha with a view to reaching an agreement in regard to their demands from Turkey at the conclusion of hostilities, according to the "Neue Frie Presse."

As it is the intention of the four Balkan states to take joint action in this respect, the allies would prefer to enter into direct and immediate negotiations with Turkey, but it is understood that the Ottoman Government refuses to accept this proposition, and will in all probability appeal to the European powers for mediation. It is uncertain, however, whether the Balkan States would * tolerate any intervention.

KUSTENJE FEARS TURKS

Kustenje, Roumania, Nov. 4.—(By wireless from Constantinople, 1 p. m.)—The defeat of the Turkish army under Nazim Pasha opens the way to Constantinople for the Bulgarian troops. This will, in the opinion of diplomatic circles, lead to a situation which will almost inevitably bring about Euro opean complications. The most immediate danger, however, concerns the position of this city itself. Most authorities agree that no real defence can be made along the Tochalalja line, supposed to protect the capital. In the event of hordes of beaten and demoralized soldiers falling back on the capital, it is difficult to foresee what human intervention could save the city from sack and pillage. This fear is pre-

Although Acting Crown Attorney Thurston conducted the examination of the witnesses, it remained for Attorney Spence, representing the C. P. R., to bring this fact out in the testimony of George Spencer, the fireman on the troop train. Spencer was asked if there was anything to distract the attention of either he or the engineer on the trip from Milton to the point of the collision. At first the witness said there was not, but when led on by the solicitor for the C. P. R. acknowledged that two soldiers had entered the engine call at Milton just before the train pulled out and begged permission to ride there for at least part of the trip.

One of these men rode on the seat with the engineer, while the other occupied the seat of the fireman, on the opposite side of the engine cab.

George Spencer, the fireman, said the train was a very heavy one, and he was trip from Milton to Streetsville. Toronto despatch: A revised municipal act is one of the promises in store for Ontario at the next session of the Legislature. Perhaps more than a revised act, the Government's bill is almost a new act, designed to be an improvement on the existing statute, simplified, clarified and made workable.

At the last session of the Legislature, Hon. W. J. Hanna. Provincial Secretary, introduced what purported to be a revision of the Municipal Act. The bill was given a first reading, and subsequently withdrawn, so that it might be placed in the hands of county and district court judges, solicitors and municipal officials for criticism and suggestion. The bill is now printed, and will be distributed within a few days. These receiving a copy will be asked to send any observations they may have to make to Mr. W. B. Peculiar Story Regarding Hockin's Alleged Plans

Indianapolis, Nov. 4.—That J. McNamara since he has been fined in San Quentin prison (California, has been plotting to William J. Burns and Walter Drew of the National Erectors' Association, was the substance of testimony given this afternoon by Edward J. Brennen, a Government agent, at the "dynamite conspiracy" trial. Brennan testified Hockin stated he (Hockin) had visited McNamara in San Quentin this year and that MoNamara had said: "I would like to see them "get" Burns and

When Hockin was going to the station to return to Indianapolis Treitmoe, Johannsen, Lewis and Yoell accompanied him, Johannsen saying on the way: "Mac (meaning McNamara) is anxious for them to get Drew and Burns." Johannsen thin added to Hockin: "After you return to Indianapolis a strange man will appear on the scene. You will know him when he says, I am Arrow, not Darrow, When he says those words to you, you will know he is the right man."

"Hockin did return to Indianapolis," said the witness, "and a short time later he was called on the telephone by a man, who said, 'I am Arrow, not Darrow.' Later he met the stranger and procured a good description of him. The man brought a package, which he left at the iron workers' headquarters.

"A few days later Walter Davis, "a member of a local iron workers' union in New York city, came in. Hockin. gave him the package, saying, "Takthat out of here and get rid of it.' Davis returned with a cheek from the Union Station. Hockin then took the check to District Attorney Miller. Later Fred. Sherman, an iron worker, who is or trial, came in and asked for the check. Hockin pretended he had lost it. Another tine Sherman returned and said, 'Say, that man save you're a liar and a crook. meaning Hockin had not lost the check. J. A. G. Badorf, who testified that Heckin confessed to having "tipped off" the identity of the Los Angeles Times dynamiters, was cross-examined this afternoon by Senator J. W. Kern. counsel for the defence.

"When Hockin told you he had got in touch with Burns two weeks after the Los Angeles explosion, did he tell you how he did it?" Badorf was asked. "No, he did not tell me how. I told him he was a fool for allowing Burns to get a reputation as a detective on infor-mation he was furnishing. "Did Hockin say he was guilty amiting?"

"He said he thought he might plead guilty, and gave me to understar was in for it. He said he thought all they could give him was 18 months or two years.'
