The Iconoclast

Anno Domini two-seventy-one St. Valentine to death was done. The little birds upon the trees Were flirting in the morning breeze. (Twas Feb. 14, to be precise.) Why do they tell of Val. such lies, And say he is the lovers' saint? When cyclopedias say he ain't? The nesting birds sic on the lovers, And these ain't robins, no—nor plovers; But sparrows, blame 'em, raisin' Cain— Now don't say Valentine again

If a farmer has an automobile it is considered wonderful, but grain exchange men and all sorts of speculators and manufacturers are expected to have automobiles, trips to Europe and more money than they can spend. Why is this so?

Last week we drew the attention to the introductory ad of G. Murdoch of Simcoe. This week another ad appears on page four and we are positive that the bargains offered at this new store will suit the pocket book of every customer. Read this ad and note the prices.

When we ask for strength for the day, our thought is usually of that which is needed for our most important work. We should not so limit it. The grace that shall save us from evil thoughts, hasty speech, a violent temper, or censorious spirit, is as much needed as the other.

A good polish for patent leather shoes is made of mixing one part linseed oil and two of cream. Mix thoroughly, and after every particle of dust has been removed from the shoes apply with a piece of flannel. Then rub leather with a soft cloth.

Lettuce can be kept very fresh if it is thoroughly washed, then all the water should be shaken from the leaves and it should be put in a tin pail with very tight cover, then set in a cool place. The lettuce will be crisp and fresh the next day.

If men would only stop to ask themselves when they are tempted to let their tongue run riot with sacred names, "What is the meaning of the words I am moved to utter," they would be shocked and hold their peace. Is the Savior of Mankind a personality that we should speak of Him in accents others than those of reverence?

When a spoiled boy marries a spoiled girl, what happens? Little happiness could be expected from such a union, and yet many of these marriages turn out well. Matrimony will make a man of a husband if anything will, and it will make a real woman of any wife. The boy who was the terror of his parents' home is seen, a few years later, as the tamest of all husbands. The same change is often seen in a wife whose girlhood was apparently spent in a whirl of headlong excitement. Parents are not, as a rule, half as much alarmed about the matrimonial aptitudes of their children as are the unmarried or childless onlookers who moon over and worry about such matters.

Did you carry out that good impulse?

The County Council minutes will appear next week.

We are very pleased with the liberal manner in which the public have responded in the matter of sending in interesting items of news. They will see what a kindness they are conferring when they stop to think that many an old resident of Jarvis in Canada or United States anxiously await arrival of The Record from week to week, for news of the old home village and vicinity. Many of you know of some such perhaps they are your relatives or friends to whom you write only too seldom. Any item of news should be sent in. Telephone it in, or call at the office. Get it here some how for these friends of yours are anxious for news from home. The outside contributors have been doing very efficient work and we hope they will continue throughout the year the good work which they have begun.

The most noted fortune teller in Paris, the woman known as Madame De Thebes, is on record as predicting that before the end of the present year the Prince of Wales will reign, the Pope will die, the French armies will be rushed to the frontier (which frontier not stated), and Poland will be freed.

Now that the parcel-post and the express companies are competing for the business of carrying farm produce to the consumers, there ought soon to be some slight relief from the cost of living. The traffic manager of one of the express companies told the California railroad commission a few weeks ago that his company intends to do its best to build up a business of shipping eggs and chickens from the country to the city at low rates.

The disaster to the Scott Antarctic expedition, although not so overwhelming as at first reported, was tragic in the extreme. Death did not come suddenly as was supposed. It was a slow, lingering death, borne by brave men with the greatest fortitude. Capt. Scott's final letter to the world, telling of their awful experiences and commending their relatives to the good offices of the public, was truly pathetic, yet it showed a heroism in the face of death that brings a thrill to the human heart. The pity is that so brave men should meet so cruel a fate.

Bowly—Blakie

The home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Heaton, Toronto, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Miss Mary Ethel Blakie daughter of Robert Blakie of Woodhouse and Allington Tupper Bowly, barrister of Toronto were united in marriage, the Rev. K. J. Moore, conducting the ceremony, in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. Owing to the recent bereavement in the home of the groom the wedding was a quiet one. The bride who was unattended wore a travelling suit of navy blue. The young couple will reside at Toronto.

Sold Out Business

Thos. Harris has disposed of his butcher business and good-will to Messrs. Geo Highwood and John Blackmore, of town. The residence is also included in the sale, the consideration being $1500. Mr. Harris has conducted the business in town for the past seven years and retires from active business in this special line enjoying the esteem and friendship of the entire village of Jarvis and community and the patrons of his shop, who will be glad to learn that it is not his intention to leave the town. The new firm took possession on Saturday and they will be welcomed to the business circle of Jarvis and may the same measure of success be accorded them as their predecessor enjoyed. Archie Highwood will look after the business and started upon his duties this week. He will move into the house adjoining as soon as Mr. Harris vacates it. The public will find Mr. Highwood courteous and obliging and ever ready to serve the customers with the choicest kinds of meat.

St. Valentine's Day

Friday next is St. Valentine's Day. St. Valentine, a bishop and martyr of the church was put to death for his faith during his persecution of Claudius II, February 14, 271. The custom of choosing valentines on his day is of considerable antiquity. It was believed that birds began to mate on this day. On St. Valentine's eve young people of both sexes used to meet and draw lots. Each gentleman thus got a lady for his valentine, and became a valentine for a year. Our memory of the pleasures of St. Valentine's day lingers with interesting vividness still. It is one of the humorous events in childhood's jolly sphere and though for some years it has scarcely been honored, the fun-loving are reviving the custom and this year it will take its place along with Xmas, and New Year's in the way of young folks sending these innocent billet doux and funny picture cards to their young friends of the opposite sex. Who of us older ones does not remember with what curiosity we received some hideous valentine, and if we had any clue or suspicion whistever of the sender did not try to get one twice as ugly to send in return.

An Apology

In a recent issue of The Record an item appeared in our local columns mildly criticizing the custom of giving home work to children attending school. The item was penned in the general way with no personal reflection on any particular person, but Mr. T. J. Hicks, our Public School Principal, took exception to our views in the matter, as would be seen by a communication from his pen in our last issue. The communication in question was set up in the ordinary way, but owing to a busy rush of job work and other office duties last week, it was overlooked in the proof-reading, and as a consequence several errors crept into it which rather distorted the meaning the writer intended to convey. For this he has our apology and we regret very much that the item should be neglected in the way it was, but as to our views in the previous item we have nothing to retract nor apologies to offer; neither do we think it becomes our unfriendly critic to pour out a tirade of abuse on us in a private letter following the appearance of the communication, before knowing the circumstances surrounding matters. One might expect something better from one holding the dignified calling he does.

In order to set matters right we repeat the communication, making the necessary corrections complained of:—

To the Editress of Jarvis Record DEAR MADAM:

I noticed in last number of The Record an article on "Homework." I consider that, an opinion either calculated to cause a feeling of rebellion in the minds of school children or else to bring forth a little criticism. Since I am past the stage of rebelling against the teacher I venture this criticism. Taking your opinion to be a fact, then some eight or nine thousand school teachers in Ontario should resign at once and seek new callings, since most teachers assign "Home work," and you ban these teachers as "a failure." I suppose you realize that five hours in school leaves nineteen hours for sleep, recreation, one hour for meals, one hour for home lessons there still remain four hours in which the parents "can lend their hand in training." I do not believe in loading up young children with too much home work but you must realize that the people of Ontario DEMAND "homework" since they demand the teacher to turn out the pupils for examinations in a given number of days or years. I consider "homework" a blessing in disguise very frequently, as it has a tendency to keep children off the streets. Parents frequently become more or less interested in what their children are studying, as they see them working at their lessons. Lessons in restraint and attention are learned and children learn that "labor is the common lot of all."

Thanking you in advance for space in your valuable paper,

I am Respectfully,

T. J. HICKS, B.A., Principal Public School.

Hockey Match At Simcoe

A number of the local hockey sports took in the excursion to Simcoe Friday evening to witness the Hamilton Simcoe O.H.A. game. The game was one of the most important that has been played in the group and as a result of their victory Simcoe are favorites to win out. The final score was 5 in favor of Simcoe, and there was little chance for argument as to the best team winning. It was at eleven o'clock before the contingent arrived in Simcoe and about 11:30 when the game was started. The biggest crowd that has ever witnessed a hockey match in Simcoe was on hand and some of them had a four-hour wait before the game started. It was after 1 before the game was finished.

Death of John Lambert

Jarvis loses a good citizen by the passing of John Lambert, and though his death was not quite unexpected, it is none the less deplorable. He has always enjoyed the best of health up to three years ago when he was afflicted with arteriosclerosis and since that time he has been more or less confined to the house. About three months ago he was taken with very weak spell which gradually weakened the constitution, and on Saturday, at about 4 a.m., he passed peacefully away. The subject of our sketch was born near Toronto in the year 1843, and had he lived until March would have been 70 years of age. When but a mere child he, with his parents moved to Jarvis and settled on the farm at present occupied by Gunner Dosser. Some fifty years ago he was married to Miss Mary Ann Wilkinson of near Marburg and to them three children were born, two sons and one daughter, but of these just one son survives, Ashley of Marbury. Mr. Lambert followed the occupation of carpenter, later taking over the furniture business of Mr. Birdidge, which he successfully conducted for twenty years, after which he disposed of same to Mr. Jeffries. He was of a quiet, retiring disposition and had no aspirations for public office of any kind; fond of home, friends and the family circle. He was honored and respected by all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance. His bereaved widow has the sympathy of the entire community, she was indeed a true helpmate and during her husband's illness administered to his every want with unceasing care and devotion. Among the sorrowing friends he leaves one brother, James L., of Aylmer; and two sisters, Mrs. Chambers and Mrs. Sower of Jarvis. The funeral took place Monday to St. Paul's church cemetery, the Rev. J. H. Ross conducting a very impressive service in the church. The remains were borne to their last resting place by Messrs. D. Steel, Jos. Ivey, T. E. Morrow, D. M. Allen, Nat. Pond and Walter Swing.

Advantages of Lent

If Lent is not observed from any motive supplied by religion, at any rate the physical and nervous organism seems to require the cessation of the hectic program of amusement that makes a business of play alike for the delectants and for the injured devotees of fashion. Even if Sunday were not a rest day of spiritual and ecclesiastical appointment, still the respite of one day in seven would be considered salutary for the body as well as for the soul. The French people at the time of the revolution were unsuccessful in their efforts to dispense with it. Just so, the Lenten season seems vitally and not merely spiritually indispensable. From the very meaning of the word, the warning is given to "slow down"—the terms itself is a reminder of the exhausting effects of the swift and fluttering career of folly whose rate of motion seems year by year to be accelerated instead of retarded. It is well for all of us to be reminded that the soul and the intellect have higher claims than that of selfish and corporeal indulgence.

A man died recently as the result of a small scratch on his forehead, inflicted by a hatpin that projected from the hat of a lady in the group of which he was a member. Some fashions are not dangerous, but merely absurd; others injure only those who adopt them. The long hatpin is absurd, and, moreover, it is a menace to all who are near the wearer.
