

3 Ways to Cook ROUND STEAK

MOCK PORTERHOUSE STEAK Put one pound of round steak through the meat-chopper, and add a level teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper and two tablespoonfuls of water. Mix thoroughly and form into a cake the shape of a sirloin or porterhouse steak. Put an iron pan on the stove and grease it, and when hot put in the steak. Cook the steak for a moment on one side, turn it with a cake-turner and sear the other, and then push it over a moderate fire, or put it in the oven to cook slowly for fifteen minutes, turning once or twice. Transfer it to a second platter, baste it with a little butter, and send it at once to the table. This may also be served with brown, sweet pepper or tomato sauce.

STANLEY STEAK—Make chopped round steak into round cakes and broil on them. While they are cooking rub together two tablespoonfuls of butter and two of flour, add half a pint of milk, and stir until boiling. Add a tablespoonful of dry horseradish, or two tablespoonfuls of horseradish pressed from the vinegar, and half a teaspoonful of salt. Pour this mixture in the bottom of the platter, stand the steaks in it, and put half of a baked banana on each steak.

SALISBURY STEAKS Season one pound of chopped round steak with a teaspoonful of salt and the juice of half a lemon. Mix and form into round cakes half an inch thick. Broil or cook in a dry pan for eight minutes. Transfer to a heated plate, and paste with a little butter.

OFF TO SCHOOL.
It doesn't seem so long ago that she was sitting on my knee.
And taking me for fairy tales, or telling me of her to me.
And all the words were wondrous then.
And there was no plain hard facts to learn.
But full of childish poetry was every word.
Then summer was every wing and god.
But things are so different now, to-day she's trudging off to school.
Her world is full of letters now, and she has quit the pleasant tales of gingerbread and sugar plums.
Her fingers all have grown away to dance with other little ones.
And facts have driven fancies off, and left her with her first by-gones.
She faces to face with what is so, contented now by life's stern rule.
Her baby innocence departs, to-day she's trudging off to school.

It doesn't seem a month ago since we went straying hand in hand.
To sunny beds where fancies lived; then any place was fairy land.
She said that every day to blue, and every ray of sun to gold.
And every one was here to play and on my grandpa's ear grew old.
Then she was wiser with joy, and every day was sweet and cool.
But things are so different now, for she's trudging off to school.
No more will fancies romp for her, the sunny beds are all retained for her, the honey bees will come again.
But little Prince and Little Queen for ever she will come to call, and every day will be a shadow folk to play with at the garden wall.
With facts and facts—she's face to face, with stern rules and stern-faced rule, she stands upon the edge of life, and bravely trudges off to school.

FOR INGROWN TOENAILS.

(By a Physician.)
Ingrowing toenails are not only extremely painful but sometimes very serious. Like many other ills, if taken in time they may be easily remedied. If left to grow worse, day by day, they are sometimes the cause of surgical treatment. To cure by prevention is by far the easiest and best medical advice a physician can teach any patient, whether it be toenails or cancer. The common causes of ingrowing toenails are improper footwear and an improper method of cutting the nails. If the nail is cut too short, especially at the angle, while at the same time the skin on the toe is forced over the nail. Consequently by the further growth of the nail, the flesh is pushed still further over until a point is reached where inflammation is set up. The preventive measures of the trouble are:
First, in cutting of the nails. The toenail should be cut in concave form, the outer angle projecting beyond the toe. Then, if there is a tendency for the flesh to grow over the nail, the flesh should be pushed back from the nail, and fastened in position with a strip of oxide of zinc plaster. A gauze packing should be inserted under the edge of the nail. A saturated solution of boric acid serves as an antiseptic dressing.

WALKING STICK HANDLES.

Some of the Things That the Handies May Contain.

The ingenuity of the Frenchman has not been confined to the making of weapons out of apparently harmless canes. In fact there is quite a variety of uses which the cane is made to serve.

One of the canes is fitted with a coin box and a match box, these being contained in the head, which is provided with a carefully concealed lid. The coin box is arranged to permit of depositing and easily removing the coin by a slight pressure of the thumb, thus obviating the necessity of fishing for coins in the pocket.

Another cane handle shows a complete outfit of the game known as Petits Chevaux. When the lid is open betting can begin and the horse crossing the wire first wins the stakes. One of the latest Parisian novelties consists in a ladies' parasol handle containing a roulette wheel, which can be used for gambling at any place or moment.

These handles have become very popular. They are of fine workmanship and generally of gold or silver. One handle contains almost everything that one would be likely to need. A long sheet of paper is wound around the rod, from which pieces may be torn off for taking notes. When the lid is opened penknife, pencil, nail file, comb and looking glass are disclosed. These objects are small, but large enough for practical use.—Scientific American.

THE STREET A STAGE.

(Bruce, in Vancouver Sunset.)

The streets are a stage, set sometimes to melodrama, or to a pageant; more often to a comedy. As in some Elizabethan piece, we who witness it may be both spectators and players. In Vancouver the play is never dull, the scenery is often striking in color, and the players often picturesque in interest. In larger cities the play is more spectacular, with less of human interest, perhaps, and more emphasis on the "properties." The play is always improvised, and the street sends up comedy, tragedy, and the piece that is always playing, the comedy of human life. It is difficult to render the quick-shifting movement of the street types and scenes, and he would be a clever artist who could in his book catch the essence of the eternal comedy. It is the humanness of it all that has such interest and charm. The street has movement, not mere motion; the people who use are of the street, not merely in it. In Vancouver is little squalor, little slum life, little crime, little to be seen that is unpleasant or suggestive.

LOST THE BET JUST THE SAME.
A Kansas merchant, who had just paid a fine because his vegetable display box was not six inches higher than the sidewalk, ventured the assertion that a man can't go from morning till night without breaking some Kansas law, no man how carefully he is. A hotel man thought he could; and a wager was made, and the next day was set for the test.

"I'll win that bet all right," said the hotel man. "I'll stay in bed all day to-morrow."

And he did, until just before dark, when an inspector came along and arrested him for not having a nine-foot sheet on his bed.—Kansas City Journal.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bad habits. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Windsor, Ont., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her to-day if your child is in trouble. In this way, don't blame the child, the cause is in the parent. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine discharges by day or night.

MANY CITIES SPENDING MILLIONS.

(New York Herald.)

A Kansas City citizen, after passing several months traveling in the East and in the West, calls upon his municipality to be up and doing. He found that everywhere in the land cities and states are spending millions of dollars for improvement. He called attention to the fact that Pittsburgh, at vast expense, is cutting "a hump" out of a business street. He spoke of the $600,000 that Pennsylvania is putting into good roads. He mentioned civic betterments that are being made in Buffalo and in Cleveland. He might have referred to New York's subway, to this State's $100,000,000 in canals and $600,000,000 on roads. He might have informed his fellow citizens that Seattle is leveling hills and leveling the sea, and is spending $20,000,000 on her harbor, that San Francisco is rebuilding lavishly and preparing for a great exposition, that Los Angeles has invested $2,000,000 in a water power and irrigation enterprise and that San Diego is dredging and building piers to attract the commerce that is going to pass through the canal.

UNUSUAL OCCURRENCE.

Richard Harding Davis, during his Atlantic City honeymoon, according to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, sat at a luncheon.

"I confess I am not pleased with the modern trend of fiction. The newest fiction is nasty. It leaves a bad taste in the mouth. It is full of a double entendre—like the parlor maid's remark."

"A gentleman came down to breakfast one morning with bloodshot eyes. He drank eight glasses of ice water hurriedly, then he muttered hoarsely to the parlor maid."

"Tell me, Adele, did I reach home last night very much under the weather?"

IN CASE OF POISONING.

(BY A PHYSICIAN.)

In case of sickness from eating poisonous berries or impure food, send for a physician promptly.

While he is coming give the patient an emetic at once. Such cases cannot be allowed to go for any length of time without some simple, and quick remedy if the patient is to be cured without great suffering or a long illness.

A teaspoonful of ground mustard dissolved in a cupful of warm water is most satisfactory. But plain salt water or lukewarm water, alone, in large quantities is also effective.

After vomiting has taken place, let the patient swallow the whites of several eggs or some sweet oil to help absorb the poison. Also give a simple cathartic such as castor oil, and follow with a good enema of warm water, after the cathartic has acted.

Let the patient drink plenty of water and keep him on a diet of milk and toast for twenty-four hours.

A THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY.
The high that proved to high, the hero for earth too hard,
The passion that left the ground to lose itself in the sky.
Are music sent up to God by the lover and the bard;
Enough that he heard it once; we shall hear it by and-by.

There shall never be one lost good!
What was, shall live as before;
The evil is null, is nought, is silence implying sound;
What was good shall be good, with, for evil, so much good more;
On the earth the broken are; in the heaven, a perfect round.
—R. Browning.

SLEEPLESSNESS.

(By a Physician.)

Sleeplessness is due to the presence of too much blood in the head. Instead of taking a drug to induce sleep, employ a simple remedy to equalize the circulation.

If the brain has been actively engaged just before bedtime, it is wise to take a short, brisk walk in the open air to put the blood into normal action.

A cold bath or rubdown is equally good for some people, while a hot bath will be found to induce sleep in others. These must be tried to see which is the better for the individual case.

Grasses and onions are both sleep producers. Eat lettuce, fish at supper time. Take the onion sliced raw, or in a syrup just before retiring. Rubbing the temples with lettuce juice is another way of equalizing the circulation and inducing sleep.

If a person is troubled with wakefulness in the night, after having been asleep, once, it is wise to get up and eat a crust of bread.

This has the same effect. It starts the stomach working, and that in turn draws the blood from the head.

Because it is difficult to sleep when the brain is overactive, child should not be excited just before the bedtime hour.

SMALL FRUIT CULTURE.

The failure of many who occupy land to grow an abundance of small fruits, at least for their own use, is due to a mistaken idea that it requires too much time to look after a garden. This is the view taken by Mr. W. T. Macoun, the Dominion Horticulturist, and expressed in a paper read by him last winter before the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry. This paper, which constitutes a pamphlet of thirty-five pages, is an exhaustive treatise, expressed in the plainest terms, on the culture of small fruits. The fruits dealt with are the strawberry, raspberry, blackberry, gooseberry, and the several classes of currants. Besides giving full instructions for planting and cultivation, notes are given on the relative merits of varieties.

This pamphlet contains an interesting table on the cost of growing, and the returns from an acre of strawberries. At a selling value of five cents per box, a net profit of eighty-four dollars is shown. A section is devoted to the preparation and application of insecticides and fungicides that are useful in fruit growing. Having the information of this paper to guide him, there is no good reason why every farmer should not have a productive fruit garden. A large edition has been printed to be sent free to all who apply to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

GERMANY ISOLATED.
(Detroit Free Press.)
The transfer of the French fleet to the Mediterranean is a move that Great Britain has been urging upon France ever since the birth of the entente between the two countries. She has ardently desired such action, chiefly because occupation of the Mediterranean by a friendly power would leave her free to herd her ships in the North Sea where they would be ready to block the access of the German navy from the Baltic. This action France has hesitated to take, continuing to ask, "What was likely to gain out of it? The one thing she has demanded, and the very thing Great Britain has been unable to promise, has been a guarantee of assistance in case of war. The triple entente between Russia, Great Britain and France, possibly her own desire to secure a message from Germany, and possibly a fear of Austrian and Italian naval dominance, has finally induced her to make the move. It is not unlikely that the next news we hear will be of a strong movement to permit the exit of Russian warships from the Black Sea.

FOUNTAINS.

Fountains are public and private; they stand for beauty, fertility and life; they are venerable, they are holy, they call forth worship. They reach back to the everlasting hills, their tinkling music tells of God. The running water has worn a channel in the marble lip and the devout has kissed that lip in veneration.

The fountain stands for motherhood, a plentiful family was a blessing, my spouse is a fountain sealed secluded in a garden, concealed from the stare of the vulgar, sweet in privacy, delicacy and modesty. God is a fountain; God in Christ is a fountain of life. O, the cleansing, the refreshing, the restoring wash and be clean, drink and drink abundantly, beloved. Elisha poured water on the hands of Elijah, why? The copper pot with a long spout was an imitation fountain. Still water was counted dead, running water was counted living.

The human race is thirsty. "Whoso drinketh of this water shall thirst again, but whoso drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst," says Jesus to the woman at the well. What millions have been refreshed! The hunting of the first century, the hidden ones in the catacombs, did they not drink?

Come down the ages, who can mention all? Augustine with his mighty heart, pouring out a flood of affection, dominating the Christian Church for thirteen centuries. Did not John Huss drink? Was not Luther refreshed? They all drank of this water and were made strong. They left their "Amens" on the fountain steps, and there they are today, millions of them; they are accumulating, the way, so great is the accumulation. Their benedictions return, the waters run to the sea, are gathered up into the clouds, fall as rain down, run again in an perpetual round, bringing life and healing and salvation.

The word dwells in us to-day with a halo of mystic vindications about it that it could not possess in the beginning. It comes to us not only as a message from God, but tremulous with the countless "Amens" it has awakened in the heroic souls it has fashioned and inspired. The promises upon which God's servants in every age have hoped receive back into themselves sublime reactions from the spiritual forces they have kindled within the elect, and come to us vocal with new significance. The experiences of the devout and the believing in all ages are gathered back into the divine message by which such souls were helped and sanctified, and through his living voice within us we realize the doctrine of the communion of saints. It is in this high spiritual sense that the church is the interpreter and the guardian of God's Word.

The drink is passed, the men are away, the women have joined Mary to call her blessed, only the "Amens" remain. "Of the increase of His Kingdom and Government there shall be no end."
—H. T. Miller.

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, Etc.

THE FATE OF THE "SQUEALER."

The destruction of men who betray the guilty secrets of the police is nothing new. In the case of John McLaughlin, who was shot by the police, it was a case of a man who was put away for offenses similar to his own.

McLaughlin, who a few years ago committed the deadly sin of informing on the police and their system of protection to pickpockets. His friends say that McLaughlin never drank, but he was arrested one night on a charge of intoxication. He went into the West Forty-Seventh Street Police Station. He was turned out the next morning to die the gutter almost at the station house.

An autopsy showed that his brain had been fractured and that his body was covered with terrible bruises. Frutkin's investigation was made, with the police inspector then in charge of the Police Bureau apologizing for and defending the action of the police. McLaughlin or permitted him to be killed.

"Lefty" Boyle, an expert pickpocket, long enjoyed a license to steal in three New York precincts. The course of the young Boyle one day learned that John Pritchett, an Alabama farmer, was walking about the sidewalk with a gun so securely pinned to his undershirt as to defy even his deft fingers. He reported to his patron, and Pritchett was taken to the Tenderloin police station on a charge of intoxication.

Boyle's patron was released by the police. Boyle was gone. Boyle went to the station and demanded his share of the proceeds, but received nothing more than a blow in the face and a police order to go out and do his own stealing.

Boyle went straight away to the District Attorney to whom he told his story—a story of police protection for all of a kind. Once more a wave of public indignation swept New York. Pritchett's money was returned to him, a fair confession that Boyle had told the truth. Pritchett was taken to the Tenderloin and a bullet in his spine. From the "Police-Protected Murderer in New York" in the October Macpherson.

VINES ON CLIFF SIDES.

It is said that the steepest vineyards in the world are those upon the escarpment between Levanto and Spezzia, in Italy.

The vineyards of certain districts bordering on the Rhine flourish upon very steep hills, but the loftiness of these is as nothing compared with the Italian cliffs.

When one has left Levanto, a town situated on a semi-circular bay, he proceeds, through a tunnel, to what are called the villages of the Cingine Torre. Each village is separated from its fellow by lofty cliffs, and the vines cover the face of these cliffs, which are almost perpendicular. Inasmuch as the vines can be reached only by means of ladders or of ropes, one can easily imagine the difficulty of working in such a vineyard.

Other striking features in the vineyard industry are to be seen in places where the vines are trained up steep across gorges made by the streams that cut the rocky coast. In short, this entire region presents a most unique viticulture. Only the intense love of the Italian for the industry can account for the excessive labor and trouble given to the working of vineyards planted up on the face of sheer cliffs.

THE WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC.

(Toronto Star.)
The white slave traffic, if not absolutely new, has been organized very skillfully in recent years, and this organization should be met and fought by the police authorities. The proposal to appoint women detectives is an excellent one. These officials could not only keep watch on the criminals, but give advice to the girls, and direct them to suitable boarding houses.

As Toronto is much larger than Hamilton it is likely that we have to deal with the same problem here, on a much larger scale. Thousands of young women come to this city to work in stores, factories, and restaurants. They know nothing of the city, its safe and dangerous localities. They are usually removed from the care of parents and other guardians. The prosperity of the city is founded largely upon their daily toil. It is our duty to care for them; and the expense should be regarded as a minor consideration.
