

The Housekeeper

In washing gloves always use the thread instead of silk. Men's with a buttonhole stitch and the tear will rarely be noticed.

Left over fish should always be kept in a closed receptacle in the refrigerator, so as not to impart the flavor to other foodstuffs.

When washing windows, tie a cloth (a piece of old undershirt is the best) around the wrist to prevent water from running down the arm.

To make eyelets for embroidering, hold the cloth firmly against a bar of white soap when you pierce the hole. This prevents making the eyelet larger than you want and the edges of it are soaped, enabling you to work a much smoother eyelet. The soap also helps to remove the stamping marks when the embroidery is laundered.

When buying window shades get an extra set of catches. Put one set at the usual place, the other about a foot lower. In cold weather hang the shades on the lower catches and leave the window down from the top. This gives perfect ventilation and prevents the shade from blowing about.

Every woman who cuts out from paper patterns knows of the bother in pinning it flat to the cloth. Take a hot iron and smooth the tissue paper pattern over the cloth and it will remain flat without pins.

A little sugar or molasses added to the stove polish gives a brighter and more lasting polish, also prevents so much dust.

A wall covered with figured paper, especially if the pattern is large and intricate and in two or more colors, is not a good background for pictures, but a very poor one.

Canned vegetables, especially peas and beans, are washed in cold water before they are cooked. That strong flavor will disappear and they will taste more like fresh vegetables.

HE SENT HIS "BEST" REMEDY

The young daughter of Mrs. T. S. Douglis, 623 Flora Avenue, Winnipeg, was arranging some of her doll's washing on a clothes rack, beside the stove, when she fell, and her hand came in contact with the hot stove. She sustained a serious burn, and her screams brought her mother quickly to the spot.

"I sent to the druggist for the best remedy he had for burns," she says, "and he sent back a box of Zam-Buk. He said that there was nothing to equal it. I applied this, and it soothed the pain so quickly that the child laughed through her tears. I bound up the hand in Zam-Buk, and each day applied Zam-Buk frequently and liberally, until the burn was quite cured.

"The little one was soon able to go on with her play, and we had no trouble with her during the time the burn was being healed."

Zam-Buk Soap should also be used by all mothers for baby's bath and for skin troubles, rashes, pimples, etc.

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at fifty cents box; and Soap at 25c. tablet. Post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations.

HARRIET TUBMAN.

Negress Who Originated Underground Railway Dead.

Harriet Tubman, once a slave, described by her biographer as the Moses of her people, died on Monday night at the Harriet Tubman Home for aged negroes at Auburn, N. Y. She was regarded by many as one of the most remarkable women of this continent. As nearly as she herself could tell she was between 95 and 100 years old. Pneumonia was the cause of her death.

She was written about and held in high esteem by such persons as Ralph Waldo Emerson, William Lloyd Garrison, Horace Mann, Frederick Douglass, Gerrit Smith and Abraham Lincoln.

Of pure Ashantee blood, she was born in Dorchester county and at an early age gave indication of her hatred for slavery by attacking a plantation overseer who was on the point of thrashing one of his men and knocking him down. For this she received a blow from an iron weight which crushed her skull and left her a victim of somnolency for many years after.

Harriet Tubman was one of the originators of the underground railroad. During eight years before the war and after she had escaped from the South she piloted more than 300 slaves to freedom and liberty. She made more than twenty trips into the heart of Maryland and Virginia, where these rewards amounting to more than $49,000 for her capture, alive or dead.

When the war came she gave her services as a spy for the Union Army at the request of Governor Andrews, of Massachusetts, and during the four years of struggle was under fire many times and nursed the wounded in army hospitals.

She has been described by John Brown as one of the bravest and best persons on the continent, and by Wendell Phillips as having done more for the loyal cause than many captains and colonels.

Mrs. Sarah H. Bradford has written a book about her called Harriet, the Moses of Her People, and in it has said that she led our forces through swamp and jungle, guided by an unseen hand. It was from the sale of this book that Harriet, known during the war as General Tubman, was able to purchase a home at Auburn, which she later gave to the Zion A. M. E. Church as a home for aged and infirm negroes.—New York Sun.

DRESS CODE FOR MEN.
Having suggested man-made laws for the regulation of feminine apparel, we now propose a woman-made dress code for men to be adopted first in the nine suffrage states, viz.: Arizona, California, Colorado, Kansas, Oregon, Washington, Wyoming, Utah and Idaho.

An act making it a misdemeanor to plant a hat on the back of the head or to cock it over one eye.

An act discouraging the habit of eating in shirtsleeves in the absence of company.

An act limiting the amount of fringe permissible on a pair of cuffs at an evening function.

An act requiring that trousers shall be pressed frequently enough to prevent them from getting baggy at the knees.

An act prohibiting the use of suspender buttons unless the user learns to sew.

An act constituting it a felony to have appendant to the person any pipe, fashioned out of clay, briar-root, meerschaum, calabash or corncob, and intended for the burning of tobacco, hay, straw alfalfa or other obnoxious weeds.

The legislation outlined covers, we believe, all the necessary reforms from woman's point of view, except the establishment of a color scheme. It does give her a jar to see a man put on a red necktie, blue stockings and tan gloves, with a brown suit having yellow stripes.—Boston Globe.

THE TUNIC.
It came.
It was seen.
It conquered.
We must have it.
It was said to be dead.
But we couldn't do without it.
Now it is worn and liked in many forms.

Nearly all materials are used in its construction.
It is a feature of many a new dress—the rejuvenation of many an old one.

A SLIP INTO BARBARISM.
(Philadelphia Record)

"It is the end of French culture." This is the view of a serious-minded lover of his country, as Anatole France is regarding the new Constitution law; and it is the truth. The French nation has just entered upon a period of great industrial revival. It is breaking new paths in the domains of science and of the arts. The withdrawal into military barracks for an additional year of service of the most promising youths the flower of the nation, and at the most critical period of their young manhood, will check their development. How can it help doing so? And still worse, the resumption by the whole nation of the duties of every school platform as well as every public postum, is the unfolding symptom of a lapse into barbarism.

WATCH THE BOY, TOO.
(Chicago Tribune)

Parents must once for all realize that in big cities it is all important to watch the company and know the whereabouts of the boy as he is of the girl. In our large cities men and women of the underworld are constantly "laying" for innocent young men almost as much as they are for innocent girls. To gain women recruits for vice they must first get boys, young men, into their tanks and train them for their purposes. After these youths are sufficiently depraved by them they are sent out to lure girls from their homes under the pretext of marriage or otherwise, and then deliver these girls up to disorderly resort keepers.

These underworld creatures ply their trade, that of luring boys and turning them into cadets, in poolrooms, on street corners, and wherever else boys, for want of better places, congregate in search of fun, amusement, and recreation.

THE NIGHT MANOEUVRES.
(New York Sun)

If the reports cable to all the papers of this country are true, that flotillas of British and French submarines are co-operating in night manoeuvres in the English Channel, the matter must be regarded as having considerable international significance. Such combined manoeuvres, common at a time when there is friction between France and Germany and both countries are contemplating enormous increases in their land forces, could only be interpreted by the latter as a plain intimation that France and Britain are more than ever of one mind and that an attack on one Power means an attack on both.

The reports, however, should be accepted with considerable reserve. While it is undoubtedly a fact that the entente between the two Powers has never been more firmly cemented, manoeuvres of the kind indicated would at this time appear needlessly provocative. The presence by mere coincidence in the same waters and at the same time of British and French submarines and the exchange of wireless greetings that would naturally take place would be a sufficient explanation of the origin of the reports of regularly planned manoeuvres.

WHY IS IT!
When a fly moves on the crystal glass of the window pane it climbs going up and flies if going on a straight line downward. The fly never makes its descent walking on the surface of the glass. Hens invariably scrape gravel with their backs to the sun. Cats never expose their paws to the heat of the fire. In the majority of cases they bring their left side toward the fire. Dogs, on the contrary, bring their paws as nearly as they can to the point from which the fire proceeds. Rats have the strange habit of rejecting food which is too easily obtained and go to dangerous places in granaries. Farmers for this reason sometimes put their "exterminators" in out-of-the-way corners, certain that the rats will be lured by the difficulty of access. And, improbable as it may seem, almost any one can become a snake-charmer. One of the best-known Oriental "enchanters" said that she began her career by putting small and inoffensive serpents in cages and going every day to feed them. At the end of two or three months these animals knew her and had every appearance of awaiting her coming when the time drew near. She studied their habits and then the habits of the more formidable species until she had mastered her "trade."—Harper's Weekly.

NEWSPAPER COST.
(Brantford Expositor)

There are not wanting indications that the day of the one-cent daily newspaper is near its end. The Boston Journal to-day jumps its selling price from one cent to three cents. All the Bridgeport (Conn.) newspapers recently increased from one to two cents, and the Kansas City Star has joined the procession. The explanation for this change of policy is, of course, the increased cost of production of newspapers. Printers are making a much higher wage for an eight-hour day than they used to receive for ten, while paper costs more, and the same is true of types and presses. Increased advertising patronage has enabled most newspapers thus far to carry the additional load, but there are not wanting indications that this cannot be done much longer.

CHILD PRODIGIES.
(Rochester Post-Express)

Whether such an exceedingly rapid development is desirable is at least an open question, and it happens very rarely. If it even happens, that the promise of early years is fulfilled, beyond a certain point progress slows down or ceases with result that the lumbering tortoise is well up with the hare or ahead of him at the close of the race. Children who are brighter, more beautiful, more gifted and more graceful than the normal average are to be admired and desired, but a balanced and progressive development is better than a hot-house growth with exhausts its impetus in early life.

TO KEEP BOYS ON THE FARM.
(Rochester Times)

Somewhat has been done in recent years to keep the farmer's boy at home. Many of the schools are realizing that it is much better to teach him about soil and farm animals than to fit him for the department store ribbon counter. But there are always a lot of unattached young fellows, who through misfortune or other causes can not look forward to inheriting any farm property. How keep these restless hearts at home?

Probably the farmer's daughter could answer that question about as well as anyone. If you persuade her to keep away from the department stores and the stenography schools of the cities, to help mother to keep house and cheer father's days of decline, there is something doing in the silent old croos roads halls where formerly the boys and girls sused so cheerily to shake a boot at "Money Musk." Keep the girls at home and the boys stay, too.

A PROFITABLE DREAM.
Three dreams on successive nights evaded the invention of a patent self-locking bolt for which Calvin Shockley, a young railroad telegrapher of Georgetown, Delaware, claims to have already received three offers of $75,000. Shockley claims to have dreamed of the invention after walking down the railroad and noticing many bolts which hold the rails together having fallen loose.

For three successive nights he dreamed of a bolt that would prevent any falling away, and acting on the idea of the dream, invented the present bolt. Last week Shockley received a cheque for the patent, and was to have signed away his rights, but, acting on a dream he had last night, he will now hold out for a larger sum.

Still it seems to me the same
Which we men and women play—
Are we not from day to day
Blowing bubbles?

SPAIN SLOW TO CHANGE.
In Spain for the most part, washing is done in the old-fashioned way, with cold water in large earthen tubs, generally in little wash houses on the flat Oriental roofs. Local custom is exceedingly hard to change, and the cheapness of labor obviates the use of modern machinery and time and labor saving devices.

THE TREASURE OF POLTAVA.
It has fallen to the lot of two young boys to make a remarkable discovery in mid-Russia at a village in the government of Poltava. Only a short distance below the surface they came across a collection of objects, the value and richness of which has only once been equalled in a country where such finds are not unusual. It consisted of vessels of silver and gold, and jewelry, some of which date back to the fourth century, gold coins found with the famous having figures of Heraclius and the son Constantine.

It is supposed from one of the finest cups bearing a mounted figure of a Persian king that the treasure was the property of one of the chiefs of a nomad clan of Bulgars, who wandered over the Russian steppes, and who were wont to place their services at the disposal of the Persians for raids on the Byzantine empire.

OLD AGE DENIED.
(Chicago Tribune)

Some time ago statistes were made public in this country showing that industry is making men old at forty. Now, France goes the United States one better. In that country statistics shows old age is totally denied to a great portion of the population.

Dr. Jacques Berthelin of the Paris municipal statistical department has just made public figures which show the terrific effects that industry, with its diseases and accidents, exercises over a large part of the working people of France. The number of workmen who live to "a good age" in that country is growing fewer year by year. Industrial diseases break most tollers in their prime.

These wholesale sacrifices can no longer be excused on the ground that they are the inevitable risks of industry. A generation of two ago death and disease might still have been claimed as intrinsic accessories to industrial progress. But no to-day. Science has shown the way to combat many industrial diseases and insure reasonable safety even in dangerous occupations. A host of technical safeguards have been put out to prevent killing and maiming by machinery. What is needed to deplete the shop, the factory, and mine of its death-dealing attributes is a close union between science and government, between laboratory and legislative hall.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.
Alpine Climbing Less Dangerous.
Climbing in the Alps is now a careful and exact science; it has reached its limit of perfection. Given experienced guides and a "known" route, little harm can befall one, says the Wide World Magazine. Guides nowadays are more highly skilled and proportionally less willing to take risks than ever they were. They know instinctively when an avalanche will descend; they are able to gauge weather conditions; they know every inch of their mountains.

The toil of the Alps to-day is represented by victims with principally their own fool-hardiness to blame. They are the "superior" climbers who undertake expeditions without guides, who climb the most difficult ascents by the most perilous routes, who endeavor to conquer virgin peaks, and undertake similar risks.

Ordinary climbers can enjoy the Alps to-day with practically no little hazard or danger as is experienced by the motorist or yachtsman. But, like them, they must "know their job" or else place themselves unreservedly in the hands of those who do.
