Local and Personal.

Seed-Time and Harvest

Careless hands that strew the seeds From which shall rise, in coming years, Long happy hours or shame and tears, What sow you, on life's hills and meads? Sow truthful words and kindly deeds And all your path shall bloom with flowers; Sow hidden sins and idle hours, And they shall spread like noxious weeds. O youth, be true! O youth, be pure! So shall your life grow strong and bright For him alone whose soul is white Love, honor, trust, for aye endure!

The Editor Talks—Newspaper publishers in villages and towns always find it more or less difficult to finance their business through July, August and September owing in part, to neglect of patrons who owe small debts in not paying them during these months. Too many people think of their own holidays and forget that the tired editor and publisher needs both, usually more than they do. Few printers can accumulate enough ahead to carry them over these summer months as office expenses are almost as great now as at any other time. Cash has to be paid for paper, ink, and other supplies just the same. All of which goes to show how much country publishers will appreciate settlement of the accounts due them for subscriptions, job printing and advertising. If you, kind reader, owe the printer, pay up right now and he will remember you in his prayers.

This is the month when next year's crop of weeds may be destroyed. Make it a rule that not one weed will get by you. Another thing to look out for is to put in good, stout stakes for the support of dahlias, cosmos or any tall growing late flower. It is also time to give attention to the bulb question. Stick to good named varieties. You should also be looking up the hardy things to be planted in the fall. Fall planting is best for shrubs and evergreens.

Our little Dutch cards tell you some facts, for they say: "If you want to get in de shvim, you must plunge. That means, to the merchant who wishes to prosper in selling his goods, he must get in de shvim and advertise what he has to sell. Keep his goods before the public and give the farmers and townfolk a chance to buy at home. Advertise in The Jarvis Record."

We are pleased to state that Mr. J. C. Sanderson has purchased the house and lot on Main street adjoining Thos. Harris, and has started to tear down the old building that has, for so many years, been an eye-sore to the public. We are glad it has fallen into the hands of J. C. for now we may expect to see the lot filled in and a new building erected which will be a credit to our town. In the past few years Mr. Sanderson has made it a point, and taken great pride in buying old building and lots, then beautifying them, until now, our village can boast of at least, four that can be placed to the credit of our worthy citizen. May a few more Mr. Sandersons spring up in our town and, we venture to say Jarvis will hold its own with any little town in Ontario for taste and good substantial buildings.

An article that has real merit should in time become popular. That such is the case with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been attested by many dealers. Here is one of them. H. W. Look at Wonderland

I wish you could take a peep into "Wonderland." It will do your eyes good to just gaze upon the beauties that you will see. I hear you say, "Where is Wonderland?" We will soon tell you where, and why it is so called. "Wonderland" is to be seen at "The Record" office, where the most beautiful cards can be shown you, such as never were seen in Jarvis before. The cards with the ladies heads on are such as will cause any young man who asks them to buy before he leaves, for there is such a richness in coloring and such purity in expression, that one wants to buy the set of five to have them framed. Then again, we ask you to look at our dark Celluloid cards of children—they are simply sublime. Any father, mother, sister or brother would stand and gaze over and over again: "Oh how much joy, simplicity, and that which speaks of heaven is written in 'Wonderland'." One wonders how they can make such beauties of goodness and sell them at 5c a card. We also have the Dutch cards. They make you laugh. They are all kinds, blue and white cards, white cards with colored figures, and all colored. Yes, they are just like the little Dutch folk, in both look and talk. Oh, they are cute! Now look at our "Motto" cards with a Jarvis flag on them. They are lovely, and tell what is going on here. We can show you all kinds of scenery. You will look at some boats we have and wish you were sailing on the deep blue sea. Now these are only a few of the many kinds we have and this is why we call it "Wonderland." Do you see? Just as soon as you step into The Record office to see cards, you begin to "Wonder" "Wonder" which one to buy. "Wonder" why we have so many to choose from and "Wonder" how so many different kinds can be made. "Wonderland" of cards.

The summer wanderers are returning. The rich tan of the schoolboy's countenance is somewhat subdued, as he reflects upon the coming term. The housewife, who has been enjoying an all-too-seldom holiday, turns her fancy to thoughts of peach preserves and tomato catsup.

Our little Dutch cards tell you some facts, for they say: "If you want to get in the shvim, you must plunge." That means to the merchant who wishes to prosper in selling his goods, he must get in de shvim and advertise what he has to sell, keep his goods before the public and give the farmers and townfolk a chance to buy at home. The following was taken from the Port Rowan correspondence to the Simcoe Reformer:—About a week ago two men came to the village, hired a small motor boat, and spent their time fishing. In appearance, there was nothing to distinguish between them and hundreds of others who visit us during the fishing season, but on Saturday last their real business here was revealed, when Mr. Gillies of the Hanson House, was called upon to answer for eight violations of the Liquor License Act, and Mr. Craise, of the Hotel Central, for four similar offences. License Inspector Innis appeared on the scene Monday, and the cases were brought before Police Magistrate Mathison, with the result that Mr. Gillies was fined $200 and costs, and Mr. Craise $100 and costs. Mr. McCall, hotelkeeper at Port Dover, was also fined $100 and costs for likewise violating the law. It is claimed that these private detectives were assisted by parties who are desirous of seeing a speedy change in the management and ownership of our hotels. If such is the case, our hotelkeepers are between two fires, and a strict compliance with the law would be good policy for them, for although the temperance people may be asleep, they are not dead.

Who Owns the Fair?

Why the People Do-its Up to Them Then, to Make it a Success.

The Annual Fall Fair of Walpole Agricultural Society will be held on October 1st and 2nd.

Help along the big show by your presence and by your exhibits. Many people are assisting the show by not exhibiting. Look the prize list over and see if there is not something you can show that will be of interest to others. Do not worry about the prize, but do it from a spirit of loyalty to our community.

The big pavilion will give our merchants plenty of space in which to exhibit their wares. They should see the secretary at once and have space allotted to them.

The increasing show of horses here each year has made the Association pay special attention to this part of the exhibition and the prizes have all been increased. This year promises to see the biggest number and classiest lot of horses ever shown here.

There will be a concert on the evening of the last day in the Music Hall.

The Fair is not a net of any one man or any body of men. It belongs to the people and it's up to the people to see that it is a success. How can they do that? Why, boost it from now on and also be present even if you can't be an exhibitor.
